Then and now...

Today is Remembrance Day.

Kids have the day off. Ceremonies are held at the cenotaph. There are parades, speeches, prayers. It's a day of memories.

A number of stories and pictures in This Week deal especially with Remembrance Day. Editor Peter Brouwer, a native of Holland, dug out the pictures (left) of "Youth in Amsterdam, 1945" and "Youth in Amsterdam, today." There's also a Rembrance Day piece by Frank Rutter, This Week's advertising manager, and there's a story by Simon Carmiggelt.

$40 for two hours a week, "damn good, eh!"

Baxter

Negotiations are proceeding quite optimistically on the General Motors front according to newspaper reports and Oshawa is anticipating a quick agreement.

No one could be more anxious to end the strike than the strikers themselves.

More than 50 days have passed since the walk-out and for many of the strikers and their families they have been lean hungry days.

For some strikers, like Chester Baxter, hints of a strike early in the fall were enough to make them put away a little extra money every pay to be used for house payments and other bills during the strike.

"Just by reading the papers and listening to rumors I'm confident the strike will be over within the next two weeks," says Mr. Baxter.

When the strike began he was sure it would last between two and three months and his family was prepared for a long session. While he may not be buying as many luxury items, he is still buying the same amount of groceries, cutting back on the expensive unnecessary items.

Once the strike is over and the men are back to work it will be two weeks before they receive their first pay check and many know just where it will be spent.

"I'm going to pay off all my debts with the first check," says Mike Klinduch.

Nick Demkiw says he feels that the debts he has incurred during the strike would not be out of pro-

Snow brings pollution, brings treatment plant?

Oshawa is spending thousands upon thousands of dollars every year on sewage treatment operations and the financing of multi-million sewage treatment plants.

Now would you believe a snow treatment plant next?

It may come to that, eventually

The city's public works committee, in a discussion on snow dumping locations Monday, stopped to consider the pollution caused by snow that is dumped in or near the Oshawa Creek.

Works Chief Fred Crome, in reporting on proposed dumping locations for snow that is trucked from city streets, pointed out that street snow, because of the debris and mud it contains, is not wanted on the city's ball diamonds and football fields. He suggested that somewhere in the Creek Valley an area be found suitable for the purpose.

Controller Margaret Shaw brought up the pollution angle, suggesting that the salt-riddled snow be kept away from it.

Whereupon followed the prediction by Mr. Crome that we may eventually end up building treatment plants for "storm water."

"We've got to weigh the benefits," pondered the city engineer. "Do we not use salt? Sand only has been found not to be effective." He added that eventually people may decide they will pay many thousands for treatment plants of storm water, such as snow.

Must prepare financially and mentally : worker

Dan Fudge and his family have been through three General Motors strikes, each one progressively longer than the other and they hope the time will never come that they have to weather a five or six month strike.

"A strike is inevitable every three years and if you are financially and mentally prepared for it, then I think things will run smoothly for the family."

Dan, his wife Gloria and their two children have adjusted to the pay cut and are not feeling the pinch as yet, they said on Monday.

Taking advantage of the time off, Dan has done painting and renovations around their home and babysits when Gloria goes to Durham College five nights a week.

"As a matter of fact, we are actually saving the cost of a baby sitter because Dan looks after the children," says Gloria.

Gloria continues to buy groceries as she did before the strike and they say the only real budget cut they have made is in entertainment. The money she receives from the Manpower retraining course pays for the groceries and other household items and Dan's strike pay is used for house payments and utility bills.

"We can last very well as long as the strike pay benefits continue to come but rumors of bankruptcy in the near future are going around and without that $40 a week we will have to dig into our savings," says Dan.

Typical?

The Fudges think they are typical of a lot of General Motors strikers who have prepared for the inevitable. But, they also know many people who live "day to day" and are finding conditions unbearable.

Some of Dan's co-workers have been forced to borrow money to meet house payments, others have been receiving groceries handed out by the union.

Dan says he gets annoyed when the rest of the city blames its misfortunes and lack of business on the strikers.

"After all, the average annual wage at the plant is around $7,000 and when you have a candidate for the mayor's seat saying his family of four could not live on the present $10,000 salary, I begin to wonder why the city thinks we should be earning less than anyone else," says Dan.

He is hopeful the strike will be over within a week's time.

"I think the strike is creating a demand for General Motors cars and when the demand is great enough then I think you will see a quick settlement."

Dan says he has "heard" that one of the office workers is spending his time touring car lots in Toronto and the surrounding area taking an inventory of the number of cars available.

Dan is also taking courses at Durham College. He is planning for the future and says he doesn't want to be a lineman for the rest of his life.

While they haven't run up any debts Dan feels that the increase in pay they will earn after the strike is over, will make up for debts incurred.

"Anyway if we don't strike for what we think is due us, then we will never get any further ahead in our jobs or our future."

People on strike keep eating, say grocery managers

Paint and hardware stores report an increase in business since the strike has hit Oshawa.

With only two hours a week to put in on the picket line, it seems strikers are taking advantage of their free time to renovate their homes, thus creating an increase in sales for hardware store owners and lumber businesses.

John Swan, president of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce and himself an owner of a hardware store, confirms this increase in business.

Mr. Swan did point out that stores dealing in luxury items and expensive articles are suffering from lack of business.

Finance companies are holding onto their cash and decreasing the number of loans to residents, thereby indirectly causing many stores to lose business.

Furniture stores and car dealers attribute the drop in their business to the reluctance on the part of the finance companies to lend money. In some cases, finance companies are temporarily extending loan payments to strikers in order that they can pay for food and clothing for their families. Once the strike is over, payments will resume.

One downtown fabric store owner who sells on a low profit basis says he is not meeting the volume of sales necessary to make ends meet.

"While women are spending money on hairdos and manicures they just won't buy material to make themselves a new dress," he complains.

Perhaps one of the agencies hardest hit is the United Appeal. Not only are they losing out on pledges from pay cheques for the present campaign, they are also losing out on pledges from the 11,000 auto workers and 1,300 workers from other dependent plants who have been forced out on strike.

As long as the workers are not collecting a pay cheque there is no way the United Appeal can collect the payroll deductions for this year.

Taxi companies report people are not allowing themselves the luxury of a cab ride and are instead reverting to walking or supporting the public transit system.

"It will take a blizzard or severe rain storm before we will have all our cabs out these days," says one cab owner.

And if your favorite bar tender is smiling just a little brighter these days, it's because he is trying harder to get a tip. It seems those who are still frequenting the bars are just not tipping like they used to.

Most department store owners are optimistic the strike will end before Christmas. How else can you explain the recent rash of Christmas wreaths hitting the store windows?

"Store owners purchased their Christmas stock last Spring so they will be displaying it as usual this year whether people will be buying or not," says Mr. Swan.

Last week city council voted an extra $50,000 supplement to the Social Services budget to allow for the drastic increase in welfare payments due to the strike.

Director of Social Services, H. G. Chesebrough says there are many more applications for welfare this time as compared to the last strike.

"During the last strike the workers who were forced off their jobs due to the General Motors strike had supplemental benefits to collect. Now the benefits have gone bankrupt and people are applying to the city for help."

Grocery store managers are happy. People on strike are continuing to eat as well as they did before the strike!

portion to the amount he will gain from being on strike.

"In the end I will make more from being on strike and gaining in the contract than I have lost by being off work."

He too, is optimistic the strike will be over shortly.

Gudelj

But, Luka Gudelj isn't nearly as optimistic as the other men interviewed and isn't counting the days until he gets his first pay check.

"We have been promised the strike will be over for weeks now. They are giving us false hopes and courage to stick together."

He reads the daily papers and follows the union bulletins but while 62 of the 67 grievances have been settled, the five that have not yet been agreed upon, he feels, could take much more time.

"There are many more locals besides Oshawa that have to reach agreement and we will be out until everyone is satisfied. This won't be for a long time yet."

Fighting off the cold winds and damp air, the men still managed to sustain their sense of humor.

"As a matter of fact, we get better pay now than when we are working. Forty dollars for two hours a week is a damn good wage eh?"

J. E. DeHART

DeHart runs

John DeHart, an Oshawa insurance man defeated in the mayoralty race two years ago has announced a come-back — but it won't be as mayor.

In an announcement today, Mr. DeHart said he will seek either a seat on council as an alderman or as a controller.

In a prepared statement of policy, the candidate had this to say:

"One of the most pressing problems for Oshawa is to resolve once and for all the Oshawa-Whitby merger. Oshawa City Council's demand that a study be undertaken immediately on this issue is most sensible.

"Oshawa has placed one million dollars for their contribution in the Whitby Corbett's Creek Sewage Treatment Plant to serve the present and future needs in the corridor between Whitby and Oshawa, which will make both municipalities even more closer together and yet the Whitby Council say it should be a green belt. Why is Oshawa putting up a million dollars when it is only going to service a green belt?

"The Ontario Municipal Board should hold up any approval of new Municipal Buildings at this time until the Oshawa-Whitby merger is resolved. Surely the people of Whitby, the same as the people of Oshawa are tired of high taxes. Do we need this duplication of services?

"What is the division between Oshawa and Whitby? It certainly isn't physical — it's political, and this type of political nonsense will be most costly to both municipalities unless it is solved.

"A drastic shake up is required in order to eliminate the present red tape that now exists at City Hall but the very Department that has caused most of these problems, by virtue of elimination merely makes the newly formed Dept. of Planning and Development a further extension of the Public Works Dept."

Sidewalks through shrubbery, but with less pain

So you have a nicely landscaped front lawn with flower beds and shrubs and you're sitting back and say to yourself, "it was a big job, but it was all worth it."

And then along comes the city's works department with a notice saying it was all in vain and that they're going to put a nice concrete sidewalk through that flowerbed, and couple of the shrubs will have to go . . . and on top of all that you pay half of what that strip of concrete is going to cost.

Those two paragraphs roughly sum up the Oshawa sidewalk situation.

But there are some bright spots on the horizon for the anti-concrete faction that prefers bushes and flowers.

At its meeting this week the Oshawa public works committee decided to ask city council to approve a new policy on sidewalks. No, there will still be sidewalks, and they'll still go through the shrubbery — but in the future, if city council approves, the city will foot the whole bill. You may lose your bush, but you will get to keep your dollars.

Now don't get the idea, those of you who prefer concrete to bushes, that all you have to do now is ask for a sidewalk and it shall be given unto you, with the city paying the cost. Those sidewalks installed at the local resident's request, by petition, and not at council's initiative, will still be paid for 100 per cent by those whose properties abutt the sidewalk.

From school teacher candidate

'No two cent smile, handshakes'

Michael Breaugh, the only declared candidate so far in the mayoralty race considers his inexperience in municipal politics and his lack of extensive knowledge of municipal affairs an asset instead of a liability.

"After all, who would be proud to say he has been part of our municipal government to date. We have great possibilities and great potential but as yet they haven't been utilized."

The 28-year-old separate school principal decided to run for the mayor's seat because of what he terms "impossible means of communication between the elected and the electorate."

Mr. Breaugh has been an Oshawa resident for three years.

He has set up research committees to delve into the background of current municipal issues and he hopes to absorb all the necessary background knowledge by election time.

"My biggest problem is getting across to the public that I am a serious candidate, willing to work full-time as the mayor, willing to give up a certain amount of my family life and that I am perfectly capable of handling the job."

In regard to the problem of lack of communication Mr. Breaugh says he fully supports the idea of a ward system in Oshawa. The city would be divided into wards, each electing an alderman.

"At the moment there is no way any segment of the city can receive individual help unless an alderman happens to live in that area," says Mr. Breaugh.

He is not looking for large support from one large group but stressed that he is looking for strong support from many different sources. He is not politically affiliated to any group, he says, and prefers to gather votes by contacts rather than by posters and massive advertising campaigns.

Commenting on regional government he says Oshawa is wasting a lot of time and money "running after little municipalities like Whitby when those little municipalities should be anxious to share our services". "We should call a halt to all this catering business and make it quite clear to these areas that we have the resources to offer them and stop fooling around."

Mr. Breaugh admits his campaign funds are limited and will collect money from supporters as the need arises.

"We will certainly not be spending money on advertising, posters or purchasing television spots. I will go directly to the public and am willing to speak to anyone who will invite me."

"By the time I have finished my campaign I will probably have broken all the traditional political rules. I'm not offering two cent smiles and three cent handshakes. I'm offering the public my pledge to work to their best advantage as the mayor".

Mr. Breaugh said he will give up his job as principal of John XXIII school for the two year term if he is elected.

editorial

Did Margaret really mean it

You will recall the other week when we were talking about an increase in the mayor's salary, that in our opinion there were two types of people to whom a salary of $10,000 a year (the current salary) would appeal. We talked of hobby-ists and retirees.

We draw to your attention the fact that this has been forcefully borne out by the city council's voting last Monday night in respect of the increase in the mayor's remuneration.

That Controller Dafoe voted against the increase was no surprise to us. He usually doesn't really explain why he is against. That Alderman Alice Reardon objected was also to be expected. Mrs. Reardon objected with a "well, not that much of an increase" but failed to present any alternatives.

But it really is too bad that Controller Margaret Shaw, who we believe has aspirations to be the mayor somewhere along the line, would appear to have put those aspirations ahead of the common good. Why Margaret? You know full well that the $10,000 a year salary is insufficient, if the office of mayor is to be filled by a person who is the primary wage earner for his or her family.

Mrs. Shaw is not in that category and we suggest that combined with other sources of income the $10,000 a year to her would be "play money". Does Mrs. Shaw want to keep the job so unattractive that it would only appeal to someone in her circumstances?

Come on Margaret! Tell us you didn't mean it. You've changed your mind before! And it is a women's prerogative!

The strike

So it looks as if the big strike will indeed come to an end, and things will be back to normal soon.

But will they?

Local issues have been settled, it was announced Saturday by the workers and the company. Now it was just a matter of waiting for the top level bargainers to settle with the top level company negotiators.

We may not be experts in arithmetic, but we're firmly convinced that even if GM had ended up giving into the very top wage demand of the union, the union man himself wouldn't be able to say at the end of this strike that it was all worth it.

We are not anti-union or anti-management.

But we are still anti-strike.

And this 1970 strike with all its after effects that all of us will be feeling for quite some time to come, should serve as an example that we need to find more up to date methods to settle our labor disputes.

When the strike started, this newspaper went on record as saying that strikes are juvenile. We are more than ever convinced that they are.

We sincerely wish that those who negotiated the new contract on both sides now make a full-time job of finding a better way to settle once the new contract runs out.

We suggest also that the government step in and set a deadline for union and management to come up with an alternative solution.

And we suggest that the government of the land actively participate in seeking a solution.

Too many people who have absolutely no say in a decision of a union to strike, or a management not to give in, are affected by the results of such decisions. And this problem will become worse as industries become more dependant upon one another. This problem will also worsen as labor unions grow in strength and as some of our labor leaders are seen to be adopting attitudes for the future that will do the country untold harm.

It would appear that in Oshawa, during this 1970 strike, just as many non-UAW people suffered as did union-members. That in itself should be a good enough reason for government to step in and take the bull by the horns.

Hanging tree

If anything makes us boil, it's the blundering of some of our colleagues. We're very ordinary in that respect. Most colleagues are upset by the blunders of their colleagues.

When a doctor reads about a colleague surgeon having left an instrument or part thereof in a patient's abdomen, his reaction would be one fo "this type of thing hurts the entire profession."

Fortunately not too many surgeons leave their tools in abdomens, and even more fortunate, for the doctors, it doesn't always come out in the wash . . . .

With journalists it's a little different. It does all come out in the wash. You can count on it.

When one newspaperman takes a devil-may-care, sensational and totally irresponsible approach to the coverage of a murder, many of his colleagues are hurt. And some of his colleagues will take him aside for a good verbal thrashing. We've done this.

When another newspaperman continuously displays an attitude of destructive criticism, another newman will take him to task for it. We've done that too.

And when, such as on Saturday, the front page of the Oshawa Times is "dressed up" with a picture of an unfortunate member of a motorcycle gang, hanging by a dog chain from a hanging tree, again, a lot of the editor's colleagues are up in arms.

We protest, and will continue to protest such amateurish unprofessionalism by members of our profession.

We've grown to expect this kind of thing in the scandal sheets that abound in our country. We still refuse to expect it in our daily newspaper.

Council mix

The mix of the present city council is reasonably satisfactory inasmuch as its makeup includes fair representation from labor, the professions and the white collar types.

Looking into the past however, it appears that there are some segments who have not given of their ranks people willing to serve on council. The doctors and lawyers, for example have been well represented on the councils. But of late there has been an absence of representatives from such professions as veterinarians, accountants and dentists, to name a few. The electorate should be looking in this direction for a number of new faces on council.

In addition, a man of the cloth, a foundry worker, a postman, a publican and a number of related disciplines might have quite a lot to offer the electorate.

The accountant would keep an eye on the finances, the dentist would alleviate excessive jawboning during debate and the man of the cloth could attempt to keep the peace.

In addition, how about the stripper and grinder job category? Or how about a knocker-upper to keep council awake when its meetings drag on past 11 p.m.?

Give it some thought, if you're among those mentioned, and even if you're not.

PUC change

And then there's the Public Utilities Commission, often forgotten by all of us as an after-thought at election time.

We feel the wind of change should blow in that direction also this year. Most of the incumbents have been there too long.

They should step aside and let suitable younger candidates fill the positions, hopefully bringing with them new ideas and experience to improve the role of the PUC in the community.

For starters, there's the bus service. Must the bus deficit continue to grow at such an alarming rate? Can't we reduce it?

We know this is a difficult problem, but would there be anything wrong in approaching this problem, for example, with a fresh outlook?

Sir:

I will be brief in my response to the letter last week of Mr. J. Purcell.

His letter is so full of distortions of what took place on our recent television program that I can only conclude they are willful and not the result of ignorance. This point is confirmed by his further complete misrepresentation in print of a private conversation.

The point at issue is whether or not a man elected to public office should attempt to vote as he honestly thinks is best for the community or according to how he thinks most people in the community at a given time would wish him vote.

My view is that he must do what he honestly thinks is best for the city, province, or country which elected him. He is elected to study the issues and to act as he thinks best. His constituents will observe his actions and decide as to whether or not he is to be reelected.

In my view a politician who seeks only to respond to the immediate desires of people, especially in a crisis, does not merit support. Did Churchill speak and vote according to the wishes of most Englishmen in the 1930's who wanted disarmament and appeasement in the face of Nazism or did he conscientiously argue against such a view? Was he not a democrat?

Did the prime minister do a poll of the nation at 4 a.m. on the morning of October 16 before he invoked the War Measures Act? Or did he not act as he thought he ought? Is he not a democrat?

I believe that the Liberal government's decision to invoke the War Measures Act for the first time in Canadian history in peace-time was wrong. I further believe that those who voted for it did so because they thought it was right. In neither case did members of parliament of any party conduct polls in their constituency. Overwhelmingly they voted as their consciences dictated.

Not that it adds one shred of supporting logic to my argument, I suggest Mr. Purcell check the views of the following men who believed deeply in the responsibility of honest men to act as they think best: Socrates (a Geeek), Christ (Jew), Spinoza (Spaniard), Kierkegaard (Dane), Dostiezski (Russian), Voltaire (Frenchman), and Burke, Mill, Churchill (Englishmen).

Finally, the Right Honorable Pierre Trudeau, prime minister of Canada, who said in the House of Commons on October 16 of the 16 New Democrats who were to oppose him on the invocation of the War Measures Act; "I sympathize with their attitude and aplaud them for speaking out".

Democracy is not well served by yes men.

Sir:

You recently placed an article on people cheating the Welfare.

On Malaga Rd. there is an incident where a family has deliberately separated and the wife is collecting welfare, the husband has been collecting strike pay and sick pay. The husband comes and stays until late at night and on weekends over night. They consider this a big joke.

To guarantee his sick pay, the husband has now signed himself into Whitby for a drinking problem. Together they are making a pretty good living while other people are trying honestly to make a living.

Why does the city allow this to happen and what about the people who have to live with several children on Strike pay and can't collect welfare?

An annoyed citizen

Sir:

Who finances the FLQ? Where do they get the money to carry on their terrorism? Last Friday, Oct. 30th four armed men robbed the Royal Bank in west end Montreal of $85,000.00. How could it possibly happen with thousands of police and soldiers everywhere in Montreal?

It was reported that two of the most wanted men in the FLQ were seen driving $4,000.00 "muscle" sport cars. Are they as Mr. Sharp said part of an international conspiracy? Does part of the money come from the FLQ in France or Algeria where some of suspects may have fled to?

Robert Hudon, 26 was sentenced to 12 years in 1963 for armed robberies in the Laurentians. He served only four of the 12 year sentence and was paroled in 1967. Last week he admitted and was charged with 13 more robberies, all to finance the FLQ terrorism, according to his lawyer. (Charges were based on 27 charges of conspiracy to commit holdup and car theft) Hudon is one of the so called "political prisoners" the FLQ demanded released as part of the ransom for Cross & LaPorte.

This permissive attitude by Quebec officials only encouraged the FLQ in their attacks on Anglo-Saxon banks, the Anglo-Saxon "capitalists" and their "colonial" symbols. It has been accepted by Quebecers for years with little or no outcry for a stronger law enforcement. Among other malaise deep rooted in Quebec, weak law enforcement linked with a permissive society has fostered the near anarchy that plagues Quebec today. It's now only a matter of time 'til Ottawa will demand "Anglo Saxon" Ontario and the rest of Canada cough up more money to help cure Quebecs economic and unemployment ills.

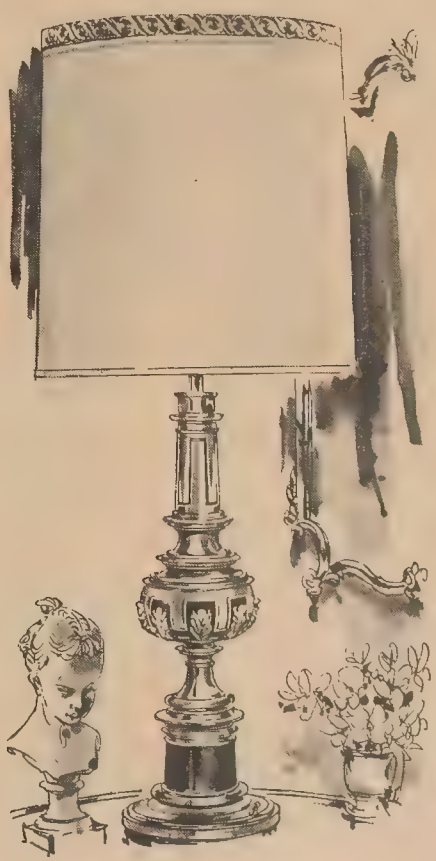
Sir,

May I extend my congratulations to one of your readers, Mr. John Purcell and also my best of luck wishes to him in his quest to receive an award for the best comedian of the year.



At the outset I would like to make it clear that I do not condone any act of violence regardless of the reason. May I also say that I am 100% in support of our M.P. Ed Broadbent in the stand that he and his party took on the War Measures Act.

In my opinion Mr. Broadbent is proving more and more that he is the most honest, courageous, intelligent and hardest working member of Parliament that this riding has ever had.

You Mr. Purcell say that Mr. Broadbent does not communicate with his riding. Let me say to you that Mr. Broadbent communicated more with his voters in the past 2 years than "what's his name" did in his 16 years of office.

Your analysis that Mr. Broadbent should represent the majority is not only erroneous but it is full of naivete. First of all Mr. Broadbent got elected by slightly more than one third of the electorate, which obviously meant that from the 26th of June onwards he had 2/3 of his riding opposed to him. I say 2/3 of his riding because in my opinion the Liberal and Conservative Parties are in reality all one Party. They agree on most issues disagreeing only slightly to give the eletorate a choice between twiddle-dee-dee and twiddle-dee-dum. I suggest to you Mr. Purcell that Mr. Broadbent did not get elected because he was Ed Broadbent, but in fact he was elected because more than one third of his riding agreed with the program and aims of the New Democratic Party, a fact that may be hard to swallow for you but nonetheless real. If we buy your idea that an M.P. should only be a mouthpiece for his riding than we could elect any charlatan off the streets (perhaps someone like you Mr. Purcell). You are being naive when you talk of the "majority of public opinion". Even you must agree that public opinion is created by newspapers, television and radio. Therefore in actual fact the "majority of public opinion" that you speak of can be traced back to a minute number of people, who constitute the elite of the news media. Are you saying that once this small number of influential people have managed to brainwash the majority of the voters, that an M.P. must represent that well-meaning but mislead majority? Is this your idea of democracy? Should everyone jump on a bandwagon that was created by a few very convincing people? I should think not.

In the last issue of "This Week" you ended what can be jokingly called a letter by saying that you told Mr. Broadbent that "I contend that in a democracy, an M.P. must represent the views of the majority of his constituents". Ed Broadbent replied, "that's a lot of shit". You very conveniently stopped there taking Mr. Broadbent's sentence out of context.

I have enough trust in him that I know he went on to explain what he meant. You sir if you are as democratic as you say you are could have stated Mr. Broadbent's other statements.

Actually I think that he was very polite with you, if you had been talking to me, with your silly arguments I wouldn't have been so gentle.

As for you, Mr. Broadbent, as long as you continue your good work, you can count on my support for as long as you wish to represent me.

Ron Mauro

Sir:

Judging from the calls and comments, all too many people had totally misconstrued the point of my recent satirical effort relating to the N.D.P. and the War Measures Act. I would have imagined that anyone with a reasonable degree of intelligence and little more than a casual reading would have easily recognized that any outward appearance of support for the invocation of such an unduly dangerous measure — or any knocking of the N.D.P. stand was strictly "tongue-in-cheek". Actually the very reverse was true and any possible doubt should have been removed by my last sentence which read as follows "I understand that even some so called good N.D.P.ers are ashamed of such carrying on — yet I personally thank God that our country has 16 such "politically stupid" leaders with the guts to match."

No matter how pathetically eager the proponents of the War Measures are for any hint of anti N.D.P. sentiment there can be very little cause for any satisfaction from the above remark, or for that matter any other portion of my letter, upon proper comprehension. They can spare me their unsolicitated and completely unwarranted praises — for I have nothing but the greatest respect and admiration for Messrs. Douglas, Broadbent and the other few who staunchly maintained their responsible and conscientious concern for not only nailing the guilty, but protecting the rights and privileges of the innocent. Unpopular, yes — but essentially imperative in the midst of the great emotional wave of almost lynch-mob proportion.

Mainly because of the honest and sane "opposition" role played by this morally principled few the infamous War Measures Act is being speedily replaced by a much more reasonable and acceptable piece of legislation, strong enough to cope with the situation, yet tempered with proper restrictions and safeguards much more in keeping with our professed "just" or democratic society.

Some people, all fired up with hate and the lust for blood, are obviously disappointed in the "pulling in of the horns", they no doubt would have preferred a further escalation of this "war", perhaps like the dropping of an atomic bomb on those "radical Quebecers", ridding us of the embarrassment and nuisance of facing up to their many social ills. But again I thank God for the guidance of this small group of N.D.P. towards a sane and just direction.

I think, Mr. Editor, what really bugs the likes of Mr. John Purcell for example, is the obvious dismay and frustration of witnessing the initial wave of resentment against these 16, now gradually and surely changing to one of majority respect and appreciation.

Steve Melnichuk.

Sir:

To solve the terrorism in Quebec, you have to delve into the roots of the problem; French Canadians are being suppressed by an English minority in Quebec. A single statement would serve to prove this; over 80% of the population is French-Canadian yet they are being ruled by the English minority. Also over 80% of Quebec is foreign controlled. In Quebec, there are jobless people by the thousands, there is poverty among Gaspe fishermen, there are farmers in Quebec whose annual income barely reaches $1000. and there are slums which are comparable to Harlem. This can be best illustrated by a look at two neighbouring communities: Saint Henri and Westmount. Here you find the typical poverty and overcrowding of a French district; there you see the English minority living in luxury. Their progressive, economic enslavement, and an ever-fuller foreign control, will not be stopped by provisional, short-sighted solutions.

The young of to-day, as with every rising generation, seek an ideal. Society (that is the elders) must furnish them with the means of creating the greatest ideal which is in their power. Who in our midsts dares to rise and pretend that, in our situation in Quebec, it is right to give them an ideal which will arouse in them impulses to violence as a legitimate means of realizing their aims? How can they fail to see that the murders and destruction they are spreading can never get them any of the things they want?

We could, perhaps, help them in this. The authorities should take the trouble to speak out and defend their stand. Those among us who harbour a glimmer of sympathy for the terrorists should take some pains to do a little thinking.

Sir:

As citizens of a free nation, who have the right to express themselves under the constitutional laws of Canada, we as individuals have the right to be able to represent by opinion our views, whether they be negative or positive. My point is, during the course of the War Measures Act, Canadians were denied that specific right, and by that same denile, the Government of Canada is guilty of a very serious crime, which in my view is the disrespect of its citizens How can any Government that respects its citizens take away the character, and very foundation of Democracy, and Sir, that is exactly what has been done to the citizens of Canada.

To further a point, that Mr. Purcell mentioned, or rather inferred the possibilities of a Government composed of the philosophies of Mr. Broadbent, could rule out elections and set up a type of Dictatorship. I don't think there is a hell of a lot to defend in such a ridiculous statement as that, and I won't waste any time or effort to try. Here is a question I wish you to ask yourself and then answer. "Can the Liberals, with the power they have at the present time, set up a Government that could possibly lean toward a Total Dictatorship, and before you answer or ask that question of yourself, isn't that exactly what happened when the Liberal Government enforced the War Measures Act, I personally believe it was, especially when you consider how the act was put into effect.

Furthermore, I ask the Liberal Government to take the News Media, in all of its forms right into the heart of Canada and the Canadian people. Let the news agencies seek out the people and I mean all of the people of Canada, ask the 250,000 unemployed in Quebec Province alone, ask them what has been happening in Quebec over the past five years of ten years, then ask them but also have the stigmentation and untrust of having Martial Law enforced upon them. The Creation of the F.L.Q. was the fault of or the lack of just caring by the Provincial and certainly the present Federal Government, and tht Sir, to sum it up, is that expressed desire of the Federal Governments wish to fight inflation by causing unemployment and poignant amounts of depression.

My thought is when all of Canadians can call upon themselves and without any doubt they will, to form a unified country, dependent upon every citizen within this country to act and work and reason as an individual for the efforts of all, then we shall have a Canada, that was meant for everyone.

S. Simpson

Sir:

This is in reply to Gord Fenton, S. Simpson and others who have written to This Week.

Your comments on my recent letter imply that I am a panicky supporter of repression, overly eager to throw away my freedom, and intolerant of any criticism of the government. You have misread my letter.

Do me the courtesy of reading what I wrote before rushing into print to accuse me of things I didn't say and of holding views I did not express. Do not lump me in with the group of shrill reactionaries who could not conceal their glee that the door to an iron-fisted repression had been opened by imposition of the War Measures Act. That group, like the group opposed to the government's stand is small. It does not include me now and it did not include me when the War Measures Act was imposed.

The great mass of the people lie between these two poles. They support their government with a great deal of unease, but they support it nonetheless. It is unjust to insult their intelligence by implying that they were driven to their stand by hysteria. Let us not forget that five days elapsed between the government's proclamation of the War Measures Act and the vote in the House. Five days in which every concerned Canadian searched his soul and weighed carefully two distasteful alternatives.

It is presumptuous to suggest that in five days most people in Canada were not capable of arriving at a rational decision, and further, that the decision made signifies they heartily embrace the loss of liberties dear to us all.

I admit that a pro-government bias shows through in my letter, but in actual fact that was not at all my reason for writing. My point was that Mr. Broadbent did not represent our views in Parliament. Were the positions completely reversed, i.e. if the majority in this riding were against the government's move and Mr. Broadbent had voted in favor of the government, my letter would stand with scarcely a word changed.

The War Measures Act was merely the occasion for a clear revelation of the philosophy of representative government held by Mr. Broadbent and the majority of the NDP caucus. The issue might have been an act concerning dog-catching, for that matter. It is just that the War Measures Act provided one of those rare times when a political issue was both sufficiently simple for most to understand, and sufficiently charged with public interest to make majority views easily discernible.

It is ironic that the issue should be democracy, and that the rhetoric used by the NDP to defend their abrogation of representation should be heavily spiced with references to that very democracy they have denied their constituents.

I do not for a moment question their sincerity. I applaud and respect those private citizens, like Alan Borovoy, who had the courage to take a stand so clearly unpopular and state it publicly. I would even applaud the NDP as did the Prime Minister, had they restricted their opposition to the speeches they made in the House. You will note that nowhere in my two letters, nor on television, have I suggested that private citizens holding the view that the government was wrong be denied the right to hold that view and express it publicly. I would not even deny the NDP members the opportunity to state in the House that they had grave misgivings and that, personally, they did not agree with the government.

But when it came time for the vote on the measure, MP's ceased to be private citizens. Their vote, yea or nay, was the official voice of their constituents speaking, not their own. The 16 NDP members who misguidedly registered as official the views they held as private citizens may claim a fervent love of democracy, but they cannot claim a clear understanding of the term.

If democracy is a tree, then civil liberties are the fruit, representation the roots. If the fruit is picked, the tree is no longer complete, but it is still alive. If, however, the roots are cut away, how long will it be before the fruit, for lack of nourishment, withers and falls rotten to the ground? How long will it be before the tree itself totters and falls? The government may have plucked some of the fruit from the Canadian tree with the War Measures Act, but the NDP, by denying their constituents their official voice, have hacked away the roots.

If that simile leaves you cold, consider a parallel closer to home. When employment contracts are being negotiated, the union appoints a negotiator to be the union's official spokesman. If that negotiator accepts a contract which does not

Three-storey portable parking garage planned

Planning and Development commissioner Bob Richardson unveiled plans Monday night for a portable three-storey parking garage to be built in downtown Oshawa.

Appearing before a joint committee of Urban Renewal, Traffic and Parks Property and Recreation, Mr. Richardson told the aldermen and controllers that his department had carefully studied six possible locations within the downtown core and he recommended the garage be built on the north side of Athol Street West, on the site of the municipal parking lot. The plan would incorporate lands owned by the Lancaster Hotel and the Dominion store.

"This location is the most suitable under the existing conditions, and is the centre of the greatest parking demand," says Mr. Richardson.

However, his department has recommended that the garage be a portable or demountable structure costing an additional $120,000.

Mr. Richardson explained a portable structure would not be feasible at the Athol St. lot because if urban renewal funds were forthcoming from the federal government, the garage would have to be removed to make way for a road planned for in the Murray Jones Report.

Total cost of the structure, including land acquisition costs would be between $590,920 and $667,590. The city land assessor has estimated it would cost $168,190 to acquire the lands belonging to the Lancaster Hotel and the Dominion store.

However, Council has already received strong indication from the owner of the Lancaster Hotel that he is not willing to sell his land and fears expropriation. Dominion stores have indicated they are willing to sell their property.

Alderman Ross Gibson expressed concern that if the owner was not willing to sell the city would have a hard time acquiring the land for the amount of money they have counted on.

The type of parking garage to be constructed is also dependent on whether or not sometime in the future malls will be constructed on King and Simcoe Streets.

If the malls are constructed, Athol street must become a one-way eastbound. A new road would have to be constructed to connect King Street with Athol Street.

Con. Christine Thomas suggested that it would be better to pick another site where a permanent structure could be built but Mr. Richardson assured committee members that the garage could be dismantled and re-built at another site.

The second choice for the site was 23 Bond Street East, on the south side at Ontario Street. A permanent structure could be built at this site thus saving $120,000, however, the cost of acquiring the land needed is $179,210 more than the cost of the land at the Athol location.

While the Athol Street garage could accommodate 357 cars the Bond Street garage would accommodate 300 cars. The Bond Street location is twice as far to the King-Simcoe Street intersection as the Athol Street site.

A financing proposal was developed for the Athol site and it was shown that the garage would operate at a $17,600 annual deficit which Mr. Richardson suggested could be paid for by the current budget.

Money was made available in the capital budget to provide for purchase of a site and possibly to draw up designs of the garage to be constructed in 1971.

Traffic committee chairman Alice Reardon moved that acceptance of the proposal be referred to the next meeting of the traffic committee because only herself and Alderman Gibson were present.

"It's a major issue and I think we should wait until Con. Dafoe and Alderman Werry are present to discuss the issue.

I do feel the Athol Street location is the best site to meet today's demand and it will be difficult to pick any other site other than the one recommended," said Mr. Richardson.

suit a majority of the members, the contract will be rejected when the membership votes on it. The principle of majority representation is operative. Show me a unionist, NDP supporters in particular, who would see this principle replaced by one which would permit a sweetheart minority which included the negotiator to "buy", on the union's behalf, a contract which most members did not want. I can hear the howls of protest already.

If the principle is important in matters affecting only our economic life, how much more important is it in matters of government, which affect all aspects of our life? Yet this is what the NDP philosophy apparently advocates: majority views must prevail in ratification of contracts, but in government, views of special interest minorities legitimately may displace those of the majority.

Explain away that remarkable exercise in double-think, you NDP'ers.

Navy League for Whitby ?

Whitby may soon have its own branch of the Navy League of Canada and its own Royal Canadian Sea Cadet corps.

A public meeting is to be held in the Whitby Centennial Building, 416 Centre Street South, at 8:00 p.m., Sunday. Full information about the proposal will be given at the meeting and the program will include a film presentation.

The meeting has been organized by a steering committee of interested citizens. Encouragement has been received from Gard Campbell, president of the Oshawa Navy League, and from John Goodwin Deputy Reeve of Whitby. The Royal Canadian Sea Cadets (RCSC) is a Canada-wide Cadet organization administered by the Canadian Forces under the authority of the National Defence Act and sponsored by the Navy League of Canada.

The Navy League of Canada, with headquarters in Ottawa, is composed of public-spirited citizens whose primary object is to develop good Sea Cadets. The League has Provincial Divisions throughout Canada, and branches where Sea Cadet Corps are established.

To become a Sea Cadet, a boy must normally be between 13 and 18. However, boys who have reached their 12th birthday by September 1st and are in grade 8 also qualify. Younger boys (10 to 12) may become Navy League Cadets and provision may also be made for girls in these age groups to enrol as "Wrenettes".

Pray for the mind behind the button

Their's not to reason why . . .

Their's but to do or die.

This was the soldiers' creed as portrayed by Alfred Lord Tennyson in his heroic poem "Charge of the Light Brigade".

On Remembrance Day, we are asked to remember and pay tribute to the valiant young men (They call them "Boys" in peacetime) who were killed in two World Wars.

To the majority of today's population, those under 40, the significance of the day and the ceremony may be a little hazy.

As the numbers of veterans of the first World War dwindles, as old soldiers fade away, names such as Vimy Ridge, Paschendale, Ypres, the Somme, Dardanelles, slip quietly into the mists of history. And it will not be too long before they are followed by Dieppe, Arnhem, El Alamein and Monte Casino.

What then must these "Warless generations" remember on this day?' Young people to whom war means either Vietnam — a controversial episode on the other side of the world; or tall tales told by paunchy veterans in Legion Halls.

Who were these men and why were they killed — what were the wars all about?

Take World War I, when over five million young men of the allied forces were killed, obstensibly to thwart the imperial ambitions of one nation in Europe. Fifty-two percent of those who went gaily off to enlist were either killed or wounded.

Next, there was World War II in which the allied forces lost ten and one half million men . . . the loss on both sides being fifteen million. That is more men than are currently living in the whole of Canada.

The chosen symbol of Remembrance Day is the Flanders Poppy, which bloomed in the battlefields of Belgium and France in the first World War. This, plus the fact that the majority of the casualties were suffered by the military rather than the naval or air forces leads this day to be remembered in the main as a soldiers day.

The young men who went out to fight were civilians who were taught to "Shoot and salute" as General Pershing put it. They volunteered or were conscripted to fight for an ideal "The defence of the homeland" "The defence of freedom" "The liberation of oppressed peoples" etc. and; in the early days of both wars, many volunteered to escape the soul destroying boredom of unemployment during an economic depression.

Few, if any went out to "Die for their country". Even the most professional of soldiers, while recognising the fact that violent death is an occupational hazard, does not intend to die — the fight is for survival. If and when the final moment comes, he might well ask "Why me ?" Life is very dear to a young man in his early twenties or late teens, and, American War Movies notwithstanding, there is no glamour in war. Modern weapons of destruction do not leave a dying man much opportunity for heroic speeches before he passes on.

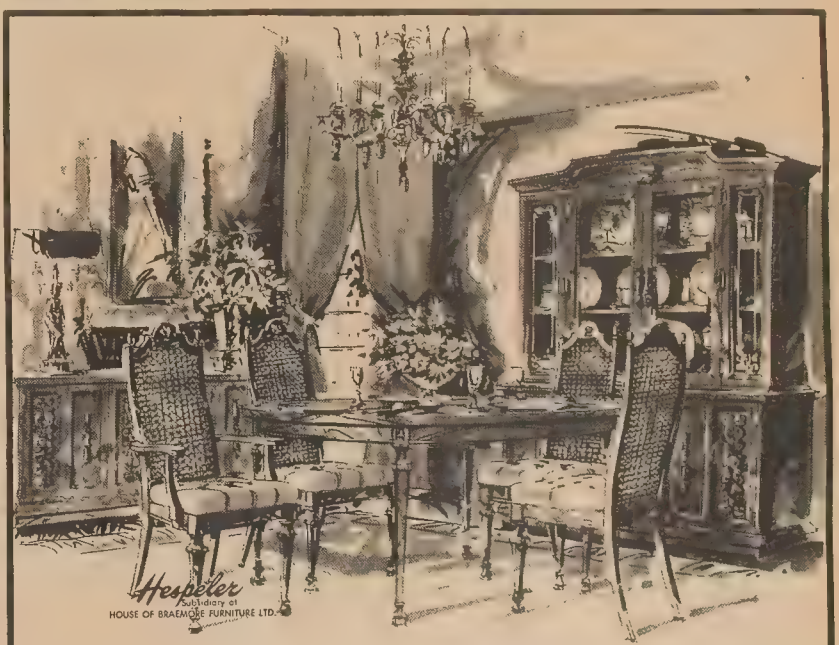
These men were ALL heroes, the majority unsung, and they did the job they had to do under the most bestial of conditions, but at the end, the eternal question persists . . . Why ?

The foot soldier in the field is the final pawn in a gigantic chess game, he is moved by orders passed down a chain of command from the top.

In both conflicts we remember today, the allied forces went into battle with a high command consisting of seasoned veteran military commanders. Men who throughout the peacetime years had quietly carried on their military arts with the dedication and loyalty as befits a professional soldier.

Regrettably, many of these generals lived in the past. Their tactical thinking was tied to the victories won on the battlefields of some previous conflict or in theory in the sandboxes of Military Staff College.

The result, when faced with an enemy who did not play by the rules, whose armies had evolved new methods of making war with new and more deadly weapons, was monumental tactical blunders such as the senseless slaughter at Ypres. These blunders resulted not only in a tragic loss of life, but also a tactical loss of ground which would cost yet more lives to re-take.



Such was the military hierarchy in both wars that a face-saving period of time had to be observed before these hidebound military commanders could be relieved of their commands and replaced by younger, more flexible men. During this period which military protocol demanded there were usually more blunders and more needless loss of life.

You cannot fight a war without losing lives, and the higher the command, the more men you will send to their deaths. Fortunately, the military staff college have progressed a long way since the days of Heidelberg and sabre scars. Yet, I can recall vividly my shocked feeling of disbelief when, at a NATO conference in 1964, I heard a high ranking staff officer announce that "The chaps would be alright in a nuclear attack if they were dug in". In six years, this senior officer may have been retired

'70 fashions at Kinette fashion show

By Jo Aldwinckle
women's editor

Jumpsuits, rib-knits, longer skirts with revealing slashes, matching hose or complimentary high boots are all in the mood for NOW.

They all came to the fore in the "Fashions for the '70's" show presented by the Kinette Club of Oshawa t the Kin Centre with Annabelle Spencer commentating.

Reptile printed fabric cropped up several times in soft blouses. Once, worn under a coverall type jump suit in cocoa brown double-knit and again under a long midi vest in black "wet look".

The poncho, this time in grey and red stripes with red fringe was a smart partner for grey pants and a red, skinny rib sweater.

The "wet" look made a gleaming appearance in a red trench coat with matching boots and added lustre when used as a white trim to black and purple pant suits.

Also in the "gleaming" category was a white, pearlized leather coat with shawl collar, cuffs and a three-tier skirt of Mongolian lamb with eyelashes of monkey fur.

Will women wear the gaucho pants? They obviously liked the navy blue ones worn with a battle-dress jacket. Chain belts and richly colored silk scarves are the smart things to wear with the new fit and flare pant suits and longuette dresses.

Flattering red fox fur is back. It bordered a window-pane check coat in rust and cream, wrap style, over-the-knee length to meet pale beige boots.

For drama, nothing beats the maxi. Complete cover-ups were an ankle-length red coat, buttoned in silver with hood and cuffs edged with Canadian lynx and a flowing, black monk's cape, hooded and lined.

The mini has not faded from the scene. In rib-knit horizontal stripes, white on burgundy, it was shown in vest and skirt with a white, turtle-neck sweater and also as a clinging little dress in black cire.

For after-five, pants and tunics in metallics and lurex will provide evening twinkle. Models shown were long-sleeved, on simple lines and sometimes hooded. Quilted satin skirts, mid-calf to ankle length teamed with tailored or frilly blouses for semi-formal wear and the fun thing is the gypsy or squaw look in flounced cotton with lots of beads.

New styles in men's wear were introduced by Bob Oliver. The fall shades are mellow neutrals, soft greens and blues, beiges, golds and browns. Jackets and pants mix and match.

A beige double-breasted, three to two button jacket showed accentuated flaps on the pockets. A grey single-breasted model had scalloped flaps, inset half belt and yoke at the back.

For funseekers, a grey-green Norfolk jacket was teamed with green trousers and a gold, linen and wool jacket, three-button single was a smart topper for cocoa brown pants.

Topcoats in houndstooth or herringbone tweeds were double breasted, buttoning three to three with incurved seaming. A soft-as-suede sports coat was made of pigskin given a special treatment to make it supple, yet durable.

The men's fashions were presented by Doug. Wilson's Men's Wear, the hair styling was provided by La Villa from active service, but this mentality lives on into this nuclear age.

When wars have started in the past, the initial military blunders though regrettable, have been partly rectifiable by newer more flexible commanders.

However, modern intercontinental nuclear warfare does not differentiate between soldier and civilian, and these packages of instant destruction carry a horrendous finality, which, once launched are beyond recall.

May we hope and pray on this Remembrance Day that the mind behind the finger hovering over THE BUTTON is a flexible and enlightened one. LEST HE FORGET!

Before another week slips away I want to extend long-overdue congratulations to Mrs. G.D. Conant on her recent investiture as Commander (Sister) in the Most Venerable Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem in Canada.

The investiture took place in the ballroom of Government House, Ottawa, October 24 at 4 p.m. and was conducted by His Excellency the Governor-General, the Right Honorable Roland Michener, Prior of the Order of St. John in Canada.

With ceremonial dubbing (a touch of a sword blade on the kneeling recipient's shoulders) three officers were created Knights and 137 others received the decorations of their new titles.

As Commander (Sister), Mrs. Conant received the white, eight-pointed cross of the Order (representing the eight Christian virtues) on a black silk ribbon which the Governor-General put over her head and about her neck. She also received the accompanying medal.

The investiture was sanctioned by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II who is Sovereign Head of the Grand Priory of the British Realm.

The history of the Order is a long one. A Hospital was founded in Jerusalem in 1010 A.D. by the Knights of St. John. Noble blood was a requisite to knighthood in the Order. Wars and persecutions drove the charitable Order first to Cyprus, Rhodes, then Malta and thus, in time into the protection of the British Crown.

The first Canadian Division was formed in London, Ontario, in May, 1909.

A sense of urgency, soon after the outbreak of World War II prompted Verna Conant to join the Oshawa Nursing Division of St. John Ambulance Brigade. Others followed her lead.

Dr. Archer Brown instructed the women in First Aid and Home Nursing. In December 1939 Mrs. Conant received her certificate. The examiners were Dr. B.A. Brown and Dr. W.H. Stanley.

She studied for and obtained her teacher's certificate and became the first superintendent of the Oshawa Nursing Division which she organized and which received its charter in 1939.

With the late Mrs. R.S. McLaughlin she organized lectures on Air Raid Precaution in Centre Street (now E.A. Lovell) School in March 1941 and in June of that year was appointed Lady District Officer.

In this capacity she travelled as far as North Bay, Timmins and South Porcupine speaking, recruiting and officiating at inspections.

In June 1942, she was appointed Honorable Lady President of Ontario, which presented a heavier work load with emphasis on Civil Defence.

In September 1939 the Brigade in Ontario consisted of 19 Divisions, only 14 of which were really active; nine were Ambulance Divisions and the rest Nursing Divisions.

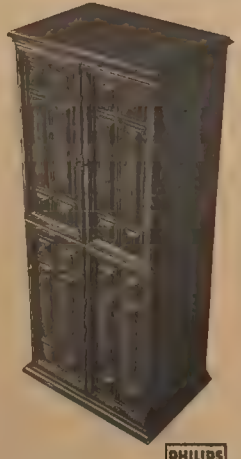
At the end of 1945, there were 52 Ambulance Divisions, 52 Nursing Divisions, eight Cadet Ambulance Divisions and 14 Cadet Nursing Divisions.

The total force in Ontario stood at 3,485 trained personnel. During the war, five hundred had enlisted in the Armed Forces Overseas.

Oshawa maintains five divisions: the General Motors Division, the Ambulance Division, the Nursing Division, the Male Cadet Division and the Girls' Division.

It provides two ambulances, several mobile units with tents, beds, and necessary equipment for first aid. All divisions train for an annual inspection.

The latest acquisition is a casualty collecting unit, a trailer equipped with bunks for four patients, a stove and refrigerator, electrical outlets and storage cupboards and an inhalator.



"There is as much need for trained personnel today as there was during the war," Mrs. Conant said. "Everyone should know the first thing to do in an emergency. Canadians have felt immune to violence and disaster. We know, now, that that is not so."

Daughter of a senator and widow of an Attorney General and Prime Minister of Ontario, Verna Conant has been indefatigable in her work and leadership, in Oshawa and beyond, for Canada, — "the true North, strong and free . . ."

Every time I meet Margaret Shaw, the controller, I discover a new Margaret Shaw.

Take Monday night as an example.

Here I am, just simply on my way to a meeting of the public works committee.

Somewhere something gave me the idea it was to be held in a room on the third floor of the Rundle Tower. So instead of parking in the city hall basement garage — for which I have official permission, providing it's after hours and I don't park in anyone else's spot, which I did one night and the spot turned out to be that of a high ranking police officer who failed to appreciate the humor of the situation, which at this point is neither here nor there, thus ends of bracket — well, instead of parking in the basement garage, I parked in the area just north of the Rundle Tower, reserved for those on official city business.

Alderman Gibson's Chevvy II was parked there too, and I felt if he can, so can I. But if it took Alderman Gibson as long to get to his meeting as it did me, I'd say he lost five pounds in a rush just as I did. (Or do these aldermen have a key to the tower.) That's right, the tower was locked.

But lucky me, I discovered that fancy concrete sidewalk around the city hall building that winds its way between the tower part and the old police station.

That's where Margaret comes into the picture.

Just as I had finished peeking into the station windows for my weekly police check, Mrs. Shaw's little Buick pulled up to the garage door. I waved hi. She waved hi. I walked in while she drove in.

And then she led me by the hand, well, in a way, and took me through a labyrinth of rooms and hallways and doors and swing until we got to the second floor and more familiar territory.

Margaret is a member of the works committee, I knew, so just follow the leader.

We stopped by the controller's office. I hadn't been there for some time. Somehow it looked very dreary and cold.

Margaret agreed, saying she wants to put in some drapes and things "if I'm elected again." (And that means, to me at least, there will be drapes in that little office sometime in the new year.) Anyway, apart from the cold look of the place, Controller Shaw said the office is so open there isn't even a place where a girl can pull up her girdle. Well, I do call that lack of privacy.

Anyway, Margaret helped me find the works committee meeting. We tried one door. Nobody home. Then we asked an Oshawa Times reporter. He led us astray. Then we checked again and finally found the committee of Aldermen McNeely, Humphreys and Pilkey.

Margaret sat down.

I sat down.

The man from CKLB said something to Margaret and she got up and left.

A while later she came back.

And then, among other things, I found out at the works committee meeting that the other day some stupid painter working at the Oshawa Shopping Centre dropped a bucket of paint in Margaret's direction.

How did that come out?

Well, Margaret asked Works Commissioner Crome about the city's safety inspectors and how often they check projects, for example the shopping centre one.

And while Crome was explaining in his usual carefully documented way, Margaret was telling us about this bucket of paint falling, and getting splashed and going to the centre office.

I'll bet one thing. Whoever got an earful there got more than I got the last time I made fun of Margaret's wig.

And I had promised NOT to write a whole column about you again, Margaret!

Christmas Cheer Fund needs help from friends

With Christmas just a little over seven weeks away, children are busy searching catalogues and making Christmas lists but there are many parents in Oshawa who know they won't be able to fulfill their children's wishes.

Over 1,000 people last year were helped by the Christmas Cheer Committee to have a happier Christmas, a Christmas complete with turkey dinner and toys for the children.

The Christmas Cheer Committee is composed of representatives from various organizations such as Salvation Army, children's aid, churches, and welfare organizations. The committee was formed to pool the resources of all these organizations in order not to duplicate the work done.

The work of the committee is complicated this year due to new provincial legislation which makes the names of municipal welfare lists confidential. Previous years recipients were taken from the welfare rolls.

This year the Committee is going to have to depend on receiving references from nighbours and relatives of needy people. A telephone will be installed after November 23 to receive calls regarding receiving baskets.

The Christmas Cheer committee receives most of its funds from the Oshawa-Whitby United Appeal and of course, the actual allocation made for Christmas Cheer will depend on the overall success of the present campaign.

Last year over 150 parcels and 600 cheques were distributed. The baskets include a meat voucher, canned food, fruit and vegetables and a toy for every child.

Cheques are distributed to single persons or couples, old age pensioners, widows. Last year the amount of the cheques had to be reduced from previous years because the United Appeal did not meet is objective.

Blizzard, we're ready

Only the next big blizzard will really tell, but for now the word is that we are ready.

The city's works committee briefly reviewed snow clearing standby systems Monday night, and the word from Works Chief Fred Crome is that we're as ready as we'll ever be.

At an extra $17,800 "protection money" we've got workmen standing by and on call, in case Mother Nature once more hits us in a mean way.

The winter before last, the city's works department came under severe criticism when a snow storm crippled Oshawa to some extent and crews were unable to cope.

Standby's are arranged depending on weather forecasts and Commissioner Crome and his people are satisfied they have reduced any risk of another crippling snowstorm satisfactorily.

CONTRACT

Local 938, General Truck Drivers' Union has ratified a contract which would see truck drivers in Oshawa earning $5.06 an hour at the end of a three-year contract, retroactive to last July.

FIRE

The Bo Peep Restaurant at the Oshawa Shopping Centre was damaged to the tune of about $14,000 when a fire ripped through the restaurant, gutting the kitchen. Firemen stopped the blaze before it could spread to the rest of the building.

CONSTRUCTION

City council has authorized construction work at a cost of $2,481,175. The Corbett Creek Pollution Control Centre will take up $681,175 of the budget. The addition to the Harmony Creek Pollution Centre will cost $1,800,000.

$28,000 for kids to drop in Less then eight months after its official opening the Oshawa Drop-In Centre is slated for big expansions, both in physical size and budget

Last week City Council approved a $28,000 budget for 1971 (as compared to $600 for 1970) and turned over the entire Legion Building to be used by the Drop-In Centre

In presenting the brief to city council Rev. Tom Gemmell expressed the view that the complex society producing social disorder and protest is becoming a way of life and anticipates the number of alienated and semi-alienated youths would increase and not decrease in Oshawa as well as the rest of Canada

"We must increase our physical and human resources in order to work successfully with the number of youth in need tomorrow," says Rev. Gemmell, chairman of the advisory board of the centre

The advisory board initially presented a proposed budget of $36,580 but the Parks, Property and Recreation committee who reviewed the brief made cuts in certain areas.

The request for an assistant director, to be paid $7,200 was deleted and another $1,500 was chopped from the office supplies budget.

Since the opening of the present centre from two to 500 youths between the age of 14 and 21 a day have been attracted. Saturday evenings are the largest drawing card Saturday and Sunday afternoons attract the smallest number of youths, thus providing a better chance for adult/youth interaction.

Adult volunteers attend the centre not as an authority figure but in the hope that their relationship with the youth will develop a healthy social atmosphere.

Volunteers are chosen very carefully with the prime pre-requisites being an ability to relate to youth, flexibility and the ability to participate in an unstructured setting. Above all, they must not judge the youth or assess their behaviour or attitudes as different from their own.

Peter Valks, 24, is typical of the adult volunteers who give their time to the Drop-In Centre.

Peter has been a volunteer since the opening of the centre and puts in an average of 10 hours a week. This includes attending volunteer meetings.

He would like to see the centre develop into a community project.

"People should become more interested in this project. We need more volunteers but of course they must be concerned and be willing to understand. Many of the volunteers are quite willing but they just can't reach the youth."

The brief suggests hiring a full-time director for the centre, someone with a Master of Social Work preferably who can relate to the youth and offer counselling at the same time. His salary is to be $10,000.

While the Centre does not have a full-time counsellor now, figures indicate that close to 500 youths, since the opening of the centre, have received some type of counselling. Some have been referred to hospitals, doctors, mental health clinics and family servicing.

The youths who attend the centre seem to have in common matters related to length of hair, style of clothes, attitudes toward the academic life etc.

Don Jackson, 16, comes to the centre during all his free time. He says he comes to relax and get away from other obligations. He likes to feel free to play cards or sit and talk with his friends in a congenial atmosphere.

He is especially happy to hear of the acquisition of the entire building. "We need rooms where people can go and sit and not be disturbed by the music in the other room."

He says there are many kids interested in drama or arts and crafts and is looking forward to having the assistance of qualified persons teaching in these fields.

A total of $3,000 has been set aside to pay resource people who will come in at different times during the year to offer professional guidance

AFTER HOURS

IT'S EASY, AFTER ALL... TUNING IN TO ENTERTAINING EDUCATION

Getting Channel 19 is easy when you know about UHF. UHF is not an invasion by extraterrestrials. It stands for Ultra High Frequency signals, which bring you the best television there is. Here are the ways you can tune in:

1. Take a close look at your set. If, in addition to your conventional dial selector, you have a second dial marked channels 14 to 83, this is your UHF selector. It's the one you've been wondering about since you bought the set, right? To bring in Channel 19 with this dial, you'll need a UHF antenna. It's not expensive. Your television service company will provide you with all the details.

With the UHF antenna installed, tuning in is simple. Just turn the conventional dial to the "U" between channels 2 and 13. Then tune the UHF dial the way you would any radio. There won't be any click, but somewhere between UHF channels 18 and 23, you'll get there. Then fine tune to fine entertainment and fine education.

2. If your set has only the conventional dial, you'll need both a UHF converter — about the size of a portable radio — and the UHF antenna. Consult your television service company for the details. Tuning thereafter is the same.

3. On the other hand, cable TV brings you Channel 19. If you have a UHF dial in this case, forget all about it. Instead, Channel 19 will be on the conventional dial, on one of the channels 2 to 13, depending on where you live. For additional information, check with your cable company.

4. For apartment viewers only: Check with the apartment owner to find out if your building is equipped with a UHF antenna. If so, you can receive Channel 19 by tuning in with your conventional dial. If not, you may be able to receive Channel 19 directly off air with a UHF converter or set.

Sounds confusing, doesn't it? It isn't, when it's at your fingertips.

"Farm team" of musicians

After extensive negotiations, the Oshawa Symphony Academy of Music has planted its roots into this city.

The Board of Directors of the Oshawa Symphony Orchestra Assocation, the Oshawa Recreation Department and the Ontario County Board of Education believe the Academy of Music will provide incentives for students to realize their greater creative potential in music. By co-ordinating the music in the schools and community, the Academy will encourage students and graduates to continue to enlarge their musical horizons. Skilled performers on the various instruments of the orchestra will be able to train in the Academy so they can gain a competent and qualified position in the Oshawa's Senior and Youth Symphony Orchestras.

This "farm team" of musicians is to ensure a dynamic future for the civic orchestra. In addition, students will have opportunities to hear leading Canadian musicians in person. Classrooms and studios suitable for the purpose of teaching, performing, composing and listening will be arranged through the Oshawa Recreation Department's community use of schools arrangement with the Boards of Education, while a permanent home is now being considered.

Dr. J. N. Lowes, the promoter and instigator in establishing the Academy said that, "Music recreates and exalts the mind. It composes the passion and affords strong pleasure."

The Director of the faculty will be Jacob Groob and the Academy will be divided into four (4) sections: String Department; Woodwind Department; Brass Department and Vocal Department. A series of nine (9) private half-hour lessons with any of the teachers will be $50. One may begin a series of nine (9) lessons at any time. The rate of progress will depend on the amount of hard work and love one puts into his studies.

Scholarships, bursaries and prizes are also to be awarded annually to deserving students in this new Academy of Music.

Information in regard to the Academy of Music may be acquired by writing to:

Mr. Peter Cekuta, Assistant Director of Recreation, Oshawa Recreation Department, or Dr. J. N. Lowes, Oshawa Symphony Assoc., 73 Centre St. S.

Students to help in election cablecast

Using the Canadian Radio and Television Commissions definition of local origination as a guide, the community college in Oshawa and Oshawa Cable TV have combined forces to produce a major location show.

Durham College, with more than 100 students enrolled in the communications arts course and production members of Oshawa Cable TV Channel 8 have combined forces to go live during the civic election to give the viewers in Oshawa, Bowmanville the opportunity to see a civic government elected.

The show will be televised from the city council chambers using four cameras and two video tape recorders along with a crew of 25 personnel to run it. The show will then be transmitted via microwave to the distribution site and sent out to close to 11,000 homes.

Three new exhibits at art gallery

On Tuesday evening, November 3rd, an exhibition called "William Roberts, a Retrospective — 20 years of Painting", was officially opened at the Robert McLaughlin Gallery. The art interested public of Oshawa will remember Bill Roberts from the watercolour demonstration that he gave at the Gallery last year. Bill arrived from his home up near the Bruce Peninsula, expecting to give a demonstration to 10 to 20 people and well over 150 were crowded into the room to hear this quiet gentle man talk about his art and finally be persuaded to put brush to paper.

In the catalogue on William Roberts, there are two sentences at the very end of the text. One states "To Carl Schaefer, who showed me that watercolour painting was a gentlemanly endeavour and well worth the struggle." - - - "To the late John Martin, R.C.A., who introduced me to Canadian history and the beauty of simple things." These two statements by William Roberts are a key to this exhibition of 20 years of his painting. I personally consider him the best watercolourist in Canada, and possibly as proof of that I own three of his works myself. This exhibition has been organized by the Art Gallery of Brantford

Gallery hours are Monday to Friday 12 - 5 p.m.; Evenings 7 - 9 p.m.; Saturday 10 - 5 p.m.; Sunday 12 - 5 p.m

Cable TV this week

By James Sabyan

Last Thursday a crew of three people struggling with equipment did some location filming in the Ontario Regiment's Officer mess. In this dignified and very masculine room two tapes were completed with veterans from both world wars.

Col. R.B. Smith, a well known and leading citizen introduces the world war 1 segment followed by two men who took part in some of the battles of that mud drenched conflict. For once the job truly became enjoyable as the old boys clustered around the camera and in a way that is typical of our senior citizens expressed remarks about the way we were doing things. Even the two old sweats from that war that did appear were refreshingly candid.

They carefully listened to the direction and then on cue they took off. It's an experience to watch this happen, the two of them suddenly reverted to young men again as they carefully reconstructed those years. What was even more dramatic was the support given the two by the rest of their friends They all clustered around to give their moral support and their presences at that filming was the triggering device that made this portion of the show so successful.

The world war II portion is lead off by Harry Millen who should know what's what on that one. Harry talks about Sicily and Italy. Peter Brouwer is covering the liberation of Holland and the Polish Vets will have their representative describe the Polish contribution to the war effort

The complete November the 11th package runs close to two hours and it's all local

Thursday at 7:00 p.m. a new recording star, Bev Marie will sing songs from her recent album of country and western music

She wrote quite a few of the numbers and even added a few of Johnny Cash's big ones

The travelling Hans, who has just recently returned from an Africa trip where he watched the animals of that country in their natural state and came back with a bundle of photos, has been after us to get these pictures on the air. He gets his chance next Tuesday at 7:30, his new time slot

Sure, your husband is great and you love your kids. But it is that time of year when "tired" seems to be the only word in your vocabulary. Don't be discouraged. It's an affliction which strikes each year about this time in near-epidemic proportions.

So "getting away from it all" is just not in the cards. What can you do to bounce back?

Here is how you can engineer a break in the routine and add a few bucks to the family budget at the same time.

Run a classified ad, offering for sale some of the valuable but seldom used items around the house. Golf clubs, furniture, appliances, bicycles, power tools, you name it. A classified ad will help you sell anything.

A lot of nice people will call in response to your ad. You will meet them when they come to look at the item or items you are offering for sale.

It's a great way to break the monotony and pick up some unexpected extra cash at the same time. Oh yes, the cost of the ad is very low, and it is easy to get it into the paper.

Generals lose two

Winning streak ends for Oshawa

By Jim Bishop

The Generals two-game winning streak came to an abrupt halt on the weekend as they ran head first into a red-hot St. Catherines Black Hawks in a home and home series.

In the game at the Civic Auditorium on Saturday the Generals made some sort of a game of it as they were defeated 6-3. They were only outshot 29-24 but the superior fire-power of the Hawks told the story. Clyde Simon scored two for the visitors and singles went to Bryan McKenzie, Dave Paye, Don McCulloch and Glen Chickello. For Oshawa, Gerry Methe, Gary Mahon and Terry O'Reilly handled all the scoring.

Dominated

On Sunday, the Black Hawks completely dominated the match at Garden City Gardens. Marcel Dionne scored goal number 21 and added four assists to pace the home club. These points gave Dionne, probably the finest player in junior hockey in the country, a league-leading 41 points in only 14 games. For the home team Bob McMillan and Bryan McKenzie each scored two goals and singles also went to Bob Peppler, Clyde Simon and Mike Bloom. Larry Thomson scored the lone Oshawa tally.

It would appear that the insertion of four new players in the General's lineup has not had enough time as yet to really pay dividends. The team is still struggling through the same problems there were before the trade. They are still having trouble getting the puck out of their own end and are being checked at the opposition blueline before they are set to shoot.

The club is definitely not getting enough shots on goal to become consistent winners and must vastly improve their line play.

The Generals now hit the road and are not home until November 14.

Crushmen take it on the chin too

By Jim Bishop

It was a bad weekend for both of Oshawa's OHA teams. Not only did the Generals get walloped by St. Catherines, but the Jr. B Crushmen took it on the chin down in Kingston on Saturday night by a count of 7 to 5.

The Crushmen have been badly hampered by injuries of late and are having trouble icing bodies for their games. Kingston, last year's league winners look like they will be right in the hunt for league honors again this season.

At this juncture it would appear to be mostly a three team race with Kingston, Peterboro and Oshawa having most of the strength.

For Oshawa, young Steve West continues to impress as he scored one goal and assisted on four others. Larry Hopkins scored three and Luc Charbonneau tallied the single to round out the scoring for Oshawa. Don Higgins had the hat-trick for the Frontenacs, Tom Reviori scored twice and the singles were scored by Gord Reviori and Bob Dee.

The Peterborough Don-Byes invade the Civic Auditorium this Friday night and will probably provide a spirited contest. There seems to be a tough rivalry developing between these two teams and they have provided some of the best hockey games seen in these parts

by jim bishop

Negotiations between the Oshawa Minor Hockey Association and the Neighborhood Association Sports Committee have been continuing for some weeks, until this past Sunday, over a couple of fundamental differences. At stake are the operation of bantam hockey and whether the NASC will be allowed to affiliate with the Ontario MHA. Now even these talk sessions have been cancelled.

The trouble apparently started when the NASC trod upon former OMHA property by forming a 14-team Bantam hockey league which had formerly been run by Minor Hockey. The NASC felt that they had the manpower and the ice time available to provide hockey twice a week for boys of bantam age.

Immediately after the NASC began to organize their league, the affiliation they had enjoyed with the Minor Hockey last year group was suddenly cut off.

So far, I have not been able to ascertain any good reason for this disenfranchisement.

At a meeting of the NASC bantam governors Friday, a number of proposals were adopted to present to the Minor Hockey people at a meeting on Sunday. One proposal that was well-founded was an offer to play an interlocking schedule between the two groups, for the balance of this season and to take a hard, long look at the whole situation and try to find an equitable solution for next year.

This appeared to be the only sensible solution to the whole mess but it was apparently not acceptable to the OMHA. This would seem to mean that approximately 200 boys in this age group will be ineligible for inter-city competition this season.

It would also appear that back of the problem is the fact that some of the adults governing the two leagues are playing personalities.

Again, I reiterate, the people involved in running the sports setups for our kids are well-meaning and dedicated, but they must do what is best for the kids involved, even if it means swallowing a bit of pride in some cases.

It is very difficult to paint a villain in this drama. Maybe the villain is involved on both sides of the issue. We all know the tremendous job that Minor Hockey has done in this city over a lot of difficult years, (including the years when we were all ashamed of Oshawa having no ice surfaces). But perhaps it is time that these people realized that there are other groups in the city willing to give of time and money to provide recreation for the younger set.

Again, perhaps the NASC could have delved more deeply into the feelings of the OMHA before they set out on their bantam program.

Whatever the outcome, however, the fact remains, that the kids of this city are the ones to be concerned about and should not be affected by any pettiness on the part of adults concerned.

Durham loses final ex game

By Jim Bishop

Durham College Lords lost their first game in four exhibition starts as they bowed to York University 6-2 Saturday at North Oshawa Arena before a large crowd. The Lords, hampered by injuries to key players took a one-goal lead at the 19-second mark on a tally by John Horton. Bill Stesawiuk tied it for the visitors at the 11-minute point before Dennis Homeniuk gave Durham a 2-1 lead at the end of the opening frame. The rest of the way it was all York. Glenn Sisman scored two unanswered goals in the second and in the third Paul Creer scored two and singles were added by Bill Neil and Barry Jenkins.

The loss ended the exhibition schedule for Durham and they now travel to Centennial College in Scarborough on Friday for a pair of games involving the basketball and hockey teams. The hockey game goes at 3:30 p.m. at Agincourt Arena and the basketball game will be played at the Centennial Campus at 8:00 p.m.

Last Wednesday both of Durham's teams travelled to Lindsay for a doubleheader against the Sir Sandford Fleming teams and were successful in both games. In basketball, Ted Harrison hooped 15 points for Durham as they defeated the SSFC team 53 to 43. Dwight Bradley had 10 points for Durham and Steve Ball and Terry Gibson had 8 each. Bob Burley scored six, Greg Rundle, 4, and Ron McLeod 2 points. In the hockey game, Durham spotted Fleming three goals before they woke up and came back to take a 9-4 decision. John Vandemeer had the hat-trick for the winners while Wayne Hodgson and Mike Cawker scored two goals each. Singles went to Mike Rose and Ken DeHart. For the Lindsay college, Bob Lavender, Brother of former Whitby Dunlop and Oshawa General Tom Lavender, tallied three times and the other score went to John Johnston.

Following is the home schedule for the Durham Lords. All home hockey games will be played at north Oshawa Arena at 8 p.m. and the basketball games will be played at Donevan Collegiate at 4 p.m. except for November 21, when the game against Kingston will be played at Eastdale.

November 21 Kingston vs. Durham; December 5 Loyalist vs Durham; January 30 Sheridan vs Durham; February 6 Mohawk vs Durham; February 13 Algonquin vs Durham; February 27 Cornwall vs Durham.

Baseball meeting

The Oshawa Legion Minor Baseball Association will hold its annual meeting on Sunday, November 22 at the Legion Hall.

The main reason for the meeting at this time is to elect a new slate of officers for next season, as well to give a chance for coaches and managers to air any beefs or to present any ideas for next season's program.

Plans are in the wind right now for a baseball "night", including a dinner, a clinic involving members of the Montreal Expos and a stag evening. This affair will probably take place around the middle of January.

Anyone interested in baseball may attend and will be made welcome.

Savage makes spectacular comeback

Current Ontario champion Paul Savage (Toronto Terrace) made two spectacular comebacks during the second day of qualifying play for the finals of the fifth annual Ontario Dunlop Invitational Bonspiel at Whitby.

The early morning draw saw him matched aganst Rich Vesey of Oshawa who had beaten him in the Royal Canadian Bonspiel 10 days previously. Savage was determined to reverse that decision but was trailing 6-3 after seven ends.

He took a big five at the eighth and they each took one on the last two ends for Savage to take revenge with a 9-7 score.

His second comeback was in the evening 12-ender. After nine ends he was trailing James Waite of St. Thomas by 7-4. Waite with former Brier skip Dr. Don Gilbert as his vice, was curling beautifully. It seemed to be settled, however, but Savage took the 12th to win 11-7.

In the afternoon slot, Savage had beaten Bob Dickson of St. Georges by 11-5.

Tense finishes were the order of the day. The other three-game winner to qualify for the first event in the Dunlop finals, Ted Clarke of Bayview, took a fraction-of-an-inch decision at the 13th end, to win 7-6 over Harry Sheldon of Unionville. At the same time former Brier skip Jake Edwards of Kingston booked his berth in the finals with an extra-end victory over David Salmon of Avonlea. Edwards was down 7-5 after 11 ends with three blanked. He took two at the 12th and then won the extra end to finish 8-7.

Paul Savage, current Ontario champion (right) and David Phillips sweep a stone past the hog line in a cliffhanger match against Oshawa's Rich Vesey. Savage showed exciting curling form during the second day of the Dunlop Bonspiel. Vesey had defeated Savage two weeks ago in the Royal Canadian Bonspiel, but the youthful Terrace -Toronto curler took his revenge with a 9-7 score.

Ted Clarke is a newcomer to eastern Canada from Regina and is obviously going to be a powerful feature in Ontario curling. He has taken over a skip of the Bayview rink led until this season by Bill Creber, who has had to leave competitive curling for business reasons. In the morning draw, Clarke beat Jake Edwards of Kingston 7-4 and took Dr. Mike Cassels of Hamilton by 6-5 in the afternoon.

In addition to Savage and Clarke returning to Whitby for the first event of the Dunlop finals on Saturday, November 21, Sheldon and Waite, having won their first two games will return for the third event. Jake Edwards and Bob Harris of Unionville, who both lost their first game but won their second and third games, return for the fourth event.

Local curlers did not fare as well this week as they did on the opening day, but competition was of a far higher standard. Rich Vesey played by far the best of the local entrants. Following his unsettling loss to Savage in the morning, he came back to beat clubmate Charlie Warner by 9-4 in the afternoon and then lost a last-rock decision to Bob Harris of Unionville in the evening decider.

Warner had earlier lost to Bob Dickson of St. Georges while the other local entrant, Jack Naylor, Oshawa, lost six-four to Gary Weisz of London in the morning and 9-4 to Bob Harris in the afternoon.

Local rinks were: Bill Holden, Dave Taylor, Bob Walker, Rich Vesey; Wayne Han, John Sexton, Bob Johahnson, Charlie Warner; Don Campbell, Rod Wiltshire, Jack Tisdall, Jack Naylor.

Play continues next Saturday with 16 rinks in two draws.

Games Played Nov. 8 1970.

Football over for area teams

The Central Chiefs were defeated by Quinte High School last week and put an end to any aspirations Oshawa had for a COSSA title.

Central won the right to enter the Eastern playoffs by defeating Dunbarton the previous week and were the only local team to make it. Central had been the underdogs all season long and had to come up with a superlative effort to best Donevan for the right to continue.

Luck ran out on them, however, as they were beaten 36-13 by a big tough Belleville squad. Belleville took a 13-0 lead before three minutes in the game had elapsed. Central fought back with a touchdown in the second quarter but the Quinte machine took over for the balance of the game.

It was a fairly successful season for Don McIlveen's Chiefs as they used a lot of inexperienced players and were forced to make a number of late-season changes. They won only one regular season game but came up with spirited efforts in the playoffs.

A number of players will be returning next season and Central could very well again be the power in local football that they were a few years back.

Simcoe Hall basketball

The Simcoe Hall basketball leagues continued on all three fronts this past weekend and there were some exciting games.

In the Biddy League, Avenues defeated Hurons 10 to 5. Wayne Pringle was the top scorer for the winners and Ron Landry led the losing Hurons. Sunnyside defeated Legion 27-17 and Bolahoods beat Firefighters 51 to 48 in Minor League play. Thank you for the food, says this Dutch journalist

By Simon Carmiggelt

Towards the end of the German occupation, from which the Canadians came to liberate us, the lack of food, especially in large cities like Amsterdam, had become so acute that people died in the streets. In a short story drawn from life and first published anonymously in the resistance newspaper Het Parool, I tried to express what this starvation did to the human spirit. That the Canadians rescued from this debasing torment still moves me now, more than twenty years later, to deep gratitude.

Hunger Winter 1944

After Fien had closed the door behind her and they had heard her old woman's tread laboriously going up the stairs, Juffrouw Wolsma turned to her husband and said: "There you are — nine o'clock, and she's off again."

The man, scarcely visible in the pale glimmer of light that came from the almost burnt-out candle, shrugged his shoulders. "She has only gone to get a drop of water", he said.

"That's what she says' " hissed Juffrouw Wolsma; then in a conspiratory whisper, "but I tell you, she's got something to eat up in her room. She's eating."

"What could she have to eat?" the man said in an attempt to pacify. "You have her ration card. She always eats with us, doesn't she? She can't have any stores left, you can be sure of that. After all, Fien isn't an ordinary lodger. We've known her for thirty years. She's in and out all day."

"Of course, what do you expect?" Her voice was scornful. "She comes here because I warm up the scraps, because there's still a bit of fire left. And light."

"That, you mean?" the man asked, with a nod in the direction of the candle, but the woman, whose voice was shrill and quivering with hate, cried: "I tell you, she eats up there. Every evening at nine. A drink of water — pah, you make me laugh! No — that friend of ours, whom we've known for thirty years, keeps back titbits for herself and sits up there guzzling them, while we sit here and starve." And when the man shrugged his shoulders, she flung out at him, "So you don't believe it? All right then, go and see for yourself."

Simon Carmiggelt, born in 1913, has been a newspaperman since he was 17. In 1936, after several years as a reporter, he began writing a daily column. During the Second World War he was one of the leading contributors to the Dutch resistance paper Het Parool, now a daily newspaper in which his column under the pseudonym Kronkel, has become one of the most popular features in the Dutch press. The story reprinted here appeared during the war in Het Parool, was smuggled to Great Britain and was published in the New Statesman.

He looked at her thin face distorted with anger, and a feeling of misery came over him: "After all . . . " he began, but she was moving over to the door; she pulled it half open and whispered in a voice which was both pleading and commanding: "Go on now, Henk. I must know."

He didn't himself know why he got up and walked past his wife out of the room. To get it over? Out of pity? Or did he too, in his heart of hearts, want to know what Fien was doing up there every evening? He walked up the dark stairs on tiptoe, but half-way up he stood still, suddenly overcome by the feeling that he really couldn't do it. Should he go back? But then the same old row would begin all over again. Suddenly tired, he sat down on one of the steps and put his hands over his face. How horrible everything was. The whole day it was eating, eating, always talking about eating. It began in the morning. Should we eat a piece of bread now or later? Usually Anna and he ate it all at the same time, but Fien preferred to keep hers. She began at eleven o'clock on her own. That irritated. Remarks were made. "So you've some left, have you? Well, we'll look on." This usually from Anna, and he never quite knew whether to slap her or to comfort her.

Somewhere in the distance a church-bell struck. Funny, sitting like this, on the stairs in the dark. H.J. Wolsma, town-hall cerk for thirty years, creeps up on his old friend to see if she isn't eating . . .

It was enough to make you roar with laughter — but it isn't easy to laugh on an empty stomach. He sat there dully, imprisoned in a grey despondency. What did that man say again, the one who stood next to him in the queue for cooking oil? "If you're going to die, you might just as well die well equipped." Well-equipped, just as if you were going camping.

But just now the thought of dying had become rather different than it used to be. It made you think of a nice sleep with a lot of blankets and not having to get up to cope with a stove which promptly swallowed up the few bits of wood scraped together with so much difficulty, with bread of which there was never enough, with meals after which, no more than an hour later, you found yourself just as hungry — in short, with the whole pitiful torment of trying to keep alive, which wasn't worth a damn anyway.

Above him a door opened and the stairs creaked under Fien's step. She didn't notice him until she was right on top of him. "What . . . Henk is that you?" she cried out, scared. "What on earth are you doing here?"

"Do you eat up there, Fien?" he asked heavily.

For some time there was silence. And then timidly, her voice came out of the darkness: "Yes."

Silence.

"But you mustn't do that, you know," he said kindly, as if he were correcting a child." We're all three in the same boat."

There was no reply. Then, tearfully, "I still had some gingersnaps."

"Oh", he said indifferently. The absurd confession left him cold. He only knew that Fien had also sat down on the stairs, three steps up from where he was sitting, and it struck him as ridiculous. But he couldn't laugh.

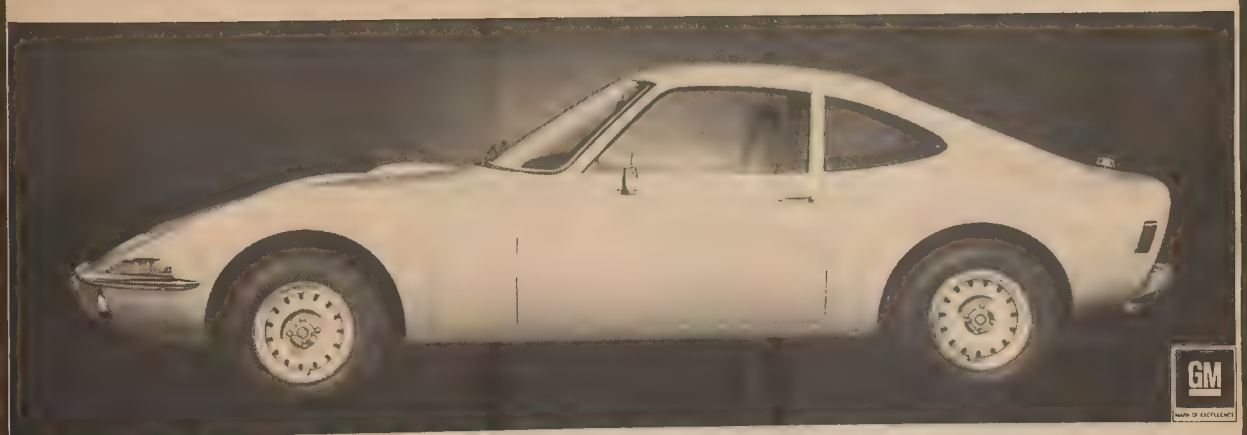
Down below the door creaked.

Anna.

"Henk", she whispered.

"Yes", he said.

"Did you see? What's she eating?"



The thin small voice of Fien said, almost sadly: "It was gingersnaps. I ought not to have done it. It was very wicked."

"Oh", said Anna, shocked. The man noticed that there was no trace of triumph in her voice

"Let's go", he said with an attempt at cheerful-

Whitby honors its most famous native

Sunday is Viscount Greenwood Day in Whitby.

Starting at 7 p.m., a public memorial service and display of Greenwood documents will be held in All Saints' Anglican Church, to honor the 100th anniversary of the birth of Whitby's most famous son.

The service will be conducted by Canon E. Ralph Adye, of Toronto, rector of All Saints' from 1930 to 1941, who corresponded with Viscount Greenwood in the 1930s.

The display of documents and photographs by the Whitby Historical Society features letters from Viscount Greenwood to Canon Adye, which led to the unveiling of the Greenwood family window in 1938 and the placing of a stone from Whitby Abbey, in Yorkshire England, in the church a year later.

Refreshments will be served during the public viewing of the historical display.

Thomas Hamar Greenwood was born in Whitby on Feb. 7, 1870. His father, J. Hamer Greenwood, was a lawyer and mayor of the town from 1872 to 1875.

Tom Greenwood attended the Whitby Collegiate Institute where he was elected Dux (leader) of the boys in 1887

Young Canada's Book week

Plays, films, puppets to bring kids "wings"

By Joan Cranfield

Young Canada's Book Week will soon be celebrated across Canada. Boys and Girls of Oshawa and the surrounding region will begin to celebrate this Saturday, and continue to do so throughout that week ending November 21. Parents, teachers and librarians will make this week the one in the year that is set aside to arouse the interests of boys and girls in books.

The aim of Young Canada's Book Week is the double one of interesting the children and reminding the adults of the many wonderful books available to them in our libraries. The slogan for Young Canada's Book Week for 1970 is SHARE READING LISTENING. YCBW is endorsed by the Department of Education in every province throughout Canada. To make adults aware of fine children's books special displays will be set up in the adult department of the McLaughlin Public Library and Beau Valley Home and School Association will have a display of books at their monthly meeting.

"Give us books," say the children; "give us wings' You who are powerful and strong, help us to escape into the faraway. Build up azure palaces in the midst of enchanted gardens. Show us fairies strolling about in the moonlight. We are willing to learn everything that we are taught at school, but, please let us keep our dreams". This quotation taken from the book "Books, Children and Men" by the eminent French scholar Paul Hazard makes adults pause and wonder how best they can answer this appeal. A book is many things. An adult must recognize the need and desire of children for books. The child's curiosity concerning all manner of things, his eagerness to share in the experiences of others, and his need to escape from his own limited environment lead him to books to find in them food for the mind and spirit.

Each year a generous patron lends the weight of his words and influence to the cause of more and better reading for more children. This year Pierre Trudeau, Prime Minister of Canada is the patron. His message reads as follows. "The books that I remember best are those I read when I was young. Jack London's tales of distant lands — "Call of the Wild", "White Fang", "Sea Wolf" created a whole new world in my imagination. They kindled a desire to travel which I have never lost. For young people the time flies by. There is so much to do and to see. Books will stir your imagination. They will enlarge your horizons. So do not miss the adventure of reading."

Mayor Bruce Mackey will officially declare Young Canada's Book Week open in the auditorium of the McLaughlin Public Library this Saturday, at 2.30 p.m.

To make children keenly aware of some special books and stories, programs have been planned at the Boys and Girls Library, 65 Bagot Street, Oshawa.

On Saturday, two one-act plays will be presented in the auditorium following the Mayor's greetings. "Many Moons" is the charming fantasy of the little Princess Lenore who wanted the moon, of the Court Jester, the Lord High Chancellor, the Royal Wizard and the Royal Mathemetician. The other play "Bag of Fire" is a delightful Chinese Story. All the parts in the plays are acted by children who are members of the Books Alive Club.

Tuesday, November 17 at 10.30 a.m. there will be a Story Time for Pre-School children and something special for their mothers.

Tuesday, November 17, a film will be shown at 4 p.m.

ness. "Let's go down to our blazing hearth, or is Anna coming to sit on the stairs too?" He got up and went down, suddenly strangely shy. Fien went up to her room. Ashamed perhaps. But a little later she too came down with a small bag in her hand.

"Here", she said. "There are still three left. But that's all, really."

They each took one and slowly began to eat.

ED MAKES IT THREE FOR MAYOR

A city looks at its future

In a meeting that lasted til the small hours of the morning, city council this week did some crystal ball gazing into Oshawa's future, and made major policy decisions on parks, recreation and even an Oshawa area jetport.

Highlights of council's Monday meeting:

- A comprehensive plan for the future development of the creek valley was approved in principle. The plan has been under study for a number of years, and it guarantees to future generations a green belt smack through the middle of Oshawa.
- Council decided to send off a wire to Transport Minister Jamieson, to put in a bid for a jetport location, north to north west of the city. Alderman Ross Gibson, in a special report, revealed the decision on the location of a jetport was about to be made by federal authorities, and on his recommendation council sent the wire.
- Alderman Ed McNeely, Chairman of council's major committee of public works, and a former city solicitor announced his candidacy for mayor
- Decision on a downtown parking garage was shelved for a couple of weeks so a special meeting of council can deal with it.
- A committee of Mayor Mackey and two aldermen was appointed to meet with "the heads of all Oshawa industry" to encourage local hiring, especially keeping in mind those who have been laid off from permanent jobs.
- The special council committee that initiated the current study of a new department of planning and development, was given the task recommend restructuring of "the civic administration" and council's standing committees.
- Mayor Mackey revealed there had been a secret meeting in Port Perry, Monday, by Ontario county municipalities, to discuss their strategy in view of Oshawa's merge-with-Whitby plan.
- Two "outside" candidates in the upcoming election, Mayoralty Candidate Peleshok and David O'Flynn, who's running for alderman, stuck it out to the end of the late council meeting. The others went home at various times during the evening. Some did not put in an appearance at all.

Details are inside this issue.

City bids for jetport

While most of Oshawa had long gone to bed Monday night, city council was listening intently to a far reaching report by Alderman Ross Gibson about the future of Oshawa.

And the future may well include Ontario's new jetport in the Oshawa vicinity.

Alderman Gibson, council's representative on the Central Lake Ontario Development Corporation, convinced council in a 20-minute presentation shortly before 1 a.m., to set the wheels in motion for a presentation to the federal department of transport, showing an area within a 20-mile radius of Oshawa as an ideal jetport site.

Council took Gibson up on his suggestion to fire off a telegram to Transport Minister Jamieson (yesterday) informing the minister of council's intention.

Gibson urged the quick move because of an upcoming meeting between provincial and federal authorities to decide on the jetport site. He said a number of areas in Ontario had put in bids, and that according to his information the Oshawa area would have an excellent chance of getting the jetport, in view of development plans for the total area east of Toronto.

The alderman's report which will be dealt with in detail in the next issue of This Week, also touched on future plans for satellite towns, a service corridor through the area east of Toronto and a shift in population to the east. He said the Development Association agreed in principle with Oshawa's "Central City" idea.

He added that a jetport would be the very thing that would stimulate the growth of the area between Toronto and Oshawa "more than anything." It was either a jetport or government growth incentives he said, with the latter being less likely than the airport.

"You can't have your cake and eat it?" It's Mayor Bruce Mackey during Monday night's council meeting intermission. The mayor is bowing out of the city's top post, but some sources have it he may consider running as alderman.

County officials seek to force reversal of merger study

Elected officials of Ontario County huddled in Port Perry Monday and decided to send a delegation to the Minister of Municipal Affairs to have the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study proceed as originally scheduled "without being delayed by further time consuming studies".

The resolution was passed in reply to Oshawa's motion last week to have a special study undertaken to determine the advantage and/or disadvantages of an Oshawa-Whitby merger.

Failing the acceptance of this proposal the representatives passed a further resolution that the committee and the warden be empowered to suggest an alternative to the minister "being regional government of Ontario County as it presently exists".

Warden Robert Timbers told This Week he interpreted it as meaning the County boundaries be left as they presently exist.

Oshawa made the motion for the merger study last Tuesday. The next day Warden Timbers called the special meeting of the elected officials held Monday night.

Mayor Mackey said last Tuesday's vote at the Executive Committee of OAPADS was democratic and charged "the integrity of the Study has been jeopardized if the County of Ontario ignores this democratic process by directly approaching the Minister of Municipal Affairs".

Mayor Mackey said Oshawa has no apologies for stating its position and would like to see the integrity of the study upheld.

"Oshawa is prepared to abide by the fundamental rules of the Study and hopes for a mature and continuing relationship amongst the participants."

Candidate for mayor

Peleshok would reverse Oshawa-Whitby merger plan

Tony Peleshok, 43-year-old General Motors specifications inspector last week became the second resident to announce his candidacy for mayor of Oshawa.

A life-long resident of Oshawa, Mr. Peleshok says the first thing he would do if elected is to reverse Oshawa's stand on regional government, thus eliminating the recommendation that Oshawa and Whitby amalgamate.

He considers himself somewhat of an expert on regional government, having attended all but one of the regional government hearings and bases his platform on his knowledge of the needs of other communities outside Oshawa.

"At this time I can't support Oshawa's decision for amalgamation. If in the future Oshawa can show good leadership to these communities then they will be clamoring to amalgamate."

He considers the regional government issue the prime issue of the election, but admits that the ordinary citizen is not really interested in it.

He states that involvement is the key in getting people out to vote and cites the example of the Drop-In Centre which, he says, through involvement got itself $28,000.

"If I can get the people of Oshawa involved in campaigning, involved in key issues in the community then I know that I can get 95 per cent out to vote and if elected then I can say I represent a majority of Oshawa."

Question period

One of the first steps Mr. Peleshok will take if elected is to demand that all department heads of civic government be present at Council meetings to answer questions from the public. He will introduce a question period at

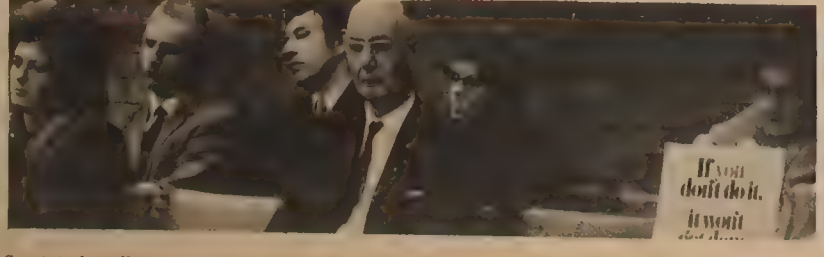
Mayor's committee to meet industry in job talks

Alderman John Humphreys called it "a popular pre-election type motion", but council still went ahead on Alderman Allan Pilkey's suggestion that Mayor Bruce Mackey and two members of the city's social services committee huddle with the heads of "all Oshawa industry" to talk about the lot of the laid-off worker.

When the meeting will be held, how or where, was not decided.

Pilkey's initial suggestion was a meeting between Mayor Mackey, two aldermen and General Motors, to encourage the firm to hire Oshawa workers laid off by Oshawa industry, "when the strike is over."

Pilkey said "many of these may end up on the welfare rolls of the city."



The alderman repeated four times that those laid-off were "taxpayers and good citizens of the city of Oshawa."

Controller C.E. McIlveen suggested the committee of Council approach Canada Manpower with the suggestion of a meeting.

Alderman Gordon Attersley wondered, "why single out GM? It would be presumptuous of us to tell them who to hire. Once this strike is over we'll need 2,000 jobs to get back to where we are." (The alderman did not elaborate on that statement.)

Alderman Humphreys said it was not council's business. "We could achieve the same thing through the UAW union."

Controller Margaret Shaw and Alderman Jim Potticarry both objected to Humphreys statement about a "pre-election type motion." Mrs. Shaw said "this meeting could help a great deal."

Journalist to decide on one of three posts

Robert Moon, Business Communications and Political Science teacher at Durham College, has announced he will run for mayor, board of control or alderman.

He said he will make his final decision on which position to seek within a few days. Several factors were involved, he said.

Mr. Moon, an author, former Parliamentary and war correspondent, editor and publisher, also said:

"I am certain I have the ideas, ability and experience to render excellent public service to the citizens of Oshawa. I ask for the opportunity to put these qualities to further use in helping make of this community a much better one.

"For almost all of my working lifetime, I have walked the halls of government in a professional and independent capacity. I have done this at civic, provincial, federal, overseas and United Nations levels, in Ottawa, Washington, London, Moscow, Kiev, Rome, Bonn, Jerusalem and elsewhere.

Robert Moon

"At the local level, I have been on the executive of municipal ratepayers associations, and have taken an active part in municipal improvement activities. I have been a member of the Durham College-Oshawa and District Labor Council anti-pollution committee. My research and writing on municipal issues have been published in Civic Administration, the national urban affairs magazine.

"The Lakefront and Oshawa Creek submission to city council of Durham Business Communications students, of which I am a teacher, is considered a model of community involvement. It was so recognized in the internationally respected Christian Science Monitor.

"While I have written under a byline for some of the best publications in the world, including the London Sunday Times and the New York Times, my longest associations have been with cities the size of Oshawa and with their problems.

"Although I was not of his party, and in fact of none, I was considered by former Prime Minister Diefenbaker to be able enough and honest enough to answer questions on certain Canadian issues put to me personally by former President John F. Kennedy. I was the only journalist introduced to Mr. Kennedy during his only Presidential visit to Ottawa.

"When the federal Department of Industry was estbalished, I wrote, edited and helped research a 100,000-word report on possible measures to help improve the furniture industry.

"My probing of economic issues has carried me throughout the European Economic Community, to the State, Labour and Agriculture Departments in Washington, to city halls and corporation offices in various Canadian cities.

"Other of my qualifications include: Press Gallery president, youth worker, outdoor camp founder and organizer, C.B.C. network editor and commentator, magazine editor, publisher, Kelmsley international travelling fellowship winner for Canada, university graduate in economics, author of four published books."

McNeely makes it 3

Alderman Ed McNeely made it a three-way race for the mayoralty Monday as he threw his hat in the ring in an unprecedented way — at a city council meeting.

Mr. McNeely, a lawyer, former city solicitor and recognized by most of his council colleagues as the leading alderman, is chairman of the public works committee and a number of committees that have managed to initiate drastic changes in the city hall scene.

The candidate is a law partner of former Mayor Ernest Marks, and he has been associated with a mayor of Oshawa as a city solicitor and alderman over a period of 16 years.

Mr. McNeely said he is aware the city needs strong and effective leadership in the next few years and that he was the man to provide it. "I'm prepared to spend the time and to make the effort," he said.

McNeely added he was "proud of this city, its people and its accomplishments, and it is in that spirit that I offer my services."

The alderman took his colleagues by surprise, including Mayor Bruce Mackey who is bowing out of the mayor's chair, because of family and business pressures.

Having recovered from his surprise, Mayor Mackey wished McNeely good luck. "You have been an able and conscienteous alderman," he said. His worship added that he had heard of people being "railroaded" into running for office, but he had never heard of someone coming in on a sidewalk issue. (McNeely made his announcement in the middle of an explanation on the works committee's new sidewalk policy which was reported in last week's issue.)

Tony Peleshok, another candidate for the mayoralty attended all of Monday's council meeting from the spectator's gallery. Michael Breagh came in during the meeting and left an hour or so later.

A number of aldermanic candidates also attended.

Meanwhile, Mayor Mackey has not said he will bow out completely, and some city hall sources feel he may offer his services as an alderman.

What kind of a mayor?

You'll recall the big want-ad we published on behalf of the citizens of Oshawa a few weeks ago. To say that we are disappointed in the number of potential candidates who have indicated they will run is an understatement.

The position of mayor, as we have said before, should not be considered by enthusiastic amateurs.

We can think of at least a dozen people in this community however who could be considered "pros" in terms of the mayor's chair. And we're not necessarily speaking of past performance in that particular chair.

Fortunate for Oshawa, the day was saved somewhat this week by the announcement of Alderman Ed McNeely, former city solicitor, to contest the mayoralty with the two new men who offered their services a week and two weeks ago, respectively. Of the present members of city council, Mr. McNeely, in our opinion, has all the necessary background experience in business as well as politics.

To our way of thinking, the most endearing attribute he possesses is a willingness to be tough when the situation dictates it.

It is hardly necessary for us to remind readers that in the context of regional government and more especially the proposed amalgamation with Whitby, there is a need for strong representation in Oshawa — at the top.

In this sphere alone, Ed McNeely would not let the city down.

We will hear more of the two "newcomer" candidates in the next couple of weeks.

For now, and as a first observation, we are glad Alderman McNeely has seen fit to offer his time and talents.

What kind of a Board of Control ?

Since by act of God and/or our enemies we are stuck with the Board of Control which has all too often been united in its efforts to frustrate the workings of council with a dedication never before seen, it is our opinion that this time around we throw out the whole lot and start again.

It can't be any worse than what we've been having over the last couple of years.

Which is not to say that certain members of the present Board have not given useful service in the past. However, we feel the time has come for the professional procrastinators to step aside and to let someone else have a bite of the cherry.

Perhaps the present members of the Board of Control could be tolerated as aldermen, but certainly, two of the members should go into honorable retirement.

What should we be looking for in the way of their successors?

In this case our position would be quite different from the one we adopt as far as the mayoralty is concerned. Providing we have a strong man as mayor, we can afford and encourage candidates from the ranks of widely different disciplines. Perhaps the candidates should be so divorced from the day-to-day nitty-gritty of city hall as to be able to look at the perennial problems from an entirely new standpoint.

We've already gone the route of experienced people on Board of Control and their record is, to say the least, shabby.

Let's face it, things must have fallen to a pretty low ebb with so many people demanding the demise of the Board of Control this year.

Perhaps this institution can be made to work. However, if we return more or less the existing group or type of individual, we cannot expect any changes for the better.

What kind of a council?

24 people running for alderman?

Wishful thinking, you say?

Perhaps. But we'd like to see 30 candidates.

That, as far as numbers is concerned.

Sofar, there is not enough varied competition for the 12 seats of alderman. In order to get the best men (or women) for the job, the electorate should be afforded the greatest possible choice of candidates.

However, we would remind potential candidates — especially those with delusions of grandeur and the power-hungry — that the job of alderman is a time-consuming job if carried out effectively. That's the way it is at this time.

It is something the new council should set about improving from the word go. Aldermen must learn to delegate their authority to the permanent staff at city hall (heaven knows, we have enough people on the job, but more about that at a later date) and use their time more profitably than by arguing and pursuing trifles.

Council business should be presented in such a way as to provide members of council with clear-cut alternatives, pointing up the probable decision council should make, instead of, as in the past, facts buried in reams of ancillery material which council has to wade through before it can become sufficiently aware to make a decision.

What kind of a school trustee?

Remember the Board of Education that got all puritanical and toffee-nosed a few weeks ago about the very idea of serving booze in a building under its jurisdiction?

We said then that it showed closed minds.

And at this point in time, it is good that we all consider whether we want closed minds to dictate policies that will affect our children's education.

Closed minds have no business on the board of education where enlightenment and tolerance should be the keynote.

Let's turf out the closed minds and make room for some candidates whose thinking is more in line with the times in which we live.

Since we've heard and continue to hear so much about the generation gap, it is not surprising since the average age of our school boards, as they are today, is on the wrong side of 50.

Perhaps the needs of our offspring would be better served by candidates in the 20 to 40 age group — people who are not as long removed from the education process as the present trustees.

Why your MP opposed the War Measures Act

In a letter to his constituents, Ed Broadbent, MP (Oshawa-Whitby) this week explains his opposition to the War Measures Act.

"Freedom is the essential element in a democracy," Broadbent reasons." We must therefore proceed with great care when we consider law which involves an abridgement of traditional liberties. Political terrorism must be stamped out but the means we select must not remove the freedom of innocent men and women."

"Like the vast majority of Canadians I recognize the real threat which the Front de liberation du Quebec poses to democratic and free politics in our country. The FLQ is a group of political criminals and as such they must be dealt with effectively and quickly. Our society cannot tolerate a group which in the name of a particular political goal, murders, kidnaps, bombs or commits other acts of terrorism.

"To deal with criminals of this sort is essential, but to do so by invoking the War Measures Act for the first time in Canadian history during peace time must require both an extraordinary situation and an explanation as to why only such action will suffice. As you know we already have laws dealing with murder, kidnapping, sedition, treason and conspiracy.

"Following the kidnappings of Messrs. Cross and Laporte, if the Prime Minister had spoken to the Leaders of the Conservative and New Democratic Parties informing them of the reasons for his deciding that there was an "apprehended insurrection" in Canada, I am sure both Messrs. Stanfield and Douglas would have supported swift action under the War Measures Act. This the Prime Minister did not do. He asked for support on faith.

"At the time both leaders of the opposition parties opposed this procedure. (Mr. Stanfield later decided to vote in favour of the government's decision). In my view they were absolutely right in so doing. Members of Parliament have a fundamental duty to protect the freedoms of Canadians. Therefore, we are obliged not to accept on faith an act which takes away freedoms — thousands of Canadians have died to protect in two world wars.

"The people of Canada through their representatives in the House of Commons have the right to have all the evidence and information concerning the F.L.Q. presented before them. So far, all the government has done is to present inuendos and vague comments about a state of "apprehended insurrection". The New Democratic Party insists that even in a time of stress, certain civil liberties must be protected. We recognize that society must deal with members of the F.L.Q. quickly. But this does not mean that the government has the right or the necessity to suspend all Canadians' civil rights. If our democratic society is to persist, we must maintain order and legality, but within the framework of justice and freedom.

"The government has now presented Parliament with a new Bill "to provide temporary emergency powers for the preservation of public order in Canada". We in the New Democratic Party have voted for this Bill on second reading for a number of reasons. First, the Government no longer refers to the situation in Quebec as that of a 'state of apprehended insurrection'. Secondly, the government no longer assumes authoritarian power through an order-in-council, but asks parliament to grant it extensive powers for a limited period of time to deal with the situation. Third, the new Bill extends the power of the police in the areas of search without warrant and that of the arrest of suspected or actual F.L.Q. members. But while extending police powers, the new bill does specify certain limits to them. We have proposed a number of important amendments to the Bill which will delineate more clearly and precisely the actual and potential powers of the police. Our aim is to ensure the administration of justice within our society. But we must also ensure that punishment and arrest are directed at those who are guilty, not at the innocent."

EDITOR'S NOTE: In next week's paper we'll take a look at the proposals made by Broadbent and his party regarding special emergency powers in peacetime.

Sir:

Well, when G.M. gets back in operation one thing we can look forward to is, higher prices on food, higher rents etc, and in two years time another strike and the G.M. Strikers running around with pails again, looking for a hand out when they claim the money is running low.

Personally I don't think the strike was necessary as I feel they were already doing better than any other group of employees and the lowered paid class has to pay the same for food, rent etc. as they do.

I believe it would have been better for them to stay out awhile longer except it won't take so long for the companies to make up the money that they are losing on the price war.

The price war will really be on now but it will be up, instead of down.

Edward Jules

Sir:

The Women of Canada do not need to practice abortions: We have the second largest country in the world, with a population of little more than 22 million people!

Cannot the women of Canada see that by their abstainance from childbearing they are leaving our country wide open for the sort of people who believe in large families — emigrants from foreign lands: Gradually native Canadians will be supplemented by these people, and Canada as we know it today will no longer exist!

Our country will be dominated by foreign elements, due simply to the fact that those mothers will bear children, knowing our Canada can contain and sustain them.

Mabel Saunders

Sir,

As a Trade Unionist (presently on strike) I was interested by your recent editorial ideas on aboloshing strikes. It is however, a pity that you did not specifically indicate what process would successfully replace strike action, without limiting the bargaining rights of either side involved in a dispute.

The penultimate paragraph of your article would lead one to believe that you are indeed, more than a little anti-Union despite your protestations of neutrality, but this is a fairly standard attitude for members of your profession and doesn't really affect the issue much.

Before it will be possible to dispose of strike action, as a method of accelerating the resolution of industrial disputes, we must first be in a position to replace it with a viable alternative. You don't appear to have that alternative (and in that you are not alone) or at least you dont illustrate it, but instead, you glibly suggest that Government should "step in" and "take the bull by the horns".

Both management and union would deeply resent and, I'm sure, actively resist any governmental meddling with the collective bargaining "assistance" in finding better methods of handling contractual disputes, be of the same calibre as that supplied by our Prices and Incomes Commission, then, any chance of industrial peace would swiftly go to Hell in a handbasket.

Perhaps, Mr. Brouwer, you are obliquely indicating some form of compulsory arbitration? This method too, has proven historically ineffective and is a system viewed with much mis-trust by both management and labour — particularly labour, which has had bitter experience with arbitration boards.

So, the fact remains, unpleasant and injurious though they may be, strikes have proven to be labour's most effective, if not only weapon in making its collective voice heard in managerial circles.

None of us like the strike — particularly we strikers — but, we are forced to adopt the philosophical attitude that striking is rather like visiting one's dentist, — you know it's going to hurt, but you don't know of any better way to get rid of the toothache!

Gord Fenton

Sir:

This is in reply to last week's letter by John Purcell:

Your last statement of written utterance, claims the only issue of your open letter to M.P. Broadbent was to have him justify, (by apologizing or resigning — this alone was unjust,) his stand concerning his obligation to his constituancy.

I believe Mr. Broadbent's own letter of last week, was in fact proof, and certain justification for his decision to vote against the War Measures Act.

Mr. Purcell, your simile concerning Democracy and a fruit tree, leaves much room for thought, not chills of coldness. Let me ask you this small question, "Would you yourself jump into a blazing furnace because the house was burning down?" I don't think you would, then again you just might. Well anyway whether you would or wouldn't does not excuse the Government for taking that same stupid leap when they imposed the War Measures Act. Think about that simile Mr. Purcell.

No one can support or bring forth JUSTICE, by creating that which in effect is principally unjust.

S. Simpson

Sir:

I hope our Mister Broadbent M.P. hero of the people, and his mule riding happy-go-lucky N.D.P. will be reading this. The present P.M. of Canada P.E. Trudeau has gotten as much criticism as I'.. stand for. In Quebec there was a kidnap and a murder commited, and still one person held hostage.

Then along comes our hero with his gut full of fresh food and a good night's sleep preaching his good word to the people. It seems to me our hero can not do a mans' job so he knocks it. So what if the people lose some rights for a while? It won't kill them.

If it saves the life of Mr. Cross they can strip me naked in public to check me. A life is worth more than a principle of democracy which is really a benefit.

I don't see why you are so offended by the fact Trudeau did not ask your permission to invoke the War Measures Act.

The Prime minister had a lot of guts and strength to do what he did.

Our MPs letter was as synthetic as worn out as Nylon automobile tires Don't give us Christ — he is a god, a super-natural. How can you compare Christ with humans? Also, don't compare Burke, Mill, and Churchill with yourself.

I have just turned 21 and I would not vote for the N.D.P. even if my secret ballot depended on it. I and many of my associates want a strong and couragious party.

thing. She had four children who couldn't take the time to drive fifty miles or so to see her even once a month, let alone write a letter to let her know she wasn't forgotten.

I don't want you to think I think I'm the best of daughters, there are times I should have been there and didn't make it, but it was never for longer than three weeks. My brother and two sisters visit every week and another brother phones home from the U.S. to find out how she is. My brother here is the biggest and the best thing that could ever happen to a mother and to all the other people there who think he's the greatest and he is. He talks to these people with a true interest and concern, he gives matches to a man who thinks such a little thing is wonderful. They are so starved for attention, they hold your hand and want to be kissed good-bye.

They try to talk about their children, to tell you they are coming soon, or maybe they are too busy, then they laugh to cover up the tears that start to come. They thank you for coming and beg you not to think they are crazy and that this is why their children or families don't come.

One woman has five children and enough grandchildren, so someone could visit. Her son said "You'll get taken good care of here mum." She hasn't seen him since. Could someone explain to me why all of a sudden after all the years a mother and father gives you, you can't drive a few miles even once a month?

I pray to God I'll never have to be in a Nursing Home, because from what I've seen by the majority of other people's children I can't say I won't be left alone too.

I feel better now that I have let you people know how I feel, and hope my letter does some good. This has bothered me for a long time, but when I was there Thursday, it all hit me quite hard and I couldn't keep quiet any longer.

Mrs. J. McMahon

Sir:

It is Christmas shopping time again and Christmas Seal Campaign time for the Ontario Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association. I would like to take this opportunity as President of the association to thank all the people of Ontario County for their support of our Association, and to the hundreds of volunteers who assist us.

Since the Ontario Government has relieved us of many of our responsibilities in the tuberculosis field, the association has been able to become more deeply involved in the respiratory disease area. We are currently providing research, education and testing in such areas as chronic bronchitis, emphysema and asthma.

However, we are not unmindful that TB still is a major infectious disease. In 1969 there were 1,286 new cases in Ontario — 744 males and 542 females and we are still assisting in rehabilitation and transportation to clinics and hospitals.

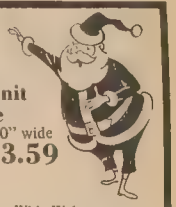
Community screening for these chronic respiratory diseases has shown an incidence to 10 percent of the population 18 years or older. Among cigarette smokers the incidence can jump to about 25 percent.

Our Association has only one appeal to the public for funds which is the annual Christmas Seal Campaign. As I mentioned previously, it is "that time" again and I hope that when you receive your Christmas Seals in the mail you will think about the services your Christmas Seal Association offers to this community and help us to help you.

Mrs. C. D. Russell
TB-RD Association

Sir:

Most loyal Canadians feel a sense of shame over the recent happenings in Quebec. It couldn't happen here! Now we look to the world like another banana republic, with the War Measures Act and soldiers carrying machine guns in Ottawa. What we often condemn south of our border has come to haunt us.



Why did it happen? All the pundits have an answer many blaming the rest of Canada for the unrest in Quebec. However one must look at the situation with objectivity and complete honesty. Ontario has been blamed, but no province has done more to assist Quebec. Ontario supplies Quebec with more than $300 Millions each year in equalization payments, yet leading Quebecers like Rene Levesque and Claude Ryan, ten in all, publicly berated Premier Robarts for speaking his mind on the tragic events. No province has done more than Ontario is the matter of constitutional change at the request of Quebec.

The torment of Quebec goes back to the plains of Abraham and before. The French have always detested the British for defeating Montcalm. General Wolfes monument and most things in Quebec representing the Anglo Saxon have been continually defaced or bombed. The Royal Mail, the Montreal stock exchange, the Queens printers, are only a few of the 200 targets. The Anglo Saxon holdings, banks and business all feel the hate of the separtists for the "les maudits anglais". (English Foreigners). During the recent mail strike over $2,000,000 damage was done to Federal government property.

Much of the blame for the FLQ must be borne by permissive Quebec politicians who did little to curb their activities when warned about it many years ago.

Competing for kids with drugs

Hanging prominently on the small office wall is a gigantic sign which reads "Youth is not for pleasure but for heroism".

Leaning back in his easy chair puffing on his aromatic pipe and dressed in casual checkered slacks, v-necked sweater and loafers, Father Paul Woodcroft does not present the image of a typical Roman Catholic priest.

Father Woodcroft is in the process of organizing the six parishes within Oshawa, Whitby and Ajax to form Youth Corps, an organization whose objective is to help young people discover themselves and in turn be of service to the community.

"Young people today are bombarded with so many philosophies of life and so many sets of values contradictory to one another, that they have a self-identity problem," says Father Woodcroft.

Through discussion, prayer and involvement, young people who belong to Youth Corps are encouraged to ask key questions that Father Woodcroft feels will bring them closer to knowing their true identity and purpose in life.

He says one key question is how much the church has to say to young people today.

Alternative

Competing with drugs and atheism prevalent in young people today, Father Woodcroft tries to offer them an alternative. For those he can't reach Father Woodcroft hopes their peers, the ones he has reached, can ultimately have an influence on the unreachables.

Members of Youth Corps are working within the community serving the retarded children in Oshawa and working at the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital.

Until recently most of their time was involved in helping others within the community but now they are seeking an equal balance to invoke discussion among themselves as to their real purpose in life.

Father Woodcroft, who has been working full-time with Youth Corps since September says the affluence of our society has done much to harm youth.

"We have given them everything they wanted materially, but we failed to give them what really counts — love. We would rather spend money than time."

Last summer Youth Corps sent 12 young people to work among the Indians in Northern Ontario. "We need to get young people out of themselves and aware of the needs of others."

Since Father Woodcroft has taken up his appointment with Youth Corps he has not been associated with any particular parish.

He sees a very distinct need for priests to specialize in various aspects of social needs, to go beyond the parish structures.

"Until the church recognizes the needs for a priest to specialize in various forms of ministry we won't be able to meet the needs of the community."

He says that the parish priest is already overburdened with work and needs the help of specialized persons to work in counselling, adult education, community development and youth concerns.

In his way, Father Woodcroft is a pioneer of this thinking.

ORMTA proclaims Music Week

As a salute to Canada Music Week November 22-29, the Oshawa and District Registered Music Teachers' Association has arranged an outstanding recital in Simcoe Street United Church on Sunday, November 22, at 8.30 p.m.

The recital which will be followed by a reception, is also being given in honor of Reginald G. Geen, dean of Oshawa musicians.

Teacher, counsellor, examiner and adjudicator Reginald Geen came to Oshawa in November 1931 to be organist and choirmaster of Simcoe Street United Church. At that time the population of Oshawa was around 19,000 and "greatly in need of choral development."

His first major undertaking was to organize a group of women's voices, the "Lyric Singers", about thirty good voices that developed under his training singing "about everything from Palestrina to Roberton .."

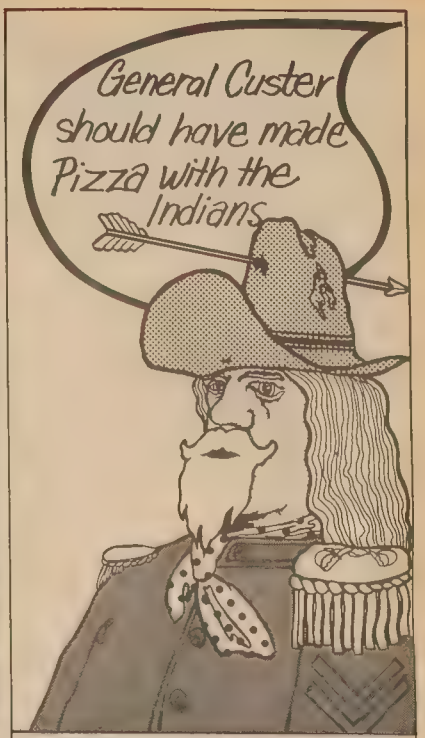
Accompanied by the late Jessie Fleming, the Lyric Singers drew enthusiastic audiences whenever they gave a concert.

Then came a request to Mr. Geen to re-organize the G.M. choir. He entered into the project with zest and the choir earned such a praiseworthy reputation that it was invited to sing with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, then conducted by Sir Ernest Macmillan.

The program was abandoned due to the major G.M. strike of the mid-1930's. However, when the strike was over, many of the singers wanted to get together again and "Reg." Geen organized the Motor City Choir of eighty mixed voices.

Well-remembered for its special concerts in Oshawa, the Motor City Choir sang in Toronto, Owen Sound and other cities. According to the music critics of the day, it was "the best choir in Canada."

Mr. Geen has been teaching singing, piano and organ for sixty years. Many of his pupils have held and are holding prominent positions in the music world, particularly in the realm of singing.



He is a solo performer of distinction. The congregation of Simcoe Street United Church is uplifted by his command of its mighty Casavant organ at Sunday worship. Music-lovers remember his recitals with Mary McBrady, pianist, and with Edouard Bartlett, violinist. Mr. Geen has also been a solo pianist on the Canadian Concert Association roster.

He is an inveterate traveller, taking off for England and the continent almost annually. He has journeyed coast to coast in Canada adjudicating festivals and has been a member of the examining board of the Royal Conservatory for 45 years.

With the late J. L. Yule and the late Sydney English, Reginald Geen organized the first Registered Music Teachers' Association. The association, among whose objectives is the establishment of a standard for teachers, spread from Owen Sound and is now established in eight provinces under a Canadian federation.

Mr. Geen has served two terms as Ontario president and one as Oshawa president. He was also elected president of the Royal Canadian College of Organists in which capacity he travelled to England to receive the thanks of the people of the City of Coventry and the dean and chapter of the cathedral for the RCCO gift of $33,000 toward the new cathedral's organ.

If the City of Coventry felt impelled to express thanks, so indeed, should the City of Oshawa to a man whose life has been dedicated to music; the knowledge and love of which he has imparted and shared without reserve.

What is perhaps Oshawa's greatest natural resource — the Creek Valley — has been threatened over the years by concrete slabs for highways and overpasses, commercial and residential development and pollution.

But there's hope for the future.

City Council this week adopted in principle a plan to save the valley for future generations to use as a people's recreation facility.

In a long debate city council adopted the most important part of the valley scheme — to save it for the future.

On the nitty gritty of the issue there was considerable disagreement, however.

Alderman Gib Murdoch, chairman of the parks and recreation committee, presented the Creek Valley plan, clause by clause.

Three issues that brought many frowns around the council table were:

- Pollution of the Creek Valley through the dumping of salt-infested snow, collected from the downtown streets during the winter.
- A plan to lease Creek Valley land to the private Oshawa Golf and Country Club for 30 years. (Alderman Ed McNeely objected to this idea in particular, from the point of view that this is the people's valley and he suggested that one of the best portions of it should not be turned over to a private club "for a whole generation." It was learned that the Golf Club had planned to lengthen its course through use of city owned lands.)
- When is council going to implement the scheme.

Alderman Murdoch emphasized this was an issue of approval in principle and the various phases could be carried out over the next 30 years.

The Valley will be developed jointly with the Central Lake Ontario Conservation Authority, which guarantees provincial government grants for portions of the project.

A full report on the plans for the Valley will be discussed in future issues of This Week.

the end of each council session for the public to ask questions of specific personnel.

"While department heads can hide behind their secretaries and busy schedules during the week and refuse to see anyone, I will make sure they are present at Council meetings to answer questions."

He would also like to see a schedule of council meetings with dates and places published so that the public can easily attend theose meetings that interest them.

One of his plans for Oshawa is for city subsidized housing in which tenants pay rent to the city and then in so many years become owners of these homes.

Mr. Peleshok is conducting his campaign on a door-to-door basis. "I want to meet people on their own ground".

He refuses to enter into debate with any other candidate claiming debates are not constructive and create strife.

Mr. Peleshok has never run for public office before but claims editorials in This Week encouraged him to "reach for the top" and run for the mayor's seat.

"Every citizen must get involved", he says.

Museum attendance up

The attendance at the Canadian Automotive Museum showed an increase of 20 per cent during the summer months, it was announced by Jack Mann, Manager of the Canadian Automotive Museum. He said the visitors to the Information Centre at Simcoe and Bloor Sts. helped increase the attendance at the Museum. He also noted that many of the visitors were not necessarily old car buffs, but were interested in the Museum because of its broad concept of showing the development of the Automotive history in Canada.

The attendance figures show people from all over Ontario, the other provinces of Canada, and the United States, are the greatest supporters of the Canadian Automotive Museum. Mr. Mann stated that although he would like to see more local interest, as this is Oshawa's Museum, he was proud of the attraction Oshawa offers visitors from out of town, and that the Museum was fulfilling its purpose as a major tourist attraction.

Two new displays featured this month, are a 1918 Kissel Touring Car owned by a Thornhill resident, and a 1935 Lagonda Convertible made in Stains, England. The Lagonda is an interesting automobile, having built-in hydraulic jacks on all four wheels, and shock absorbers adjustable from the dashboard.

The Museum has now returned to its normal hours of operation, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. — Monday to Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. — Saturday, and noon to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

That's the word from the officials of the "Five Day Plan to Stop Smoking" underway this week in the cafeteria of Donevan Collegiate Institute. This Five Day Plan is sponsored by the College Park SDA Church, Community Services Department.

This is the fifth clinic held this year and the sixth year in Oshawa.

The clinic consists of group therapy sessions, involving films and lectures, and discussions by a minister-physician team on the physiological as well as psychological aspects of the smoking problem.

Sorority welcomes international rep

"This is the most interesting, challenging and rewarding position I have ever had," says Margaret Clark, international field representative for Beta Sigma Phi, who is visiting Oshawa to meet the members of the six local chapters of the world-wide sorority and to initiate new ones.

"It is a joy to see shy, insecure girls emerge as interesting, charming and gracious women after a few years in sorority. Membership in Beta Sigma Phi, the Greek symbols for Life, Learning and Friendship, means more than just fun. It offers a three-phase program, social, educational and service to mankind.

"The friendship it offers gives girls a sense of security and also presents a challenge, because they have to research the educational programs for themselves.

"The sorority is not a secret organization and it is not connected with any school or college. It is non-political and non-sectarian. It provides an instrument for self-development."

Asked about the effect of the Women's Liberation Movement on Beta Sigma Phi, Mrs. Clark said: "Our girls aspire to be truly gracious women, respected and admired. This recognition is not to be gained by screaming into microphones and reviling mankind.

"Personally, I don't want to be 'liberated'."

As a result of an introductory meeting by invitation last Thursday, initiation ceremonies for new members are being held tomorrow night at the Carousel Inn.

Auditions are being held Friday night at O'Neil Collegiate for any boy 7 to 14 interested in joining a boy's choir in Oshawa. Ross Cotton is in charge of the auditions, being held at 6:30 p.m.

Ward-O'Neil

Janet Louise Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. Ward of Oshawa was recently given in marriage by her father to Charles A. O'Neil of Haliburton, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. I. O'Neil of Brighton.

The marriage took place in St. Peter's Anglican Church, Maple Lake, Ontario with Rev. F. Ford officiating and William Gliddon as organist.

The bride was dressed in a high waisted, slightly fitted full A-line gown of white corded silk. A jewel neckline, slightly bell-shaped and full length sleeves accentuated the gown. The headdress was of matching corded silk and braid with a scalloped edged cathedral length veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations and stephanotis with satin streamers.

Attending the bride was Miss Milforde Andrews of London, Ontario as maid of honor. Mr. Gordon Whyte of Brighton was the best man.

After a reception held at Sir Sam's Inn, Eagle Lake, the couple left on their honeymoon to the Laurentians and Quebec City. The bride wore a green and gold check pant suit with brown accessories.

The newlyweds are now residing in Haliburton, Ontario.

RAISE $300

As the result of an auction sale held at Enniskillen, the Oshawa and District Historical Society raised approximately $300 which will just about cover the cost of a showcase for Robinson House. A monster auction of anything and everything, not necessarily antique, will be held in Oshawa in the spring.

—by jo aldwinckle.

With his customary thoughtfulness, Colonel R.S. McLaughlin invited a number of Oshawa friends to visit the greenhouses of Parkwood last week, while the famous chrysanthemums were at their best.

Miss Isabel McLaughlin greeted the guests for her father who was unable to attend and I'm sure everyone's thoughts flew back to other occasions when the McLaughlin family had stood for hours on end in the drawing room, receiving hundreds of guests, some of whom had travelled from distant points, Montreal, Ottawa and New York.

The reception always took a long time because the host and hostess exchanged greetings with each and every guest. I recall holding up the line while "Mr. Sam" admired my red hat and he went on to recite a little ditty about a girl in a red hat which I wish now, that I had jotted down.

There was always "high tea", — lobster on the shell or chicken a la king and all shorts of goodies, served in the dining room and the breakfast room. One year, for dessert, we were served ice cream molded into the shapes of G.M. automobiles.

The tea pourers and young assistant hostesses wore orchid corsages and all the guests were dressed in their best to grace Mrs. McLaughlin's tea.

We were less formal yet more subdued last week, perhaps because we were missing the presence of our host, even though we knew that he was not very far away.

The chrysanthemums in all their variety were as beautiful as ever, the frilly ones, button ones, the Queen's Lace, the Brocade, the dainty ones and the Japanese ones that stood over six feet tall.

To gaze the length of one of the greenhouses was like casting one's eyes over an oriental carpet of gold, white, bronze, yellow and dark red.

There is always something new. Amid the begonias, Christmas cherries and variegated foliage was a tender, mauve flower, Browallia, and in the carnation house, an orchid carnation with a spicey scent.

The orchid house was sheer delight; white orchids with purple throats, green and gold Lady Slippers, growing in semi-toopical splendour. Greenhouse after greenhouse was filled with the silent eloquence of natural beauty.

Sad news

Sad news this week of the unexpected death in Halifax N.S. of Barbara Pollock. For a number of years Barbara was the women's editor of Radio Station CKLB and she and I shared many news-gathering adventures together.

A promotion for her husband, Bill, brought about their move to Halifax about five years ago.

Shortly afterward, Barbara's mother, Mrs. Elsie Murphy, left Oshawa to join her daughter, son-in-law and their daughter, Debbie, in their new home in the suburb of Rockingham.

Barbara died unexpectedly after surgery for phlebitis. She had been happily engaged in public relations work for the Red Cross Society. Oshawa friends wishing to send condolences should address mail to 20 Beechwood Terrace, Rockingham, Nova Scotia.

New lamps and old at Historical Society

By Jo Aldwincle

"Beating back the night . . ." was the theme of a well-documented address by the Reverend Allan Barnes to Oshawa Historical Society at its November meeting.

To augment his story of lighting, Mr. Barnes set up a display of lamps used in this area since pioneer days.

"The first white men here were French fur traders who built a trading post east of the harbor. Their only light came from an open fireplace and an occasional candle," he said.

"When Benjamin Wilson arrived, his wife probably prepared rush-lights and tapers to add to the fire-glow."

Rush-lights, the speaker explained, were made from dried rushes, dipped in fat. Tapers which predated candles, were splints of Jack pine, soaked in fat. The fat could have been animal tallow, or fish oil, rendered from the school of ale-wives washed up, regularly, on the shore.

Candles were precious and candlesticks ranged from household tin models, to decorative brass, pewter and silver.

Mr. Barnes displayed a "safety" candle lantern of perforated tin that prevented the candle from being blown out by the wind and was safer than an open flame in the barn.

He also showed a square-sided candle lantern with glass walls. The Vetty lamp, saucer-shaped with a protruding lip, held animal fat or fish oil and a wick.

The smoke and smell from oil and tallow lingered until 1875 when Dr. Abraham Gesner made the kerosene lamp a reality.

The flame, covered by a chimney, burned longer and gave a brighter light. It was instantly popular everywhere, from the hostess in her parlor to the conductor on the train.

With the introduction of Edison's invention in 1878 man no longer had cause to dread the darkness of night.

"Electric light was a miracle; no more chimneys to be cleaned, no more buckets of coal oil to be lugged home."

Mr. Barnes, himself, shed light on an interesting subject.

Henry-Hiskia Vanderkooi, son of Mr. & Mrs. John Vanderkooi of R. R.4 Bowmanville, was awarded his ARCT Teachers Diploma in piano at Graduation Exercises at the Royal Conservatory of Music, University of Toronto, having achieved the highest marks in this area for several years.

Mr. Vanderkooi, a former student of Mrs. L. W. Parrott of Oshawa is the organist and choir director of the Uxbridge Trinity United Church, where he is also engaged in teaching piano and theory. He lives in Oshawa and has made teaching a full time career.

National president council of women meets members

Mrs. Helen Hnatyshyn, president of the National Council of Women, was welcomed by the Oshawa and District Council of Women on her visit to Oshawa last week. She was entertained at dinner by the Barvinok Branch of the Canadian-Ukrainian Women's Association and an evening reception was held at the home of the Oshawa president, Mrs. Nicholas Ostafichuk, Simcoe Street North.

Fourteen women's clubs were represented at the meeting and special guests were the honorary president, Mrs. G. D. Conant, Alderman Ruth Bestwick, Mrs. Clifford Pilkey, Mrs. Michael Starr, Mrs. Bruce Mackey and Mrs. Desmond Newman.

Accompanying Mrs. Hnatyshyn was the Ontario Provincial president, Mrs. Gordon Armstrong of Toronto.

Speaking briefly Mrs. Hnatyshyn reminded the guests that the Council of Women was 77 years old and had been formed to take up causes for which there was an obvious need in the community.

"Many of our early recommendations to governments concerning public health, TB hospitals, hours of work, health in schools, have been implemented and maintained, but there is still room for improvement.

"We would like to see women appointed to magistrate courts and special commissions. We are urging the conservation and preservation of our national parks. The Ontario Council is engaged in a study of the misuse of drugs.

Growing city area ahead of national school enrolment

Across Canada enrolment in elementary and secondary schools is increasing very slightly but Ontario County is an exception for enrolment figures indicate a substantial increase over the last few years.

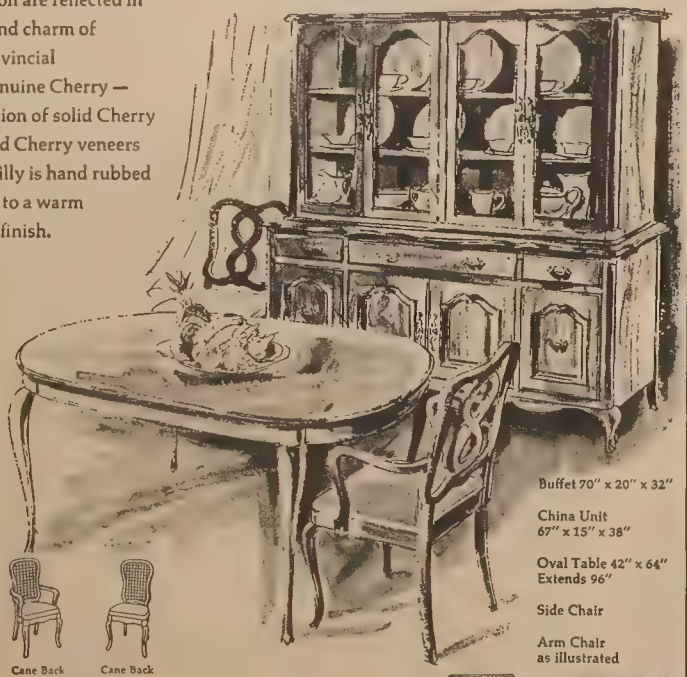
Cyril Taylor of the Ontario County Board of Education explains this apparent contradiction

"Oshawa is the centre of a growth area and we have people from Toronto and other areas moving into the county bringing with them young and growing families."

Mr. Taylor anticipates this growth to continue for many years and says that all counties immediately adjacent to Toronto are in the same situation.

Across the nation the first glimmerings of a slowdown in the expansion of schools and costs is seen in kindergarten, where enrolment shows a one per cent decline. While Mr. Taylor has no figures as yet but he knows kindergarten enrolment in the county is up substantially over last year.

Enrolment in elementary schools and secondary schools in the county are also increasing substantially while the national picture shows an increase of between two and four per cent.



While the total school population is forecast to grow for 1970-71, enrolment in elementary schools is expected to decline. Quite the opposite is expected in Ontario County.

The national average cost of educating a student in secondary schools is $1,206. The average cost of educating a student in a high school in Ontario County is $1163. The cost of education for a child in elementary school in the county is $594.

"It's worth what you think it is"

What Paul Bennett thinks of this 'lunch pail town'

By Paul Bennett

Recently the Oshawa Times printed a complimentary letter from an Oshawa citizen on the work being done at the Robert McLaughlin Gallery. I did appreciate that letter and for one week I am changing from my usual column of description of various gallery programmes, to give a personal answer on my view point toward cultural activities and the citizen in general.

I travelled the Province of Ontario for ten years in connection with the development of the visual arts. I discovered in many centres, large and small, that the attitude seemed to be one of self pity with people engaged in cultural activities, and of envy for people engaged in athletic activities. Quite often large athletic facilities are pointed out to me and then the cultural groups throw their hands up in despair and say that they had nothing at all in the way of equipment or gallery space, etc. I am afraid I do not have much time to waste on people involved in self pity. I do strongly congratulate people connected with athletics who set a goal and in a businesslike manner go about arriving at that goal. They believe in something and they push it forward. I have felt for many years that people involved in music, in the dance, in theatre, in the visual arts, go around begging with their hand out and stooped over in front of authorities and foundations, etc. They go around with this attitude because they don't really believe in what they are doing.

I recently spent a year in Europe on a Canada Council Fellowship. I travelled in fourteen countries visiting museums and galleries, 260 of them altogether. In all of my time in Europe the most valuable lesson I learned was from one man, Mr. Bryan Robertson, then the Director of the Whitechapel Art Gallery, in London, England. He started with this gallery as a small east end gallery, catering to the tastes of the people in a poor working class area. His attitudes to the visual arts developed that gallery until it was one of the leading contemporary institutions in Britain. Mr. Robertson taught me a lesson. He said very simply, quote — "You are worth what you think you are worth."

I returned to Canada and I have remembered that. I came to the Robert McLaughlin Gallery and I firmly believe that this gallery and what it represents in the visual arts is one of the most important buildings in this City. I believe the very fact that Oshawa for years has been called 'the lunch pail town' means that the gallery is needed. We are having shorter working hours, we are having more recreation time, and the visual arts and all other cultural activities are the creative spark that can give meaning to our recreation time.

I highly compliment the music people in Oshawa on the approach that I have seen developing since I came here last December. They are becoming definite in their views, they are becoming progressive in their businesslike approach to their organizations and they are beginning to say music is worth something, music is worth fighting for, we believe in it, and I am quite certain this is going to result in great changes in the music scene in Oshawa.

I feel exactly the same way about the Art Gallery. If I ask a professional artist to visit the gallery, I say that he is worth something and consequently a suitable fee is budgeted, so that he, as a professional person, realizes that we accept him in that role. I will not go around and beg with my hat in my hand.

It has been suggested that the gallery should ask professional artists to give paintings to the permanent collection. Do we ask the plumber to come and unplug a sink for nothing because we are an art gallery? Of course we don't, and we will under no circumstances ask a professional artist who has had years of training behind him to give his works as gifts to our collection.

I firmly believe in the role of the gallery with the youth of this City. So often today we hear of the trouble that young people are causing. I claim that a progressive programme when presented to young people will bring startling results. Young people are so idealistic, the problem is their disappointment in the generations that have gone before. I compliment the City on the stand they have recently taken on the Oshawa Youth Drop-In Centre, and the Gallery will do anything it can to assist in a developing programme with that organization. The gallery does have a Youth Club. I hoped when it started that I might have ten serious young people involved in a study of art. The letters were sent out to twenty young people who had shown their port folios, or by word of mouth, shown an interest in serious study of art. These letters explained that the programme was not to be a drop-in centre, or a social club. Thirty-seven young people turned out for the first meeting, and seventy turned out for the second. That was too many, I could not bring in professional artists to handle such a group and my whole aim was to expose the serious student to the professionals such as John Gould or Robin McKenzie. I stated this to this large group, fifty-five of them joined up and became members of the gallery, so that they could stay in the organization.

Mr. Bennett is the director of the Robert McLaughlin Art Gallery.

Every Thursday evening, and any citizen of Oshawa is welcome to come and observe this, there are from thirty to fifty young people in the main gallery working on the floor on various projects to assist them in understanding art and become artists in the serious sense of the word. I have decided that a group as devoted as this should have as much exposure as possible to the professional artist, to the new developing concepts of the arts. Consequently we have arranged a bus tour to see the theatre production of "Hair".

After Christmas we are going to be making films, we are studying figure drawing extensively with the use of models, we are being introduced to new materials, at least once a month a professional sculptor or painter, or artist, is being introduced to the group for an evening of discussion of work, so that the professional attitude to the arts can rub off and excite these young people toward new dimensions in their concepts of their creative activities.

After Christmas the Saturday morning childrens' class is going to be called "The Childrens' Wonder Hour", and somewhat the same approach is going to be used with them to expose them to the great possibilities of creative activities that surround them. The three teenage boys, all of them art students, who are now their instructors, will stay with this group, however, every second week an outsider is going to be introduced, an authority, one week we hope to have a naturalist who might bring some animals and talk about the woods and the wonders of nature. Another week we hope to have poetry readings, or story telling, another week we hope to have a musician with his instruments

I appeal to the citizens of Oshawa, you have a gallery with what I believe is a vital and valid programme in this City. Why not visit it on a Sunday afternoon for a music recital, or to see the professional works of art that are constantly changing in a display. Why not become a member of the gallery and join one of the committees involved

There are at present 100 women working as volunteers in the Gift Shop, on the Coffee Committee, in the Acquisition Committee, on the Guides in Training — these guides are most important, we have 25 of them at present and without them it would have been impossible in the last six weeks to have shown 1,800 students through the gallery and discuss the works of art on view.

The gallery is yours, there is no cost for admittance to the various shows on view, it is worth exactly what you think it is worth.

Elliott directs this week's OLT play

Art (or "A.T." as he prefers to be known around OLT) has been actively engaged in amateur theatricals as long as he can remember and has always managed to participate in local theatre groups wherever his travels with the Canadian Armed Forces (Air Branch) have taken him.

From 1946 - 50 he was in Edmonton and not only acted with the Edmonton Players in some of their productions but was also on Radio Station C.J.C.A. with their programme, "On Cue 9.30", working on sound for quite some time before being given the opportunity to act in some of these radio plays. While stationed at Lachine in the early 1950's, he organized an amateur dramatic group for the station. During the time he was stationed in France with No.2 (F) Wing at Grostenquin, from 1954 - 57, he was active in promoting local entertainment and, when the Station finally had its own local radio station in 1956, C.F.G.T., he organized a group to put on radio plays. Art wrote scripts, adapted others for radio, produced, directed, acted — and even made up his own sound effects.

Oshawa audiences first saw him as Dr. Paul Marten in "Miranda" in 1958, when he moved to Oshawa. Before turning to directing for O.L.T. in 1960, Art also appeared in O.L.T.'s productions of "When We Are Married" (1958) and "High Ground" (1959).

In 1960, Art directed Oshawa's entry into the Orono One-Act Play Festival, "The Valiant", which won the Best Actor award, 2nd. prize for overall production and three honourable mentions — one of which went to the Director. Art then directed "Monique" and "My Three Angels" (1961) and "Picnic" (1962), worked backstage on lighting and sound effects in 1963 and 1964, and finally directed "Twelve Angry Men" in 1965 before being transferred to Scotland. While he was based at Prestwick and living in Troon, Art joined The Ayr Players and had parts in two of their plays and helped backstage for other productions.

By this time, Art much preferred to direct than act, and as The Ayr Players had the same director for every one of their plays instead of alternating directors the way Oshawa does, Art decided to help on sets, etc., where they were short of willing helpers.

"Never Too Late" is the first play Art has directed for O.L.T. since his return from overseas two years ago. However, having worked at the McLaughlin Library for so many years, Art has been anxious to try out all the stage, lighting facilities, etc., at Eastdale Collegiate which have given so much more scope to the plays the Oshawa Little Theatre can now produce. Although living in Oshawa, Art is based at Trenton where is is attached to the Aircraft Maintenance and Development Unit as Aircraft Maintenance Superintendent.

Miss Susan Entwistle, 17 years, received her ARCT, solo performance diploma in piano from the Royal Conservatory of Music at the recent graduation exercises in Toronto. She also received a scholarship from the Conservatory and is now continuing her studies on the organ. Susan is a pupil of Mrs. Josephine Parrott and a student Grade 13 of MCVI.

Maureen

Oshawa scored another musical triumph on Sunday night in the presentation of Maureen Forrester in the first subscription concert of the newly-formed Oshawa and District Concert Association.

A large audience was enthralled by the glorious voice of the famous Canadian contralto, known to concert-goers on six continents.

Wearing turquoise and sea-green chiffon, the blonde, statuesque Miss Forrester captured her audience with her stage presence and held them with the magic of her voice.

The rich, full notes floated effortlessly through a symphonic range. With superb control, a pianissimo phrase would frequently swell to a majestic forte.

Miss Forrester was able to translate deepest tragedy as in Dido's Lament (Purcell) and by contrast, the joyous outburst of spring as in Fruhlingsnacht.

With perfect enunciation in English, German, French and Spanish, Miss Forrester sang compositions by Handel, Purcell, Schumann, Britten, Debussy and Turina. The metaphysics of Schumann's Liederkries and the tenderness of Britten's Lullabies were artistically interpreted.

In this demanding program, Miss Forrester was accompanied admirably by Donald Nold of New York.

Cable TV this week

By James Sabyan

This Saturday and Monday is color day at Cable Cast 8. We're going to stick our necks out and try an experiment with a new color camera that has just appeared on the market. Not only are we going to try this camera out on a test on an important event but the coverage will take place outside, in the cold, under conditions that leave a lot to be desired. So if the color happens to wander just a bit, it's the cold air around the complicated innards of a color camera.

A color camera is really three cameras in one big box, with one camera for red, one for blue and the green channel. These three colors are mixed to give the full spectrum and depending on how well the camera performs and how agile the operator is determines the accuracy of the picture in your living room.

The Saturday morning of the Bowmanville parade will be the test of the camera and the crew that run it. Bowmanville residents will get a chance to see the event live from 10:30 a.m. until the last float disappears down the road. And if all goes well — and I'm determined that it will — it should be a fine show for cable subscribers.

Commentary will be by Ken Cryderman who looks after the Bowmanville Reports show every Monday night and Barb Leask will fill in the feminine point of view. Along with these two holding the fort the organizers and people who work many hours to pull off a parade of this caliber will be recognized on camera.

But for Cablecast 8 to stick their necks out so far without some indication of the result would be foolish, so Wednesday or Thursday expect to see the live shows in color-News, Dates, Deeds, and Dialogue, This Week, and Cable Ease — and the cast that are on those nights are already wondering about what shirt or blouse to wear.

Our only regret is that we couldn't go live for the whole system but that's the way the wire is threaded. Monday, the parade will be replayed at 5:00 p.m. and again on the same day at 8 p.m.

To make doubly sure that the little people and the participants in the parade get the opportunity to see themselves on the color tube a replay at 3 p.m. on the day of the parade will be going through the whole system. Then the tape will be put into a special case and donated to the Town of Bowmanville to be used whenever they want.

This week, a new show will start that's intended for all those who want to stay slim and trim. It's called Slimnastics and Ruth Stovin handles this one. It's all done to music and even I tried it and found it relaxing and fun. It's on just before Peter Brouwer's show, Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Digging for a village

Scenes from the fall dig of the Ontario Archaeological Society at the McLeod site, corner Rossland and Thornton Road. The site which has shown evidence of a prehistoric Iroquian Village was first discovered in 1968. In the spring of that year, 33 five-foot squares were excavated in a garbage dump. This work was conducted by the Ontario Archaeological Society under the direction and supervision of William S. Donaldson and Joyce E. Holloway. During the excavation, public interest in this work was almost overwhelming, and a great deal of manpower was required to handle the hundreds of people who came to see the work in progress. During the summer of 1970 a road crew exposed another midden area, while constructing road ditches. The Ontario Archaeological Society was again notified and on August 8-9, 13 five-foot squares were excavated.

Until excavation is no longer feasible, Saturday excavations will be carried out by the OAS and two University of Toronto field school classes in archeology, under the direction of Dr. B. Schroeder and Dr. B. Drewitt. Findings to date include: 2 large garbage middens which contained broken ceramics, chert (flint), projectile points, chert scrapers, chert flakes, bipolar cores, schistite celts, charred beans and corn, bone implements, broken ceramic (clay) pipes, a native copper fish gorge and a plethora of post moulds.

The ceramic rimsherds are characterized by a significant percentage of neck incized and high collar varieties. The diagnostic ceramic pipe types include plain trumpet and ring barrel varieties.

The neck incised pottery and diagnostic pipe types are comparable to the material from the Black Creek Site (Emerson, 1954), located within western metro Toronto. The archaeological evidence suggests a temporal placement within the early portion of Dr. J. V. Wright's early Late Prehistoric stage, thus indicating a probable date of circa 1450 A.D. (Wright, 1966).

Bold bylaw steps sought

Bold steps to update antiquated bylaws are proposed by Keith Ross, a candidate for alderman and a member of the industrial commission.

And the bylaws he refers to in particular are those that are hampering economically feasible development, he says.

Mr. Ross, a long-time Oshawa resident, has been active in community affairs for many years, holding positions on the labour council, the planning board and the industrial commission. He is a representative for the Steel Workers union.

The next two years, this candidate says, are going to be important in the life of this city. He predicts sweeping changes in connection with regional government, that will affect all residents.

Here are some points from Mr. Ross' election platform:

"With the knowledge and experience I have gained serving on Boards and Commissions in the City, I can contribute much to growth and progress.

"I make no criticism of the Council of the past two years. This can be best done by the voters, on election day.

"I am strongly in favour of doing everything possible to bring in new development whether it be business or industry and this can only be done if bold steps are taken to up-date antiquated bylaws to make development economically feasible. At present and in most situations this is not the case and development is not encouraged to the extent it should.

"We can no longer spend money on municipal buildings from which we get no taxation and increase the tax burden on the taxpayer, without offsetting this with new private development that will bring in taxes and ease this burden.

"The new Council will have to do everything possible to bring decent housing within the price range of every citizen wanting to buy or rent a house.

"I am opposed to the high priced and outside consultants that the City has been hiring to tell us us how to run this City, when we have capable people within the City who are employed by the City who can do this work and if re-organization is needed to do this then let's re-organize the City Departments.

"I am strongly opposed to the amount of time that is being spent on a lot of nebulous items concerning the possibility of regional government. I believe the City business comes first and foremost.

"I am in favour of a parking garage for downtown and this should be done immediately and at as little cost to the taxpayer as possible.

"I am in favour of a public washroom in downtown Oshawa. It's long overdue.

Says Mr. Ross: "We have a good City; its future is bright but progress just won't happen, it must be helped. I have been told in the past, I have made mistakes in taking the position I have on certain matters. In answer I only say — I will continue to take a position on matters and possibly not be always agreed with, but I would sooner be wrong sometimes because I did something than never be wrong because I did nothing."

Brown bowls 800 triple in 10

Fred Brown of Oshawa became only the fourth man in Canada's 10-pin Bowling history to bowl an 800 triple. Bowling in the Eastway Lanes tournament on Sunday, in the Mens doubles event, Brown put together scores of 277, 269, and 255 for an 801 total.

For years the big plateau to which Canadian bowlers aspired was a 700 triple, but lately in Oshawa, the local trundlers are turning in 700's at a rate of one per week. In fact, there had been only one 700 triple bowled at Eastway in nine years.

In putting together this fantastic score, Brown started off the first game with four strikes, had a seven-count spare and struck out the rest of the way for a 277 game. In the second, he started with a spare, ran four strikes, had a nine-count spare and again struck out for 269. The third game looked disastrous as he opened with two splits and then hit for ten strikes in a row. In all he threw 28 strikes out of a possible 36.

Show this to your car dealer when he tries to sell you his own brand of 'rustproofing.'

1. Mr. Dealer: All rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. And the most dangerous rust begins in the hidden hollow areas of a car and eats its way from the inside out.

2. Mr. Dealer: Only Ziebart Rustproofing coats every hidden seam, crevice and hollow area with a special patented compound that prevents this inside rusting. How does your process "rustproof" my car?

3. Mr. Dealer: Ziebart has special patented tools that force the compound through tiny holes that they drill in strategic but inconspicuous places around my car. How do you get to these critical areas?

4. Mr. Dealer: Undercoating doesn't prevent rust because cars rust all over, not only on the bottom. Are you sure that your "rustproofing" isn't just a glorified undercoating?

5. Mr. Dealer: The men who will Ziebart my car are highly trained rustproofing specialists. Are the men who do your "rustproofing" the same guys that change my tires and adjust my brakes?

6. Mr. Dealer: When my car is Ziebarted, I can be sure that vital mechanical parts like the braking system won't fail because of rust. Can your "rustproofing" make the same safety claim?

7. Mr. Dealer: If I have my car Ziebarted when it's new, it will be worth more in resale value at trade in time. Will your "rustproofing" job pay for itself as well?

8. Mr. Dealer: Ziebart will guarantee in writing that my car won't rust for 10 years, no matter how many miles I put on it, if I have it Ziebarted before it's driven 3,000 miles. Do you guarantee your job in writing?

9. Mr. Dealer: If everything I've said is true, why are you trying to sell me a second rate job? Why don't you send me to Ziebart and show that you care what happens to that car I just bought from you?

The drug scene

Don't panic - understand is key

By Elaine Hallam
Staff Reporter

As community consultant for the Alcohol and Drug Research Foundation in Oshawa, Wayne Weagle doesn't believe in giving people a lot of information about drugs.

"Armed with a lot of information about drugs, parents begin to create witch-hunts, running around looking for symptoms in their children and in many cases mistaking symptoms of a common cold for drug use symptoms and wrongly accusing their children of using drugs. This destroys any communication between parent and child," says Wayne Weagle.

Instead of making people drug experts Wayne wants to make them "people experts". He wants people to become more aware of the problems of a drug users and the methods of treatment. Drugs, he feels, are usually just a minor part of a much larger problem most teenagers have to cope with.

Wayne, who came to Oshawa last May to set up this branch, feels his job is not just to educate the public but to determine the needs of the community and then make community organizations aware of this need and help them develop programs.

"Drug abuse and alcoholism are a community problem and the community should be active in treatment," says Wayne.

He would like to see people genuinely looking at drug abuse in a more rational manner, not condoning but accepting the fact that there will always be some people who get involved in things detrimental to themselves and others, and that they need help rather than condemnation.

From his short stay in Oshawa Wayne has found the community open to his ideas and genuinely interested in helping others. This, he says, makes his work a lot easier.

Many organizations now are working on the concept of creating halfway houses for alcoholics, disturbed children or juvenile delinquents. These organizations, Wayne feels, are truly involved in the welfare of the community.

He says that young people who become overly involved with drugs do want someone to talk to but it must be on their terms. They are searching for someone who will not condemn or chastise but who will sit down and help them find alternatives to drug abuse.

In order to accomplish this, Wayne is hoping to establish a "youth rap" series one night a week when young people with drug problems can get together talk about their problems in a group therapy session atmosphere.

At the moment Lloyd Bast, a part-time worker in training at Centennial College is working with a group of young people examining the feasibility of establishing a home for drug users or crisis patients. They are documenting the need, studying community resources and financial resources and will then present their brief to the Steering Committee on drug abuse who will act on these recommendations.

Wayne feels that a home designed for drug users is better than a hospital atmosphere. Certain organizations are now experimenting with "speed farms", a commune type of living where the user, while he is being rehabilitated, can live in a home-like atmosphere.

Crisis intervention unit plan at hospital

Wayne Weagle spends a lot of his time working with youth-orientated organizations.

As a community consultant for the Alcohol and Drug Research Foundation, he works with Project Youth, Youth Corps, Social Planning Council, the school boards and is chairman of a committee trying to establish a "crisis intervention unit" at the Oshawa General Hospital.

Right now drug users experiencing a bad trip are taken to the emergency department of the hospital and are processed and treated in the same department as other emergency cases.

The committee feels that crisis patients should be given more specialized treatment and should not be treated in the same ward as other emergency patients.

The alcoholic is not overlooked in the community. Wayne feels the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital offers excellent rehabilitation for the alcoholic. While many turn to Alcoholics Anonymous, a well-respected organization, it is well-known that more extensive help is needed for some alcoholics.

One of Wayne's biggest jobs is co-ordinating the different agencies in the community to work together on projects of common interest.

A successful example of his work is reflected in the recent drug abuse seminar attended by hundreds of professionals from the county and neighbouring counties. By working with the Social Planning Council, the Ontario County Department of Health, and other organizations he was able to present a most successful seminar.

Need people experts to deal with drug abuse

Wayne is more than willing to visit community organizations and tell them of the work of the Foundation but he will not present an "entertainment hour".

"If the organization says they are truly interested in helping out in the community I will give them all the guidance I can, but I'm not about to present slides and give an oral presentation on drug abuse for entertainment purposes."

Wayne says adults have a notion kids are a breed all by themselves, and so they are, he says but "we shouldn't let them scare us and we shouldn't panic".

Understanding is the key word.

Crushmen battling for fans

By Jim Bishop

The Oshawa Crushmen have iced a young but exciting team this season. In quite a departure from the last couple of years the Jr. B team has only two players going over age this year and most of the boys have two, three, and four years of junior eligibility remaining if you include this current season.

The Crushmen started off the season with a new look, right from the top management to the players. Cliff Maddock, well-known for his work in minor hockey over a great number of years, is the new president. Al Cay, George Brabin and Dick Snowden are the other executive members along with the sponsor Bill Smith of Smith Beverages. Ralph Cook is the general-manager working with new coach Jack Armstrong.

The team has elevated a number of boys right from minor ranks and the club has responded with some fine hockey. Rene Beauchamin, Brian Genge, Dave Tessier, Luc Charbonneau, Larry Hopkins, Al Bathe, and Dennis Higgins are all from Coach Armstrong's last year Midget Club. Paul Britton played last year with the Oshawa Juveniles. Two big surprises for the team this year has been the play of Steve West and Grove Bennett of last season's Bowmanville Jr C's. Tom Christie, Jim Robson, Eric Howard, Len McAvoy, Don Hudgin, Chris Bone and Scott Willson are all holdovers from last year. Bob Kirk, who has recently been elevated to the Generals is still playing the odd game for the Crushmen and is a big help with his hard-hitting style whenever he is with them.

When asked about the strong points of this young team, both Armstrong and Cook concurred that it was the spirit and enthusiasm since it is starting to spill over to the players that have been around for a couple of years.

Paul Britton and Garry Armstrong have been very pleasant surprises. Armstrong is quite a hustler and Britton provides some important muscle back of the blue line. The one big line of West, Hopkins and Charbonneau have played extremely well in the games so gar.

As for the areas of improvement most needed, Armstrong says, "we have to improve our scoring and improve the way we clear the puck out of our own end, but we'll be tough next February after the mixture of age on this team has a chance to jell. We didn't expect too much this early in the season but the club has exceeded our expectations."

Steve West, the Orono native, and a son of the well-known Junior West is a real find. He is scoring points at a fantastic clip and his penalty-killing is a thing to behold. This boy should have a chance to get in a few games with the Gens this season and will probably make the "A's" next season.

On Monday, at Cobourg the Crushmen walloped the home town Cougars by a score of 8 to 2. Larry Hopkins and Luc Charbonneau each scored twice for the Oshawa team. Singles went to Howard, Tessier, Willson and West, who also added six assists. Peters and Lunn did the scoring for Cobourg. An honorable mention is in order for goaler Tom Christie, who continually thwarted the Cobourg drives with some fantastic saves.

The club has been putting on an attendance drive lately and have started handing out NHL crests to the children. Last Friday, they gave away more than 500 Boston Bruin crests and this coming Friday is Maple Leafs night. Every child attending the game will receive a Toronto Maple Leaf Crest and the following Friday, New York Ranger crests will be given.

The visitors Friday night will be the high-flying Kingston club. Game time at the Civic Auditorium is 8:00 p.m.

No Article about the Crushmen would be complete without mention of their trainer, the crusty Buck Moore. Buck is one of the real spirited trainers on the local hockey scene and a welcome addition to any team.

This Crushmen team is playing fine hockey and are looking for more fan support in their upcoming games.

Badminton

The Oshawa YWCA Badminton Club will be hosting a tournament all day this coming Saturday at the YWCA and the Central Collegiate gyms.

Teams from Oshawa, Scarborough, Peterborough, Whitby and Trenton will be competing in Mens' and Ladies' singles and doubles as well as mixed doubles events. Oshawa are the defending champs of this tournament.

Last Saturday, The Oshawa team played an exhibition match against the Whitby team and lost a close match, 9 to 7.

by jim bishop

Well, here we go with OHA officials again.

What kind of dreamer is sitting in the OHA office assigning games to people without regard to their hometown origin or in many cases without regard for the ability of the officials concerned?

I want to know why the change in policy from last season when in most cases in Jr. A and Jr. B, a visiting referee was used with home town linesman. In most cases, this policy worked very well and cut down on expenses to the home team. Now, suddenly the OHA has seen fit to elevate some referees who in other seasons were not judged good enough to call games, except in Jr C and Intermediate and leave many really competent officials languishing in the bushes.

As a case in point, and I realize that this may sound like homer-talk, the guys right from this area, who did such good jobs last season have not had any games here in Oshawa.

Instead, the Association has seen fit to elevate the likes of Bob Kolari to referee status to do Jr A games and appoint some linesmen who are terrible skaters and inconsistent in their calls.

Another strange occurrence is the sudden appearance of three Oshawa officials at a game in Cobourg Monday night, in which the visiting team was the Oshawa Crushmen. Al Dick was the referee and Royce Weatherbee and Don Wilson handled the lines. All three of these boys did a most capable job in a game in which the pressure must have been intense.

It is very difficult to go into a small town rink and risk the ire of the fans just because you hail from the same city as the visiting team.

Last year, these same guys were used as linesmen at the Generals games and proved to be the most consistent in the league. We still do not have a Jr A ref in this town and it is a damn shame.

The calibre is here, under the noses of the OHA.

The NHL has seen fit to hire Rob Waddell and Al Glaspell but the OHA cannot find the work for some other fellows who are obviously talented. Gord Irwin is another fine local man who cannot find much important work in the provincial hockey setup.

Are there too many politics being played at the OHA office?

I would heartily recommend that they send their scouts out into the wilds, (any place east of Scarboro or west of Long Branch) and pick up some officials who are capable of at least giving an honest effort on the ice and have the class to learn to skate before aspiring to any kind of hockey beyond minor.

Durham loses two league-openers

Durham College Lords lost both of their league-opening games on Friday to the powerful Centennial College teams. The hockey team lost by a count of 8 to 1 and the basketball team was beaten 101 to 51.

In the hockey game, Centennial completely dominated the play as they led by periods, 1-0, 5-0, and 8-1. For the Centennial club, Gord Tucker, a former Peterborough Pete, scored three times and added two assists. Ron Carmichael and Al Burns scored two each with the other tally going to Jim Howard. Dennis Hemoniuk scored the lone goal for Durham.

In basketball, Durham was completely outclassed by the home team who are unbelievably accurate outside shooters. The Centennial team must have scored on at least 70% of their shots, which would be a good average in the NBA.

Top scorers for Centennial were Doug Harder with 22, Bob Mickus had 16 and Wayne Lilly scored 14. For Durham, Ted Harrison hooped 24 points and Steve Ball had 11. Neither Durham clubhooked as bad as the scores indicated, they just happened to run up against what probably will prove to be the best two college teams in the OCAA circuit. The Lords have a chance to redeem themselves this Saturday as Loyalist of Belleville invade Oshawa.

The basketball game will go at Eastdale Collegiate at 4:00 pm and the hockey game will be played at North Oshawa Arena at 8:00 pm. There is no admission charge for these games and the general public is invited.

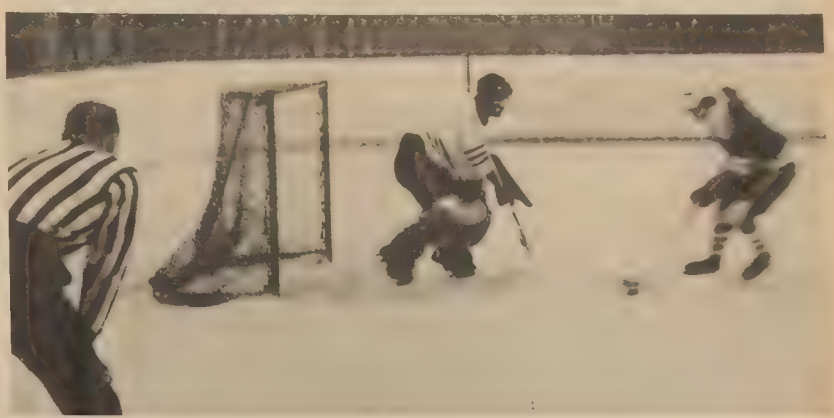
Generals put on worst display of season

Where does the responsibility of the coach end and the pride of the hockey players begin? After Sunday's game against Ottawa 67's, Coach Ed Reigle could be seen just shaking his head. His club had just finished putting on the most lethargic display witnessed in the Auditorium since the building opened in 1964. Had there been an epidemic of the flu or a rash of injuries among the team there would have been some excuse for the debacle witnessed, but the team seemed healthy, at least in the first period.



The team could be forgiven for only getting one point in Niagara Falls on Friday night as they ran up against some of the more wacky fans in the league, as well as the world's worst referee, Bob Kolari, but Sunday it was the players themselves who caused the 6-2 defeat.

One press box wag remarked during the game, "if this is 'Puck Night', The players gave away more on the ice than the management did in the stands". The team looked like they came to play early in the first period but came out on the short end of a 2-1 score. They went into a complete shell from that point on and committed so many mental errors that it was hard to believe. Even Terry O'Reilly was going half-speed and that is unusual. Oshawa's goals were scored by O'Reilly and Methe and for Ottawa, Merrick had two with singles going to McSheffery, Dunlop, Ball, and Bobette.

When a team starts to go flat or doesn't start at all, the first inclination of the fans and the sports-writers is to jump on the back of the coach, but in this case, on Sunday, the great Knute Rockne would not have been able to rouse this team. Reigle has worked hard with the Gens this year and at times it looks like the boys are going to respond, but they seem to go well for only a part of a game and then go back to this aimless type of play. A coach can only do so much and then the players must take over. The coach cannot go out on the ice and play the game for them. The only solution for this teams appears to be that the players must dig a little deeper and discover some pride of their own. I know that Reigle is a proud man and Matt Leyden is a proud man but where is the pride of these hockey players? Do they think that just because they sign contracts nowadays they just have to show up to get their money? Don't they owe the team and the fans, who pay the freight, more than that?

The Generals had a bad break when Doug Ferguson pulled some muscles in his foot. At the time of this writing, it was not known how serious the injury was. Ferguson has developed into the Gens' most able rearguard over the past number of games and if he is lost for any length of time, will be a real serious blow to the team. The team now hits the road for the next three games as they visit London, Toronto and Hamilton. The next home game is against Peterborough on Sunday November 29.

Incidentally, the ever-faithful Booster Club will be running bus trips to London and Toronto this weekend. Anyone interested in making these trips can do so by contacting Madeleine Ashmore at 725-8894.

Slew of blanks highlights Dunlop

Upsets and a slew of blank ends highlighted the third day of qualifying play at the Dunlop Invitational Bonspiel at Whitby Saturday.

Current Quebec champion Bill Kent of Montreal Heather and 1969 Ontario Brier skip Ken Buchan of London, Ontario, went to the sidelines as a number of tight, low scoring matches determined more qualifiers for next weekend's wrapup.

Kent's rink, hampered by an ankle injury suffered in a match two days ago by second Don Aitken, lost both its games: 7-4 to Murray McGregor from Guelph and 6-5 to Weston's Ralph Donovan.

Buchan squeezed by Bob Dolishny of Welland, 8-7, but was eliminated 7-4 to Jim McDonald of Hamilton.

McDonald also put a guard on Kingston skip Ted Brown's previously clear shot at a second straight Dunlop title by beating the defending champion 6-4.

McDonald joins Hamilton Thistle's Cam Guyatt, a two-match winner last week, in the finals, the first time Hamilton has ever been represented in the top playoff of the five-year-old event.

The fourth and last day of qualifying will be staged Friday at Whitby, and features such curlers as ex-Brier skip Bob Mann of Kingston, Ottawa's Dave Pedley, Alf Phillips Jr. of Toronto's Tam Heather, and two Northern Ontarians, Bill Grozelle of Cobalt and Herb Pile of Geraldton.

Three-game winners from previous rounds who will meet Saturday are Bruce Munro of Toronto Humber Highland vs. Bob Woods of Toronto Avonlea, and 1970 Brier skip Paul Savage with his rink from Toronto Terrace against Ted Clarke Sooping it up to bring a lead stone home, skip Murray McGregor of Guelph (left), ably aided by the elbow efforts of vice-skip Clay Switzer (centre) and second Tom Lane, went on to win two out of three matches Saturday at the Dunlop Invitational Bonspiel at the Whitby Curling Club. McGregor's victories over Quebec champion Bill Kent of Montreal by 7-4 and over Ian Auld of Royal Canadian (Toronto) by 3-2 enabled his rink to proceed to the finals this coming weekend. His one loss was to Stu Daw of Dixie in a 7-6 cliffhanger.

The Opel GT for 1971, shown in Oshawa Civic Square.

By Peter Brouwer

Last summer, on a visit to the old country I had a chance to drive a car quite unlike anything I'd ever seen before. First impression: it's a cross between a Jaguar and a fancy Fiat sports car.

Now, a year later, it's here.

The 1971 Open GT — a racy, two passenger coupe with spectacular performance and aerodynamic styling — is being introduced to Canada by General Motors this week.

The German-built Opel GT styling features concealed headlamps, Kamm-type rear deck and chrome-tipped wheels which accent the aerodynamic profile. Retractable headlamp covers fit flush with the body and flank a matched set of functional hood scoops. Front and rear illuminated side marker lamps and cornering lights and extra large taillights and turn signals make the GT visible at night from any direction.

Standard equipment includes a 1.9 liter overhead cam engine, which burns unleaded fuel, console-mounted four-speed manual transmission, full gauge instrumentation with electric tachometer and clock, bucket seats, A.M. radio and power brakes with front discs.

Among Opel's options are an electrically heated rear window defroster and a GM developed three-speed fully automatic transmission.

To match the GT's performance characteristics, all models are fitted with 165HR x 13 tires which are matched with front disc brakes and rear drum brakes, offering a total effective braking area of 79 square inches. The GT braking system also includes a dual master cylinder with a brake warning light.

Frame and body on the Opel GT are combined into one integral unit to offer minimum vibration. The tracking is firm and solid due to heavy-duty shock absorbers and rear coil spring suspension. A track bar in the rear adds to the superflat cornering characteristics.

Seat and shoulder belts are standard equipment. Inboard seat and shoulder belts are stored in retainers between the seats when not in use. Both seat and shoulder belts are fastened directly to the body. Seat back latches hold the seat in position until released.

Just above the interior console of the Opel GT are the toggle switches that control the GT's lighting system, heater and defroster, and windshield wipers.

The rally-designed steering wheel is fitted to an energy-absorbing steering column. GM's anti-theft steering lock is positioned conveniently on the right side of the column.

Another major engineering feature of the Opel GT is cooling and lubrication. A heavy-duty radiator with a five-bladed fan helps assure efficient engine cooling. A lubed-for-life chassis is standard along with a locking gas cap for security.

The Opel GT 1.9 liter engine is a four-cylinder inline O.H.V. water-cooled type with 2-barrel carburetor. The engine has a displacement of 115.9 cu. in. Gross horsepower is 90 at 5,200 r.p.m. Net horsepower is 77 at 4,800 r.p.m.

The car will be sold by selected authorized Pontiac-Buick-Opel dealers across Canada whose staffs have been fully trained to offer full and complete service for the Opel GT.

If you want something really special, Opel GT is a car you should consider.

It doesn't come cheap for its size. It's only a two-people car with really not much more space than enough for one big suitcase or a baby in a basket. (Between $3,800 and $4,000 is the price, depending on automatic transmission option.) But it's very much a real driver's car. It hugs the road like a thoroughbred and is really quite relaxing to drive at the same time. Compared to other sports cars I found that the outstanding difference. And you can feel that it's built to last.

The Opel GT will probably turn out to be a leader in its class for quite some time. It's nice to see the domestic manufacturer offer something in this line after years of foreign domination.

As for miles-per-gallon, you'll be very pleasantly surprised.

Above is an excerpt from the photologue, "Sons of The Sacred Soil," which will be presented by Rev. William Jones at the First Baptist Church, Sunday, at 7 p.m.

Rev. Jones visited the Bible lands in September 1970. The photologue traces the problem of the Palestinians as presented to the tour. Rev. Jones' tour was sponsored by the Canadian Council of Churches. It took place in the midst of complicated events and Rev. Jones recorded the entire trip taking hundreds of slides.

Rev. Jones is pastor of the First Baptist Church, Hortop Street and is a member of the Oshawa Camera Club. He was an award winner in last year's annual competition. His photography has won many prizes and has been published in both secular and religious press.

Through his presentation the minister hopes to convey to the Canadian public something of the frustration and the injustice that has been done to the people of Holy Land, the Palestinians, dispossessed and leaderless.

"Their plight should be the concern of all humanitarians". The presentation is open to the public.

The official sod-turning ceremony for the Oshawa Lodge took place last week and helping to officiate were Keith Ross (left) representing the Industrial Commission, Father Cignac, Steve Melnichuk and Tom Sanci of Oshawa Lodge.

Oshawa will have a new nursing home in February of 1971 and according to its builder Tom Sanci it won't be "your ordinary nursing home".

"The medical profession has added years to our lives and we intend to add life to those added years," says Mr. Sanci.

The building will be called "The Oshawa Lodge" and is being built on 10 acres of land on Thornton Road across from the Civic Auditorium. It will accommodate 100 people in private, semi-private rooms. Two rooms will accommodate four people.

"We are attempting to pattern our nursing lodge after a home, complete with fire place and recreation room."

Mr. Sanci took two years to choose the location of the home and is particularly pleased with the Thornton Rd. location. The women will be able to go to the Civic Auditorium to attend the bingos and the men can catch a few hockey games.

For most elderly people meal time is one of the highlights of their day. In order to offer a variety, the dining room will feature a buffet style serving table which will allow the patients to choose from a varied menu.

"There is no excitement in having a plate plunked down in front of you even if it is prepared by a dietitian," says Mr. Sanci.

Tea rooms will be located throughout the building to allow the patients to make themselves a cup of tea or coffee anytime of the day or night.

A snack bar is planned where a cup of coffee and a donut will cost 10 cents. "This is to allow the people to feel as if they are going out for coffee. The profits will go back to the patients."

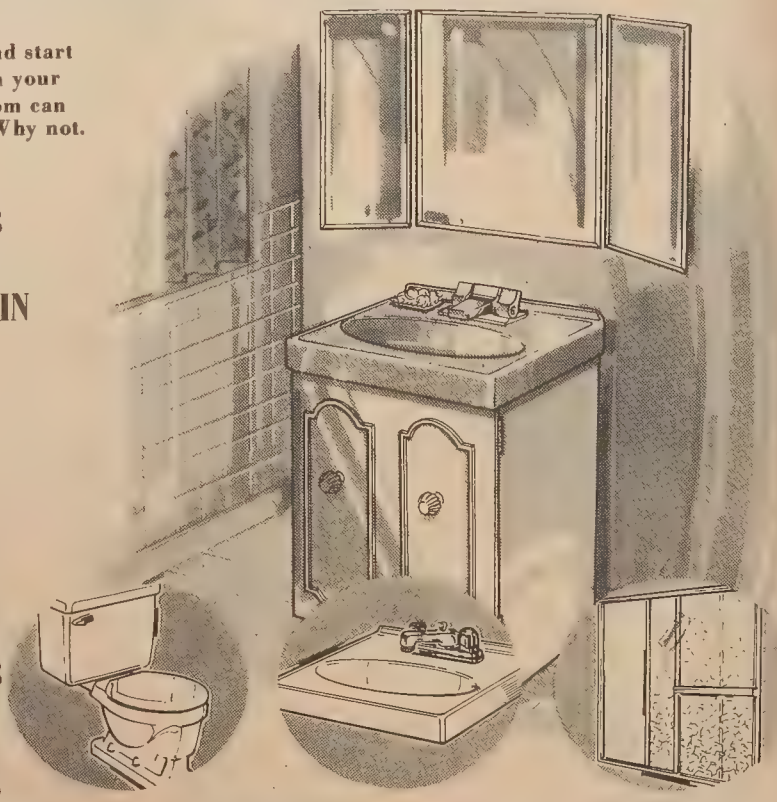
The home will also feature an inter-denominational chapel, a library and a family room. A tuck shop will be set up to display and sell any crafts the patients have made.

Surrounding the one storey brick structure will be 10 acres of landscaped property featuring a park setting to encourage the patients to go out for walks.

Both private and welfare patients will be admitted to Oshawa Lodge. "Just because a person has only his old-age pension doesn't mean he has to become a second class citizen."

Mr. Sanci and his staff have attended many conferences and seminars directed toward designs and color schemes for nursing homes. He will be color co-ordinating various rooms to allow the patients to associate certain colors with specific rooms.

It is expected the nursing home will employ approximately 100 local people.



Mr. Sanci would like to see an advisory board of directors set up consisting of Oshawa residents who would have the interest of the nursing home at heart and at the same time maintaining community interest.

The nursing home is being built by Bestview Holdings Limited, a Toronto based firm.

Check who's who at two forums

Can't make out who's who among the candidates and what they stand for? You've never heard of some of them?

Don't worry. If you pay attention and if you're willing to lend an ear during the next couple of weeks you'll know all you need to know in order to make an intelligent decision on December 7, election day.

The Oshawa-Whitby Liberal Association and the New Democratic Party have both organized forums to give the people a chance to hear candidates.

The mayoralty candidates, board of control contestants and board of education candidates will be heard at the UAW Hall, Nov. 24 at 7 p.m. The following night, on the 25th, it's the turn of aldermen and PUC candidates, also at 7 p.m.

The Liberal candidate's forum is planned for the evening of the 26th at 8 p.m., E.A. Lovell School.

Meanwhile, extensive interviewing of candidates is being carried out on Radio CKLB and mayoralty candidates are being interviewed on Cable TV as well.

And, don't forget to take a careful look at next week's This Week, as we present the candidates and their views in print.

OAPADS explosion averted

Oshawhit merger still inevitable, says Oshawa

"Regional Government is inevitable."

It's a favorite of the municipal politicians, all of whom have uttered the statement at one time or other.

And Oshawa and area politicians have been showing they mean it, by delving deeply into the "how" of regional government, through the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study — OAPADS for short.

"Merger of Oshawa and Whitby is inevitable."

That wasn't a favorite quote, but it was one that got a lot of use from Oshawa politicians during the last few months. But the idea was so unfavorably received by the politicians of Whitby that this week, somehow, the merger does not appear to be as inevitable as it was last week.

At its meeting Friday, the executive committee of OAPADS (this committee consists of representatives of the municipalities involved, combined with full-time study officials and provincial representatives) voted not to go through with plans for the study to determine the feasibility of an Oshawa-Whitby merger.

The decision doused a potential explosion in OAPADS that threatened a possibility of regional government as decreed by Queen's Park, without suggestions of the Oshawa area electorate being taken into account particularly.

Oshawa's merger proposal, supported by Bowmanville, Darlington and East Whitby had brought angry threats from other members of OAPADS to throw in the towel, and to call a halt to the study.

Even last week at a gathering in Port Perry, Ontario County municipalities voted in favor of an alternate proposal that would make Ontario County a regional government area, excluding Oshawa. Feelings were running high. Tempers flared.

But on D-day, Friday, all was relatively calm on the OAPADS front. All but the Mayor of Ajax, and the Reeve of Pickering spoke in tones of moderation.

Now what?

Where does it all leave Oshawa and Whitby?

The situation is perhaps best summed up by Mayor Bruce Mackey this week. He says that although he is disappointed "that the merits of having a merger study have not been grasped by the Executive Committee of OAPADS, I feel that Oshawa must respect the decision of the majority, and in so doing uphold the integrity of the Study.

"We have made our point that we are serious about the merger proposal, and we still retain that position.

"The points that we have raised during this debate must receive serious consideration by Donald Paterson, the Regional Government Study Principal, because our proposal of merger is based on the premise of the inevitability of merger, and will no doubt be accomplished sometime in the near future. Even at this time, our proposal has the support of East Whitby, Darlington and Bowmanville, as well as the Central Ontario Regional Development Council representative."

The mayor said he was pleased too that the Oshawa City Council has reaffirmed its support of OAPADS and the implementation of regional government.

City council backs Mayor Mackey's statement that the merger will come about in the future. Council's stand on the merger issue has been unanimous. Just exactly how members have compromised to reach unanimity is not known to the news media. (Example: Friday morning, 8 a.m., before the OAPADS meeting was held, city council met behind closed doors to decide on its stand in the merger issue. Reporters who had asked to sit in on the discussion to enable them to write properly backgrounded stories, were excluded.)

At the OAPADS meeting later on Friday, Ald. Ed McNeely made the proposal to go ahead with the merger study. He summed up Oshawa's position carefully and without fanfare. (He was accused by Tom Edwards of Whitby of using the merger presentation to his own political benefit. McNeely is a candidate for the mayoralty.)

Pickering Reeve Williams called the merger idea "totally unacceptable" and indicated he wanted out of OAPADS if the merger study plan were approved.

For 100 years

Controller C. E. McIlveen drew a parallel between county government — "we've had it for some 130 years" — and regional government, saying he would like all the facts looked at now, including a merger study, "so we get something that's good for another 100 years."

Controller Christine Thomas, pointing out that the merger would come eventually, suggested it would be "better to have a good look at it now." She also suggested independent consultants be hired to carry out the merger study, in preference to the Patterson consultants carrying on the work for OAPADS.

Alderman McNeely said a regional government bill arrived at after a merger study would be "much more acceptable and carry a lot more conviction."

Replying to suggestions that regional government would be held up by the merger study, he said if everyone cooperated the study could be carried out and the new government scheme could still meet its Jan. 1, 1973 deadline.

Mayor Mackey followed up on this suggestion, and in reply to a statement from the Queen's Park representative that legislation must be in by mid-year to be handled by the government in the winter session of the following year. The mayor said if the provincial government "means business, it should have methods to get these things before the house in time."

Mayor Des Newman spoke of the urgency of meeting the deadline for regional government, and he pointed to development being lost to areas west of Toronto. Referring to the Chrysler announcement as the first indication, he prophesied there would be a second announcement coming up shortly of similar magnitude.

Mayor Newman warned of OAPADS "holding up the province" and said he estimated the merger study might take nine months.

Reeve Williams was rapped over the knuckles by Chairman Stan Lovell of the Ontario County Board of Education, for his suggestion that the County Board was "controlled by Oshawa." (Later in the meeting, Mr. Lovell proved the point by abstaining from voting on Oshawa's merger motion, along with the Separate School representative.)

Togetherness

Warden Robert Timbers, speaking for Ontario County called for togetherness of the municipalities involved. While he respected Oshawa's point of view, he felt a merger was not what the province meant by its decentralization policy.

Meanwhile, during his visit to Oshawa last week, Municipal Affairs Minister McKeough refused to be cornered on the Oshawa-Whitby merger issue

Gibson reports for development council

Area boom depends on jetport location

The day after its meeting last week, Oshawa city council fired off a telegram to Transport Minister Jamieson in support of an Oshawa area location for Ontario's second jetport.

Council's move came on the advice of Alderman Ross Gibson, Oshawa's representative on the Central Ontario Regional Development Council. (Ontario is divided into a number of regional development areas. We are part of the Central Ontario area.)

Council's wire is to be followed up by a brief to the minister, showing the advantages of an Oshawa area location in view of provincial plans to push development at the Oshawa Central City region.

"There's no time left to waste," Gibson says. As Oshawa's representative, and also as executive secretary of CORDEC, Gibson has been closely associated with planning for an area much larger than being contemplated in detail in the Oshawa area Regional Government Study that has been making headlines during the last few weeks.

In a thought-provoking report to council last week the alderman presented the location of Ontario's second international jetport — which some authorities say will eventually take over the lions share of traffic from Toronto — as the generator that would put the Oshawa area into a development boom.

Gibson said the Development Council of which he is a member along with other municipal and provincial government representatives, "is of the unanimous opinion that the success of development to the east of Toronto hinges on government incentives or an international airport to the north east of Toronto, preferably north and slightly west of Oshawa."

Gibson called on council to obtain copies of briefs already submitted to Federal Authorities by municipalities seeking an airport in their area. The alderman suggested council review and decide to back one or two of the already proposed locations, or prepare its own brief, tying Oshawa's location to the Regional Government plans and the provincial position taken in relation to the Oshawa area under its plans for development of a Toronto Centred Region.

The alderman called on council to substantiate its belief in the development of the area east of Toronto, but "not by criticism without action."

Two years ago Mayor Desmond Newman and a Whitby delegation approached federal authorities to push for location of a jetport. Whitby was polite-

By Peter Brouwer

He will — no, he will not; he will — no, he will not.

That was about all you heard on the Oshawa political scene last week as three candidates had declared themselves for the mayoralty and Alderman Gordon Attersley kept mum, despite rumours that he would . . . .

Monday night, at the nomination meeting he made it official by having his name put on the green board in the council chambers, about 10 feet behind the spot from where Ald Ed McNeely announced his candidacy a week ago, while answering a question from the same Alderman Attersley.

I asked Mr. Attersley, an 18-year veteran of Oshawa politics, and the service club scene and the boy scout scene and the GM scene and all the other local scenes, why it took him until nomination night to make up his mind.

The reason he gave was that in his opinion the mayor's job is a full-time job taking from 60 to 70

Radio,tv, newspaper to cooperate in election

Traditional rivalry between press, radio and television has been replaced by total co-operation in Oshawa, as the three branches of mass media are working together toward making a success of Durham College's civic election TV coverage.

The election program — most ambitious ever undertaken by this College of Applied Arts and Technology — will be telecast on Monday, December 7, over Oshawa Cable TV facilities simultaneously with the radio coverage over CKLB, Oshawa (1350).

CKLB's coverage will begin as soon as the polls close at 7 p.m. The telecast will begin about the time definite trends develop, at 8 p.m. Both broadcasts will last until about midnight.

Ross Gibson, CKLB news director and a veteran of local political reporting, will be one anchorman on the combined broadcast. (Mr. Gibson is also an incumbent aldermanic candidate.)

Peter Brouwer, editor of This Week, and a regular political commentator on his own show on Oshawa Cable TV, will be the other anchorman.

The experience of both anchormen will add extra depth to the election coverage.

They will, however, be the only on-camera and on-microphone professionals. Students from Durham's Applied Arts Division will also be on air both live and on special civic-oriented tapes.

These and other facets of the show are under the direction of producer-director William McCarthy, instructor in Radio/TV Communications in the College's Communication Arts program. He has had many years' experience with both CTV and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and with private radio in this country.

Research

Also involved in the program are Public and Personnel Administration students, who are handling political research, and Design Arts students, who are providing graphic materials for the TV segment of the simulcast.

The broadcasts will originate from Election Central at Oshawa City Hall and the Public Utilites Commission building, where the election computer is located.

Linked in by two-way radio will be the College's journalism newsroom, five miles north, where first year Communication Arts students will handle out-of-town results from the Broadcast News wire of Canadian Press, available for this occasion through the tie-in with CKLB. Results will be relayed by the two-way radio to Election Central.

Regular breaking news will be handled by CKLB's newsroom, which will break into the simulcast during video portions broadcast from Election Central.

The College's Applied Arts Division is responsible for all creative aspects of the program as well as overall production and direction. Technical know-how and advice will be provided, as usual in College productions, by the Technology Division, two of whose students are employed at Cable TV.

Facilities for broadcast are provided by Oshawa Cable TV and CKLB, although some College equipment is involved.

The ready co-operation of CKLB, Oshawa Cable TV, and This Week with Durham College sets an example of media-educational relationships which hopefully will be copied elsewhere.

These three branches of media have a record of outstanding public service; this latest endeavor, involving the area's community college is the first major co-operative undertaking.

SPECIAL ELECTION PAPERS

The next issue of This Week on Dec. 2, will be devoted mainly to the upcoming municipal elections. Features will deal with the candidates and the issues, and each candidate's platform and short background will be presented in our news columns.

Candidates are reminded that copy deadline for this issue is 4 p.m. Friday, Nov. 27.

In addition to next Wednesday's This Week, there will be a special edition for delivery on the Saturday before election, providing there is sufficient participation by the candidates. Copy deadline for this edition is 4 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 2.

Results by 3 a.m.? Not this time

City Clerk Roy Barrand, in charge of Monday's nomination meeting called it "one of the liveliest activities to date." He felt competition was more keen than it has ever been in the past.

By last night, 9 p.m. he had sent the complete ballot to the printers.

A composite ballot will be made up with all the nominees for mayor, board of control, aldermen and public utilities commission. The ballot will be perforated in four sections allowing the counters to divide it on election night.

A separate ballot will be drawn up for Ontario County Board of Education, the Separate School Board and the separate school candidates running for election to the Public School board.

Mr. Barrand made a study on one polling booth last election to illustrate why it took so long for election results to be filed. Calculating on a 40 per cent turnout he estimated there were 6400 ballots to be separated and counted. "No wonder some of the results were not turned in until 3 a.m. This year we hope, with the help of the computors, it will be a lot sooner".

The city clerk's department is preparing cards to be sent out to 25,000 or 26,000 homes in Oshawa indicating where to vote.

Biggest ever nomination turnout

If the turnout of candidates on nomination night is any sign — and the local municipal "experts" and "pros" say it is — Oshawa is in for an active election and a healthy turnout at the polls on December 7.

There were 98 candidates nominated for 40 positions. There will be no acclamations.

Early on during nomination hour, Alderman Gordon Attersley made it a four-way race for the mayoralty.

Council chambers were packed as hundreds of interested citizens turned out either to nominate a candidate or to stand for election.

According to city hall officials "never have so many run for so few positions". Almost 100 hundred candidates were nominated for the 40 positions available.

Mayor Bruce Mackey called the turnout "one of the largest in years", adding that he thought the public had a good selection. "I think this speaks well of the interest of the public tonight and it is most encouraging to see this great turnout," said the mayor.

He was especially surprised at the number of nominations for school board and observed it indicated "the importance people are attaching to education nowadays".

While there had been some speculation that Mayor Mackey would run for alderman, he was not nominated. "I have decided to step out completely for a couple of years and maybe see things in perspective. I would like to get back into politics in the future", his worship added.

Terriffic

John Swan, president of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce also thought the "teriffic turnout" indicated more interest in the city.

"I think this indicates the public is more interested in municipal politics than they are given credit for," says Mr. Swan.

He added that next time, if the interest is nurtured and continues to grow, he hoped "a bigger room would be found to accommodate all the public".

Con. Margaret Shaw said she was disappointed at the number of mayoralty candidates and was hoping for a bigger slate. "Considering two of the candidates have never before run for municipal election, the public really has only two experienced candidates to choose from."

She said she was also disappointed in the turnout of candidates for Board of Control. "I expected a lot more competition," she said.

Con. Christine Thomas called the large turnout "a healthy sign that will generate interest to the rest of the public".

It's more of these planners we want.....

Planning for tomorrow and the day after and the next generation and the one after that. . .

It's where a considerable share of your tax dollars goes these days. But it's money well-spent.

Just last week we saw three prime examples in Oshawa of what the foresight of a few politicians only a few years ago is beginning to accomplish for us.

It is good to stop a while and ponder something we are doing right for once.

In Oshawa city council last week evidence of some well-thought out planning for years to come was presented by Ald. Gib Murdoch in his Creek Valley presentation, and by Ald. Ross Gibson in his regional development council brief.

And then, later in the week came the Central Ontario Joint Planning Board with some thinking that will give future generations the opportunity to enjoy the Whitby-Oshawa-Darlington waterfront in years to come.

All three presentations will have far-reaching effects on Oshawa and area. All three, if implemented carefully and not filed on a shelf to gather dust, will make this a much better place to live.

All three come at a very opportune time. There's an election just around the corner.

The plans presented help remind us that what we need are men and women who will appreciate that we depend on them to plan on and on. We need men and women with foresight. These who cannot look past today, and who stare themselves blind on the details, while failing to see the total picture, have no place on our councils.

A number of our politicians have shown that foresight.

In the plans presented last week we have seen the thinking of men who initiated those plans, and of the men who stuck with them and the men who are planning to see them through.

These people deserve our support at the polls.

Without these people we cannot save our waterfront, or our Creek Valley or our downtown, and without them we will not make this the great place we can make it — for our generation and our kids.

.....and less of this kind of plan

While we heartily approve the initiative of the Central Ontario Joint Planning Board in undertaking the waterfront study, we cannot bring ourselves to concur with some of its recommendations. However, to have some plan at all, is progress.

What we would take issue with is the concept of a lakeside drive.

Apart from the capital cost, maintenance, snowlpowing in winter, do we just because we have GM on our doorsteps, have to pay allegiance to the automobile in what is probably the last readily accessible area of unspoiled natural beauty?

You may say that without such a driveway, the lakeshore is not accessible — for heavens sake, what's wrong with people's feet? We're not all lame, halt and cripples!

In building a road, are we not inevitably going to destroy part of the very thing we are building access to enjoy?

If you let the automobile in, then we can guarantee the lakeshore on either side of the road will be festooned with all the usual automobile-born garbage and pollution we have come to expect where access is afforded to cars. You've seen it all — non-returnable bottles, beer cans, paper of all kinds, plastic bags, and in instances where the shore is closer than the city dump (and free after dark) the inevitable trunk load of unwanted personal possession be it decayed beds, supermarket carts, broken tv's, in fact all the consumed by-products of modern living. Is this the prospect we have to look forward to in the name of progress?

On the other hand, if you restrict access to those hardy enough and who still have the use of their legs, whether they walk or take a bicycle, we can promise the garbage fallout will be greatly reduced, since the quantity will be restricted to human power.

Want an example of what we mean? Go and look at the lakeshore part that is accessible now by road, or ask the parks department how much it spends of cleaning up garbage in the lakeshore areas.

No merger, but benefits remain

What? No Oshawhit?

Well, not for the time being.

Oshawa's plan to establish a solid seat for regional government has been blown by the massed opposition of Whitby and other municipalities taking Whitby's side in the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study.

It's done; there's no use crying over spilt milk. However, when the financial chickens come home to roost in the form of increased taxbills for the Whitby household, we reserve the right to say "we told you so."

Now that amalgamation with Oshawa — and remember, it was not annexation, but a matter of equal partners doing their thing together — is up in the air for probably several years, let us not lose sight of the benefits of the merger, but let us work on the practical applications still open to us, merger or no merger, to the benefit of taxpayers in both communities, but especially in Whitby.

Why not start right now in both municipalities, a series of discussions aimed at bringing about economies in the areas of duplication in the respective city hall functions.

Why not merge, or partially merge some of the functions of the following departments: police, fire, planning, public works, industrial promotion, recreation, utilities and tax collection.

What is wrong with economies? Up until now Whitby has gone out of its way to accentuate the negative side of amalgamation, but the positive side should not — not even now — be swept under the carpet. There is no vice whatsoever in making economies where possible.

And by the way, Mayor Newman, before you start a bigger and better city hall than Oshawa's, the city council chamber in Oshawa is STILL available every other Monday night for your deliberations, and since we last mentioned it, there has been organized a GO-transit bus service for the Whitites to attend the council meetings. It passes the Oshawa city hall on its way through the city.

Also, we are confident that Oshawa City Council would bend over backwards to accommodate your council if it would save the citizens of Whitby money.

You'll recall that some weeks ago we commented on the seizure of adult reading material from Reid's Bookstore by the police and we stated that in our opinion it was a pity the police were not directed into something a little more constructive.

A lot of entertainment-hungry Oshawa people are missing the boat every other Monday.

What?

They are. And they're missing a free show in one of the city's finest auditoriums — probably THE finest.

I'm talking about city council meetings.

Where else can one take in a free movie followed by a freewheeling discussion, followed by a monotonous one, followed by a coffee party (or tea) with cake, all free again. . .

Mind you, not everyone wants to get to bed at 1.30 a.m., the time at which last week's performance wound up.

Still, if you had been there, you would have been entertained.

When I first came in at 7.30, I thought for a while these rumors about city council buying its own airplane were true. There was this man from De-Havilland Aircraft, complete with charts and slides, bringing council members up to date on the latest in planes that could be put to good use on short-run hauls, say from Oshawa to Toronto — downtown or the airport — or Kingston, Peterborough, Ottawa and Montreal. It was fascinating — if you're fond of airplanes and what goes with them. It was unfortunate council did not decide to buy an airplane. (Think of the newspaper stories that would have provided.)

Last week's council meeting thus started off with commuter planes and ended up in the jetset when Alderman Ross Gibson painted a picture of Ontario's second jetport rising out of the cornfields some 20 miles northwest of here in the future. And this airport would be the thing that would send the whole Oshawa region into orbit, economically speaking. Food for thought there.

Another thing you would have learned last week is that Alderman Jim Potticary had it in for a fish and chips truck that is creating a traffic hazard at a busy intersection near one of the city's arenas.

And that Controller Christine Thomas got three telephone calls the other night — at 1.10 a.m. — from people who complained they had been unjustly ticketed for parking where they shouldn't by the friendly neighborhood policeman.

And that Alderman Pilkey thought for a moment Alderman Alice Reardon was about to buy the Lancaster Hotel or expropriate part of it. Let me add, that was in connection with the proposed downtown parking garage, of course. (I can't see Mrs. Reardon wanting the place for herself, can you?)

You would have also heard Controller Dafoe ask "where does the conservation authority get the right to buy and develop land, and then to send the bill to the city" and leaving "no say for the elected members" and "where is it in writing" and you would have heard Ald. Murdoch reply that it's in the Conservation Act and Mayor Mackey reply, "well, then it's in writing."

Also at the council meeting you would have seen a big to-do about a motion that was called a "popular pre-election type motion" — Ald. Humphreys said it was, and I can't help but agree with him — by Alderman Pilkey who suggested a meeting between Mayor Mackey and the head of General Motors to make GM aware that there were quite a number of laid-off workers in Oshawa who should be considered for a job at GM if and when such a job were to become available.

To make a long story short, following a large number of "politically astute reactions" from among a number of the members, a meeting was ordered between mayor, two members of the social services committee and all heads of industry in Oshawa.

Another thing that you might have found amusing at the meeting was that Ald. McNeely announced his candidacy for mayor, just as Ald. Gordon Attersley, who at that time was thought to have some mayoralty plans of his own, was questioning McNeely. Following McNeely's announcement, Attersley came back with an "and now can I have an answer to my question?"

And you would have enjoyed the way Candidate Breough, another maybe mayor, and two of his henchmen marched into the council chambers and out again, shortly afterwards.

You would have also observed maybe mayor Peleshok patiently taking it all in and getting just as tired as the rest of us, as the night wore on.

There's a lot more you would have enjoyed.

Personally, I liked the airplane picture at the beginning of the meeting. But that's probably because I was wide awake then and I didn't get it all garbled up, which is what happened the next morning. My notes had somehow placed themselves in a new order, and reading through them quickly it was like a nightmare of Ald. Alice Reardon, owner of the Lancaster, taking city council flying in its own plane piloted by Controller Thomas, who had been kept up by phonecalls at 1.10 a.m., while Ald. Murdoch was muttering something about people not understanding council's decision to amend the conservation act to provide for Oshawa to have its own jetport located in downtown Whitby.

Well, anyway, try a council meeting sometime.

sible to minors. It's his sole concern and no one else's.

However, something which we consider a genuine case of obscenity was perpetrated just last week by none other than our own daily newspaper, the Oshawa Times, in its edition of Wednesday, Nov. 18.

Reporting on a case before the County Court held the previous day, the Times reporter managed to insert a blow-by-blow account of the whole sordid business of a couple convicted of assault on a girl, age 12.

Why do we object?

Presumably the reporter was only reporting the facts, and in this context, we have no argument. However, we do take issue with how the facts were presented in this particular article.

Surely, reporting to the effect that some sick persons had assaulted a 12-year-old would have been quite adequate.

It almost looks as though the editorial policy of the Times is establishing a pattern of writing some of its news stories to capitalize on their shock value.

Mr. Prince, a lot of pre-teens can read — think of your delivery boys and girls. If they asked you what some of the high falutin' words contained in this particular story meant, Mr. Prince, what would you answer? (Mr. Prince is the publisher of the Oshawa Times).

In case you think we are making a mountain of a molehill, we would remind the Times that in the Darlington murder case this summer, they managed to come up with an exclusive to the effect that the cat who resided close by was probably the sole life form that knew for sure the identity of the murderer (a great comfort to the girl's parents, but nevertheless in inordinately bad taste). And then just a little while ago the Times published on the front page one of the most obscene photographs portraying the demise of some unfortunate motorcyclist.

The latest article, last week, caps them all to date.

Perhaps the Times should consider carrying a warning on its front page to the effect that the editorial content of the paper contains "adult reading material" and should not be available to minors, let alone be delivered by them.

Also on this subject, we would draw your attention to a letter on page 5, from an irate parent.

Think about it, Mr. Prince! We'd be pleased to publish your explanation. We think this Oshawa mother deserves one.

It's taken a

at last the room

perhaps, that we referred to it

(In fact there is such a selection, we have decided to do our own Christmas shopping in the Pickwick Room). Come and

Sir,

Is the Oshawa Times a daily newspaper to serve the surrounding community or is it a scandal sheet?

We were very disturbed at the reporting of the indecent assault on a 12 yr. old girl which appeared in last Wednesday's edition of the Times. The public (except perhaps for a very warped minority) are not interested in all the gory little details of this event. Such lewd reporting can only be described as vulgar and obscene.

And what do we say to our 11 year old who is scanning the newspapers for items to be used in current events at school when she asks about the various acts described in such detail in this story?

The ravages inflicted upon this poor child are sick enough without the Oshawa Times sensationalizing them so vividly. How must this girls parents feel to see this sort of smut in print notwithstanding the fact that their own daughter was involved.

If people want to read this sort of detailed account of perverted sex then they can go to the local bookstore and purchase dozens of scandal sheets — at least they know what they are bringing into their homes and (I hope) have sense enough to keep it away from their youngsters.

One most certainly doesn't want this type of reporting in their family, daily newspaper. What can be done about it?

Sir:

I got my umpteenth parking ticket last week, and to be sure, I'm sick of running to the police station to pay it. I'm also sick of sticking nickels in parking meters.

Why can't we have what they've got in Kingston, where for every nickel you put in the meter you get at least a token which can be exchanged for money or merchandise at a local store?

And look at the fun we could have with bonus tokens!

I like shopping downtown, because I know the people I deal with, but these yellow tickets are driving people to the shopping plaza.

Jim Pastoor.

Sir:

In response to the letter last week by M. Saunders, I would like to say to you Mabel; abortions are up to the individual.

You state — quote "Our country will be dominated by foreign elements." Just what do you think Canadians are? — People who walk around with a special stamp on their foreheads singing "O Canada"; or are they snobbish people who over time have lost their foreign accent from parents, grandparents, etc. We all stem from emigrants somewhere along the line. Canadians were the ones with red skin and feathers in their hair when they greeted the foreigner Columbus as he stepped off the boat.

It is bias like yours that keeps Canada split up. Any person regardless of race or creed who says, "I want my home in Canada and raise my children to be good citizens here," is a Canadian. Usually these people have a greater respect for this country then many born here.

Grace Galbraith

Sir,

I would like to reply to the letter from Mabel Saunders which you published last Wednesday. I do not intend to go into the matter of abortions, but I would like to point out to her that all of us in Canada, unless we are Indians, are emigrants from foreign lands, or are descendants of such emigrants.

Also may I pount out to her that these same emigrants make Canada what it is. They have brought to Canada their culture and their enthusiasm. They have acquired Canadian citizenship of their own free will. They have brought to Canada the best of their own ethnic way of life. Many of them have brought memories of fear and oppression and they appreciate very deeply the democratic way of life and freedom of speech in Canada.

They did not come to Canada to dominate but to participate, and their contribution to Canada's growth makes Canada what it is today — a respected advocate for peaceful co-existence.

Sir:

Drug use runs in families. Children who use drugs have parents who use drugs and also brothers and sisters who use drugs.

I read this in a study of Ontario high school students made by the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation.

The majority of drug users have a low school-performance level although that does not necessarily mean they are less intelligent. Social class and occupation of the father seems to be unrelated to the drug use by students.

The report says also that where parents are frequent drug users, their children are as well; where parents are infrequent users or non-users their children are likely to be non-users of drugs.

I just thought I'd bring this to your attention.

R. J. Boone.

Sir:

The big band sound of the seventies needs exposure, especially among the youth of Oshawa. Talk about this kind of music and they think of Lawrence Welk or the music their parents enjoyed. Not so in the seventies.

It is known North America is a fad continent, whereas in Europe big bands are appreciated to the extent each note is savored and not taking for granted.

You can't appeal to youth or people in general with nostalgia. Period. Youth doesn't remember. You say 'Glenn Miller' they say, 'Glenn who?'

The bands themselves have to be playing 1970 and definitely not 1940.

Oshawa Civic Auditorium manager William Kurelo is reluctant to book big bands because of the price and local support.

It is really a pity, because the people deserve and need good music where the quality of musicianship is of the highest calibre in the big band context.

The price of booking a big band for a one nighter is expensive, but very reasonable as compared to booking a supposedly top rock band for a one nighter. More often than not, it is the promoters and agents that are making the money from the supposedly top rock bands. And who pays for all this garbage in the end?... Who?... Guess who?

The answer for the survival of good music and big bands is youth.

I am personally an arid fan of the "Buddy Rick Big Band" and have ventured twice to Toronto last February to watch the group in action. Why not in Oshawa?

Youth of Oshawa, it is not square or old fashioned to dig big bands, just good musical sense.

Brian A. Forshee.

hours a week, and that he had been five weeks trying to get a physical examination, but that just before the weekend he had been given a clean bill of health. "In fact, I was told my blood pressure was as good as that of a 18-year-old," he commented.

Attersley has served on all city council committees except public works. This term he is the chairman of the social services commiteee.

What about his platform?

Attersley replied "you don't have a platform in municipal politics. I am running as an individual. To have a platform you must have a party system". (Of which this candidate says he does not approve.)

Mr. Attersley is employed with General Motors in the parts operation, sales and planning division. While he was not permitted by his employer on earlier occasions to seek the mayoralty, this candidate says this time around "the company" approached him. He added that "to the best of my knowledge they have adopted a different attitude." If elected, Attersley would take leave of absence from his GM job.

What about the regional government question? The city nor anyone else has any great say, this candidate says. "It's perhaps a harsh term, but I feel it will be imposed on us."

His position as mayor would be to push for "the best deal we can get." Attersley said he would arrange a meeting with Municipal Affairs Minister McKeough "to present Oshawa's case in a logical business-like manner."

Of the current GM strike, he said "nobody really wins in a strike."

Mr. Attersley is the grandfather of five boys and a girl, three in B.C. and three in West Rouge. His two daughters and son are married.

He said he does "not plan to run a big campaign."

What was especially special about the Attersley decision Monday, was that it fell on Mrs. Attersley's birthday.

ly told at that time its approach was premature.

Priority

Alderman Gibson says location of the jetport is a high priority item. "This location problem must be solved, and it must be carefully considered in our regional planning."

The alderman has prepared a brief with comment to the Oshawa Area Planning and Development study and he urges that OAPADS give the question of a new airport careful consideration.

The CORDEC brief points out that the present Toronto airport was established prior to the considerations of modern day aircraft and in effect was not located with any particular overall plan in mind other than as a "place for planes to land." The area was relatively unpopulated, open and flat without major drainage problems; weather considerations, while not ideal, were suitable. A work force was not a major consideration as no great quantity of workers were required and secondly, those that were required could find accommodation nearby or drive to work not withstanding the fact that all the principle roads, in the area, were little more than gravel roads constructed to primitive standards.

When the construction of aircraft was commenced in the area large numbers of workers were needed.

The workers in the area by 1952-53 numbered some 13,000, a considerable workforce principally created because of the location of the original airport. Then by 1954 the years of the big "housing rush" began in the area. Demand for housing was not only in Malton, but in the adjacent communities of Brampton, Etobicoke, and the southern portion of the Township of Toronto creating great urban pressure.

Houses were built without regard, or indeed understanding, to the probable demands the changeover to the "Jet" would bring, even though the first "Jet" engines were being constructed in Malton.

So the airport grew. The people moved in. The highways were built. More industry was attracted. The planners planned but still in isolation.

The question is has the planning, in isolation, ended or is it still going on?

The latest plan produced, at some considerable cost, is called a transportation plan by some, a regional plan by others, it is known in the circles as MTARTS. Whatever it is, it must be considered incomplete either as a transportation plan or as a regional plan, simply because any plan for this area should have considered, in some depth, the "Airport." In all its aspects it was dealt with in a minimum way and in reading the document, in detail, one might almost say it was disregarded as a major influence in the vicinity. Is planning in isolation, "still" with us.

The object lesson of the situation is — "whatever steps are considered necessary in solving the location problems of the airport and its future needs, to be avoided at all costs is PLANNING IN ISOLATION."

Oshawa area site

The southern portion of Ontario county is in the stage of development that will encourage considerable growth and therefore, has all the possible dangers of what has happened in the Malton area. Should this be the area chosen, great efforts would be necessary to avoid the pitfalls of the past, if they can be avoided.

There are available areas of sufficient size to accommodate this use. The services could be made available to Lake Ontario and the transportation, of the area, is good now and is being improved. Population to service the use is there. The climatic conditions are probably well within the acceptable limits. This section of the region could be considered as a possibility but would have to be considered in the light of the final recommendations of the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study, the development policies of East Metro and the choice made from the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Transportation Study.

The central and the northern area of the county are not to be recommended. Transportation facilities are limited and, in fact, for this type of use, non-existent. Servicing would be most difficult and expensive.

Tickets at $5 each may be obtained from Archie Taylor, Robert Crawford or Jock (John) MacGregor.

The original membership numbered eight: John MacDiarmid, William Duncan, Ray Halliday, Dr. Walter Bapty, Matthew G. Johnston, James Reid, Donald MacLellan and John McLeod.

They resolved into a committee and elected the following officers: Honorary president, Colonel R. S. McLaughlin; president, John H. MacDiarmid; 1st vice-president, Lieut-Col. R. B. Smith; 2nd vice-president, John E. McLeod; secretary, Dr. Walter Bapty; treasurer, William C. Young; auditors, Robert Argo and Ben Johnston; chaplains, the late Reverend George Telford and the Reverend Hugh Davidson; pipers, Donald MacLellan and John Reid.

Sorry, John!

Apologies are due this week from This Week to one John DeHart, candidate in the municipal election.

In a list of candidates-to-date, on page 3 of this paper's Nov. 19 edition, Mr. DeHart's name was left off the list through an oversight of a staff member.

Please accept our apologies, Mr. DeHart!

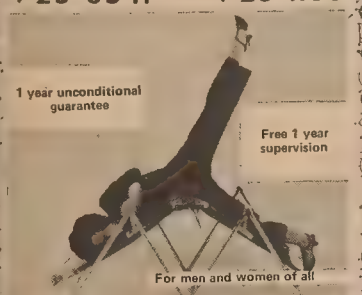
Candidate proposes "festival"

An annual "International Festival" — consolidating, co-ordinating, and enlarging the splintered existing folk festivals — has been proposed by Robert Moon, a Durham College teacher.

Mr. Moon, who is seeking a city council seat in the coming municipal election, said an international festival could last a week to 10 days. It could attract thousands of visitors from Toronto, Hamilton and other parts of Canada.



A festival of this nature would feature Ukrainian, Polish, Slavic, Greekdancers. Other cultural activities might also be featured, Mr. Moon said.

ENJOY PRE-CHRISTMAS SHOPPING IN THE ENCLOSED MALL

Thousands of tropical plants and trees grace the interior of the enclosed Mall at the Oshawa Centre. The decision on the species of plants to be used, obtaining them and planting them was the job of Edward Boyd and Son (Tropical Plants) of Pickering. Some of the more unusual plants at the Centre are the "Screw Pine" and two whole sections of Norfolk Island Pines. All of these luscious plants truly make the Oshawa Centre a tropical garden paradise.

Once an open air-court yard, the enclosure of the Mall at the Oshawa Centre has been a tremendous undertaking which was completed ahead of schedule. This outstanding achievement was done with a minimum of inconvenience to the Merchants and "Business as Usual" was the order of the day during the enclosure.

Tony has a home secretary plus six henchmen

Getting Tony Peleshok elected mayor of Oshawa is a family affair.

The news that their father was running for mayor came as a surprise to the six Peleshok children but the decision was reached after much consultation between Mr. Peleshok and his wife Ruth.

Ruth Peleshok is referred to by the family as the "home secretary". Her duties include answering the telephone, making contacts when she does the grocery shopping and generally making sure the rest of the family keep up with their school work while campaigning for their father.

The Peleshok children, who range in age from 19 to 6, are attempting to cover the entire city by December 7 distributing cards asking the people to vote for their father.

John, 18 attends Donovan Collegiate and has managed to recruit a few of his friends to help distribute the literature. Already they have distributed over 10,000 cards.

Ruth Peleshok thinks her husband would make an excellent mayor.

"He has lived in Oshawa all his life and is really very concerned with the welfare of the people of Oshawa. I think he has a real insight into the problems and welfare of the citizens."

Since her marriage 20 years ago Mrs. Peleshok has given up her teaching career and concentrated on bringing up her six children. She and her husband have taught all the children to play musical instruments and the entire family enjoys playing concerts at Hillsdale Manor.

If Mr. Peleshok were elected mayor the family would carry on as usual with little disruptions. "We are used to having Tony away quite often because he has always made it a point to attend most public meetings of interest to the community and he has attended all but one OAPADS meeting," says Mrs. Peleshok.

Mrs. Peleshok says she will probably attend forums with her husband in an attempt to familiarize herself with the public. Her experiences as a school teacher and later a music teacher, have eliminated any fear of public appearances and public speakings she says.

Her main interest outside the family is attending the church mission meetings where she and other women roll bandages and make hospital gowns.

She shares her husband's interest in civic affairs and remembers sitting beside the radio "many years ago" when the council meetings were broadcast.

For the next three weeks the Peleshok household will be a bustling hive of activity and Ruth Peleshok will be kept busy co-ordinating it all.

For the McNeely tribe it may be hamburgers

Since Ed McNeely announced he was running for the mayor's seat his wife Mary has been so busy that she says her five children come home every night from school wondering whether she has had time to make them a hot dinner or not.

"The children's biggest worry for a few days was whether or not they would have a hot meal for supper but I think now we have a routine worked out and everyone is quite happy," she says.

Mrs. McNeely, a vivacious, energetic woman, says her husband's decision to run did not come as a surprise to her because they had been discussing the possibility for some time.

The five children Brenda, 17, Brian, 16, Mary and Ann both 14 and the youngest Tommy 9 were very excited at the news and already young Tommy is planning dad's campaign. All the children took part in Mr. McNeely's last campaign for alderman.

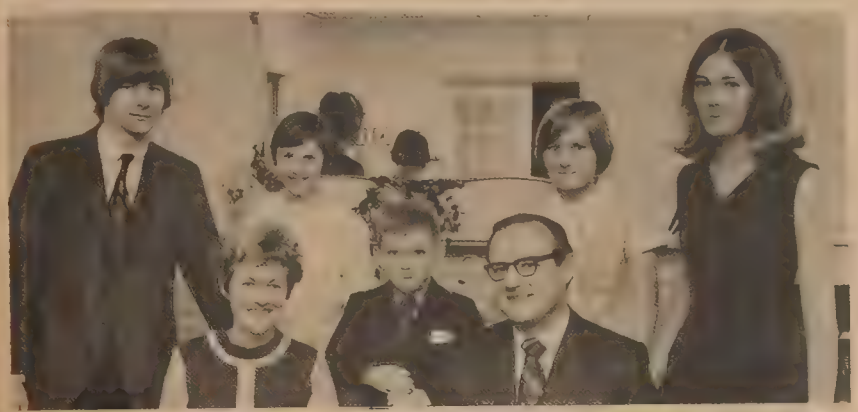
Mary McNeely spends the better part of her free time doing volunteer work for the Red Cross, the General Hospital and other organizations.

"If Ed is elected I would never give up my volunteer work. I would never give up the things I enjoy most and to me my volunteer work is a good outlet for all my excess energy".

Volunteers

One would wonder how Mrs. McNeely finds time to raise five children, run a household, do volunteer work and help with an election campaign at the same time.

Because her children are growing up and have interests outside the family, Mrs. McNeely does not feel their family life will suffer any if their father is elected.



"The children are used to their father being away at meetings and besides we have the weekends for family recreation. During the week the children are busy with school work." she says.

The whole family is planning to campaign very hard for their father. Mrs. McNeely will accompany her husband to all the speaking engagements and social functions.

She would like to encourage more citizens to come to the forums and council meetings so they could see the candidates in action

"We are just beginning to set the campaign into full force and I am most anxious to get things rolling."

The next two weeks are going to be extremely busy weeks in the McNeely household, and there may be times they will have to forget about a hot meal and send out for hamburgers!

Fashion is soft, graceful and fem

By Jo Aldwinckle
women's editor

The swingy, clingy look and the return of the feminine form divine, firmly belted at the natural waistline, were keynotes of the fashion show at Oshawa Golf Club last week.

The uncluttered, ladylike look prevailed in a sophisticated collection of daytime, leisure and formal wear; most of the garments depending on quality fabrics and fine craftsmanship for irreproachable taste.

Bias-cut, longuette grace, the slender midriff and welt in-seaming were all indications of the passing of the short, narrow shift.

Length varied with the styles, but 90 per cent of the dresses covered the knee. Mini-length tunics for day or evening, worn with straight or slightly belled pants, bridged the hemline transition.

The sleeveless, long vest (in Europe they're calling it a chasuble) was a favorite addition to tunic and pants and, worn unfastened, creates the fly-away, fluid mood of fashion.

Black is back for day and night. A John Warden design introduced black gaucho pants and bolero, topped with a midi cape and ranchero hat. For after-five, black crepe with a high-rise waist had a gently gathered skirt with a deep border of peau de soie. A black velvet bodice was teamed with a peau de soie skirt. Concealed openings on the side-fronts provided a glimpse of black-misted leg as the model walked.

Accessories, particularly scarves and hosiery are very important in the total fashion picture.

For special occasions, an ankle-length black crepe gown was styled with long, arum lily sleeves and a devastating deep V neckline, all bordered with silver passementerie.

A skirted, gold and black brocade coat was belted over black pants and a turtle-neck blouse. A sophisticated black and silver monster herringbone brocade was used for pants and vest over a crepe blouse.

Black is back, but it has not pushed white out of the year-round wardrobe. White matte jersey, simple V neck, long sleeves and a wide inset midriff, swished a midi flounce at the hemline. Silk fringe and silk jersey are fun partners in many models.

A graceful black velvet, bell skirt for evening was topped by a harlequin bodice of black velvet and white satin, interlaced in diamond effect.

For those who prefer color, — azalea pink pants were teamed with a matching paisley tunic, fringed below the knee. A two-piece, green satin hostess gown was comprised of a long-sleeved blouse and a gold embroidered wrap skirt. A long, printed satin skirt was wrapped over a black, silk jersey jump suit.

A holly green velvet hostess gown was enhanced by cuffs of white mink on bracelet sleeves.

The pleated dressmaker, — the all-occasion dress was welcomed back in sea-foam green silk crepe.

Beautiful blends in pastels and prints lent themselves for winter vacations or as fur coat partners for stay-at-homes. Reptile trim, metallic buttons added touches of chic.

Wonderful color combinations were modelled in over-the-boot curling pants and sweaters, designed for comfort with style and wearable for all figure types.

The costume look — the fun thing, was interpreted in a gypsy midi and in a red chiffon harem suit with long, cuffed sleeves, a high roll collar and high-rise, beaded belt.

The parade of fashion was presented by the Ladies Section of Oshawa Golf Club and convened by Mrs. W. D. Dobson and Mrs. R. H. Davis. A Christmas decor of twinkling trees, holly swags and wreaths and table centres of candles, foliage and glitter made a festive setting in lounge and dining room.

Norma Wildgoose gave an excellent commentary and Marion Campbell provided the gentle background of organ music.

The show was made possible by Franklin's of Oshawa; R. B. Reed and Sons Florists, Ltd., Davidson's Shoe Store and the Thomas House of Music.

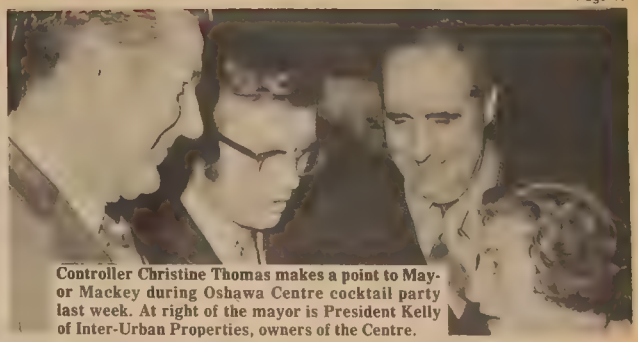
WWL recon recognizes volunteers

In recognition of his support and personal interest in Eastview Boys' Club, a self portrait was presented to Stewart Alger, chairman of the former Building Committee at a recent Recognition Night arranged by the Women's Welfare League of Simcoe Hall.

The presentation was made by the special representative of the Boys' Clubs of Canada, Ed Mitchell.

On behalf of her husband, Mrs. Frank McCallum accepted his self portrait in recognition of his services as chairman of the Building Committee of the Crippled Children's Centre.

Both recipients returned the presentations to executive members of the Women's Welfare League. The portraits will be hung in the buildings which Stewart Alger and Frank McCallum did so much to establish.



Mrs. J. D. R. Galbraith, president of the WWL, presented citations to E. F. Bastedo, S. T. Hopkins and Judge Harold McNeill. Mrs. Roger Wolfe, chairman of the Crippled Children's Unit Committee, made similar presentations to Mrs. Ralph Campbell, Margaret Barta, Harry Millen, George Fletcher and the medical consultants for the centre.

Volunteer award certificates were presented by staff members to approximately 130 volunteers present. A total of about four hundred will be presented.

Cedric Orchard acted as master of ceremonies and Hal Fuller, administrator of the Settlement House introduced staff members.

Ed Mitchell spoke on the value of volunteers to any service agency. He also stressed that volunteers should be interested in the quality of the service given and should perform well.

Mel Curry, Simcoe Hall staff member, entertained with organ interludes; refreshments were served and a pleasant social evening followed.

Controller Christine Thomas makes a point to Mayor Mackey during Oshawa Centre cocktail party last week. At right of the mayor is President Kelly of Inter-Urban Properties, owners of the Centre.

COMMITTEES

When a new city council takes over in January it is likely going to be faced by a whole new set of committees, or perhaps no committees at all. Council's "reforms committee" under Ald. Ed McNeely is to look into the possibility of a restructured committee setup for a new council to start off with in 1971.

Rediscover a shopping centre

The closed-in malls at the Oshawa Shopping Centre have brought a new perspective in family shopping.

The background of the Oshawa Centre goes back to 1956 when Principal Investment put together an open strip Shopping Centre with stores facing one another across a 40-ft. street. The major stores at that time were the T. Eaton Company and Loblaws with representation from such companies as Fairweathers, Reitmans, Tamblyns, F. W. Woolworths, Laura Secords and local independent merchants. In the beginning the centre was slow to catch on and it took a number of years before it started showing a profitable picture.

By 1966 the LCBO was located in the centre close to Stevenson Rd. Eatons had made an addition to their store by 1967.

Simpsons-Sears joined the centre in 1968 with a two-storey department store and automotive centre. Canadian Interurban Properties Limited who had taken over from Principal Investments were already formulating their plans for an enclosed mall and office building in 1968.

Population

Market studies pointed out the tremendous population growth of the area. A 52% increase per decade indicates that in the City of Oshawa alone by 1976 there will be 114,000 people and 133,000 by 1981. At the present time the centre services an area of 180,000 people which will esculate to 330,000 by the year 2000, less than Green Belt, Commercial, Industrial Recreational and Residential it became more apparent that a major redesign of the centre was needed.

With Bregman and Hamann of Toronto as the Architects and Campeau Construction of Ottawa as the general contractors, ground breaking ceremonies took place in Spring of 1969. Many unique problems had to be overcome in this major transformation of the shopping centre. In taking nearly a quarter of a mile, with 58 stores, building the Bell Canada Building with over 86,000 sq. feet of office and retail space. Another 7,200 sq. ft. of retail space was built in the Eaton Court, which is the Main Court of the centre. This adds an additional 19 retail outlets to the centre. All this took place without a merchant having to close his doors due to construction.

Mayor Bruce Mackey, left, just after the Oshawa Centre ribbon cutting ceremony. With him is President Kelly of Inter-Urban Properties, owners of the centre.

With an established line-up of some of the best merchandisers in the country already in the centre and others who were interested in coming in, great consideration had to be given to the mall decor and design. After many studies and surveys a garden theme, highlighting the "Flower of Oshawa" was decided on.

Twelve different gardens in all are interspaced in the full length of the mall. Live tropical and coniferous plants make up the vegetation background of each garden. To add an additional touch of nature and beauty four water fountains are included in the gardens. Special attention was placed on both the ceiling and the floor areas. Resembling cut paper sculptures, 'Scoraform' a unique design method developed by Toronto Sculptor Peggy Specht will bring a new dimension to the centre. Fourteen of these airborne sculptures will hang throughout the mall. Ninety hanging flower baskets join in with colourful ceiling lighting to draw attention to this area.

Floor

Where the floor caused a major problem in the beginning, this was overcome when it was decided to use a combination of vinyl, ceramic and Huega Tile Carpet to give the centre a look that would not only be pleasant to the eye, but economical to service and keep clean.

A special childrens area was designed with totem poles, rides, climbers, these in addition to the specially built seats throughout the mall makes for an overall pleasant environment in which to do the family shopping.

A most important consideration was to get the correct merchandise mix combining the old with the new. Fashion centres such as Dalmys, and Villager Shoe tie in with Bowrings in the centre court to give this area a required balance.

Mayor Bruce Mackey officially cut the ribbon, Wednesday.

It was an event that only a community not too far removed from its small beginnings could appreciate and it had to be Oshawa because only Oshawa has a Reginald Geen. Close to eight hundred men and women who have felt the influence of his music, attended an organ recital in his honor in Simcoe Street United Church on Sunday night.

The music of the masters, Bach, Cesar Franck and Dupre, was brilliantly interpreted by Marie Taylor ARCT and Fred Graham Mus Bac, FRCO, former students of Mr. Geen.

The words which followed were inspired.

On behalf of the mayor and the City of Oshawa, Controller Christine Thomas paid a glowing tribute to Reginald Geen, thanking him for his leadership in cultivating music in the community and leading it to peaks of achievement.

Reverend John K. Moffat, former minister of Simcoe Street United Church spoke of his 20-year association with Mr. Geen, his organist and choirmaster whose unfailing good humor and co-operation was a continuous uplift.

"He inspired the young to reach for the unattainable — a Christian gentleman and a Christian Steward, whose stewardship leaves us standing in awe."

Dr. David Ouchterlony D. Litt. S, principal of the Royal Conservaotory of Music, Toronto, brought his own, personal reminiscences to "this happy event".

"We are honoring two persons in one," he said. "A person of infinite sensitivity and sympathy and an artist who is able to express these emotions through his music."

He read the following citation on a parchment scroll:

"We wish to mark, by this sincere message, our gratitude for your contribution to the development of Music in Oshawa and across Canada.

"Your personal touch with your choir and the warmth and reverence of your church music has always been an inspiration.

"Your active participation in the community through the Motor City Choir, Rotary Club and Masonic Order has contributed greatly to the Joy of Music.

"We recognize your leadership in the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association; Canadian College of Organists; Canadian Adjudicators' Association and your valuable service as an examiner for the Royal Conservatory of Music.

"By your sincere and generous devotion and high standard of musicianship you have earned the true and lasting gratitude of all your pupils.

"Your dedicated interest in the many facets of Music has been an inspiration to all who have had the pleasure of association with you.

"For all this we give you our warmest and most grateful thanks.

"Representing your host of friends, Bruce V. Mackey, Ma yor and the Corporation of the City of Oshawa."

Slowly and visibly moved, Mr. Geen rose and faced the assembly. In a faint voice he expressed the gratitude that shone from his eyes. He found his words in Tennyson:

"I cannot rest from travel; I will drink life to the lees: all times I have enjoyed greatly. . . . Much have I seen and known — cities of men and manners . . . I am a part of all that I have met; yet all experience is an arch where through gleams that untravelled world whose margin fades forever and forever, when I move.

"Life piled on life were all too little, and of one to me little remains; but every hour is saved from that eternal silence. . . . To follow knowledge like a sinking star, beyond the utmost bound of human thought. . . ."

The recital and presentation was arranged by the Oshawa and District Registered Music Teachers' Association. The Reverend Allan A. Lavis, chairman announced that an annual scholarship in Mr. Geen's name would be awarded to the student of this area with the highest standing in ARCT examination.

He also introduced representatives of 10 organizations, past and present, to which Mr. Geen has devoted himself.

Among those who came from out of town to share the memorable evening was Mr. Geen's 90-year old sister, Mrs. S. C. Steele of Toronto. She was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. John Grundy, the former Eleanor Fleming and daughter of the late Mrs. Jessie Fleming, accompanist to the Motor City Choir.

Painters Eleven is project for McLaughlin art gallery

The Robert McLaughlin Gallery has set up as one of its main acquisition policies the collecting of the works of Painters Eleven. Painters Eleven was the group of artists that introduced abstract expressionism, that is modern concepts of art, into the visual arts scene in Ontario in the 1950's. Alexandra Luke, the wife of the donor of the Gallery Mr. Ewart McLaughlin, was a member of Painters Eleven, and the group held its first meeting in her studio in Oshawa in 1953.

The group's first shows were held in 1954 and 55 at Roberts Gallery, in Toronto, and raised, at first no comment, and then storms of protest. The members of the group were Jack Bush, Oscar Cahen, Hortense Gordon, Tom Hodgson, Alexandra Luke, Ray Mead, Kazuo Nakamura, Jock Macdonald, William Ronald, Harold Town and Walter Yarwood. Of these, a number have gone on to even greater fame as artists in their own right in the present time.

This is the first time that a Canadian Gallery has attempted to concentrate on this important group. It is felt by the Board of Trustees and the members of the Gallery, that the Gallery should attempt to make a good beginning on this project before popular appeal sweeps in on the group and raises prices, as for example has happened with the paintings of the Group of Seven.

There are still seven living members of Painters Eleven. Their works are available and they themselves have been approached by the Acquisition Committee of the Gallery. They wholeheartedly agree with the project and are actively assisting in giving the gallery photographs and letters and other data on the group so that the Gallery will not only have a collection of the works of this group, but also historical material for the student of the future in their studies of Canadian art.

There are many small Art Galleries in Ontario, well over 20 of them. The Robert McLaughlin Gallery would like to be known as having an identity of its own.

GALLERY HOURS are Monday to Friday — 12-5 p.m., Evenings 7-9 p.m., Saturday 10-5 p.m., Sunday 12-5 p.m.

Auto museun museum makes room for new exhibits

The Operating Committee of the Canadian Automotive Museum is busy changing displays and making room for new exhibits.

The Committee is made up of Bill Eastwood as Chairman, Paul Bellinger co-chairman, and publicity, Larry Fitchett recording secretary, Dev Warner finances, Bob James historic car owner liaison, John Forder promotion, Ron Bilsky special events, with Toby Couture, Bruce McArthur and Ron Moulson assisting these people in the various areas of activity.

Since early spring the Museum has been featuring an aircraft section set up under the chairmanship of Bruce McArthur, telling the Canadian story of early aviation in Canada. Most of the items in this exhibit were provided by Bob Stewart of Oshawa, a collector of aircraft engines.

To make the necessary changes this Fall several new exhibits are to be added such as a Model "T" Ford Centre Door Sedan, which is a rare beauty, and a model display of a Mercedes Benz car. The Automotive Museum has attracted over 100,000 people during the past five years with 70-80 per cent of this attendance from outside of Oshawa. The present attendance of the Automotive Museum has been greatly increased due to the many visits of an educational purpose by grade 4 students who are studying transportation as part of their curriculum. This is an annual visit to the Museum

Family dilemma amuses audience

By Jo Aldwinckle

Gales of laughter swept through Eastdale Auditorium during the four performances of the family comedy, "Never Too Late", Oshawa Little Theatre's first production this season.

The crux of the matter was the start of a "second family" for a middle-aged couple. A situation that can arise in the best unregulated families. There was no nudity, no obscenity, not much blasphemy and the audience relaxed.

The production staff under Tony Castaldo, created a most professional set; doors that were heavy enough to close firmly, a solid staircase and an attractive bay window.

As father of the family, William Reeves established a self-made man given to over-blustering, while mother, Maureen McDonald was the "mouse that roared". Mary Wilson, their daughter, Kate, showed promise in her first OLT role and Joan Hill was natural and at ease as mother's confidante. She also controlled her voice while the others, perhaps from first-night nerves, worked up to tinny trebles.

D'Arcy Smith, the nit-wit son-in-law, had some good lines but, as with all the others, developed irritating gestures with his arms and hands.

Joe Mullen understood his role as mayor of a small town and stayed within it. The minor characters played by Terry Mann and John Liptay, rounded out the cast.

Director A. T. Elliott set a lively pace for this human comedy which worked itself out very nicely.

Cable TV this week

By James Sabyan

Once every two years just before Christmas a strange malady strikes a vast number of the taxpayers in the city. It's called election time and if it does nothing else but increase the blood pressure of the natives, it allows the venting of the emotional political idealism that so many seem to have accumulated over the two year period. Civic elections never seem to be as brash and as noisy as the Federal kind. Sometimes it strikes the sensitivities of the few that vote that the rest of the 2/3s of the elegible voters just don't give a hoot about the city. It's these 2/3s that do most of the belly aching when asked a question about their fair city.

Perhaps the answer to this lack of interest is to do what the Swiss have been doing for years. In Switzerland if you don't cast your ballot you pay a fine and a stiff one at that. While this is an extreme way of handling it, it sure does work. It would be very refreshing if 80% of the eligible voters took enough interest in their money and their city to speak out in the ballot.

To help the voters make up their minds, cable cast 8 will let one candidate per day come on the news broadcast and state his or her's case and its up to the candidate to get in touch with the station and book time. But the highlight of the election will come on election day itself when cable cast 8 will go live from the council chambers via a microwave link from 8 p.m. till 12:30 a.m. with results and interviews with the hopeful aspirants to the many civic positions.

Durham College is producing this epic and Cable Cast 8 will be supplying the four cameras and technical help. It's a big task that Durham College has accepted and at this very moment students are hard at work digging up material to fill four and a half hours of tv time. Still photos, taped interviews, action shots of the city will be used along with enough material for the viewer to be filled in on the happenings in the city.

For the coming festive season a Christmas special is being put together with consumers products and customs of the time. A special on toys is being prepared that will direct the parent to the best buy available and how to match the right toy with the right child. The MC for this show is a puppet and while this will appeal to the tiny people the show is aimed at the adult.

Our two attempts to go color were a bit hectic but from the results they seemed to be well accepted by the viewing public. The Bowmanville parade was a perfect chance to try the new color camera the Japanese have developed. But don't expect more of this color stuff. The cost is heavy when you're a non-profit station.

THE WATERFRONT
saving it for tomorrow

Trouble on the waterfront?

You'd better believe it. Serious trouble. And it has been brewing for years. It started in a small way, with the first settler.

He didn't see it that way, and no wonder. He just, settled there where it was easiest to get to — near the water. He was followed by railways and roads and industry.

As a result most waterfronts in urban areas have been preempted by industrial, commercial, transportation and even residential land uses, with only a minimal attempt to acquire or preserve open space and shoreline oriented recreational land.

For many cities, (think of Toronto as an example) the belated task of providing the desired waterfront amenities for an increasingly leisure oriented society has become immensely difficult and expensive.

Forgotten resource

Not so for the Whitby-Oshawa-Darlington area. Here the waterfront has become not so much an unattainable, as a forgotten recreation resource.

That's how planning director Bill McAdams sums it up in the new Waterfront Plan presented last week by the Central Ontario Joint Planning Board.

The plan followed on the heels of a presentation in Oshawa city council last week in connection with the future preservation of Oshawa's Creek Valley, the natural resource that runs through Oshawa north-south, and it compliments city council plans for the valley in the lakeshore area.

In its introduction, the waterfront brief starts with early history.

Settlement on the Lake Ontario shoreline stagnated with the development of Dundas Street (Highway 2) on an alignment further inland, away from the waterfront valleys and marshes, the study says.

Later, the arrival of the railways, the construction of Highway 401 and the proliferation of other industries near these transportation arteries has effectively sealed off the shoreline as a readily accessible recreation attraction for the population of the Oshawa region.

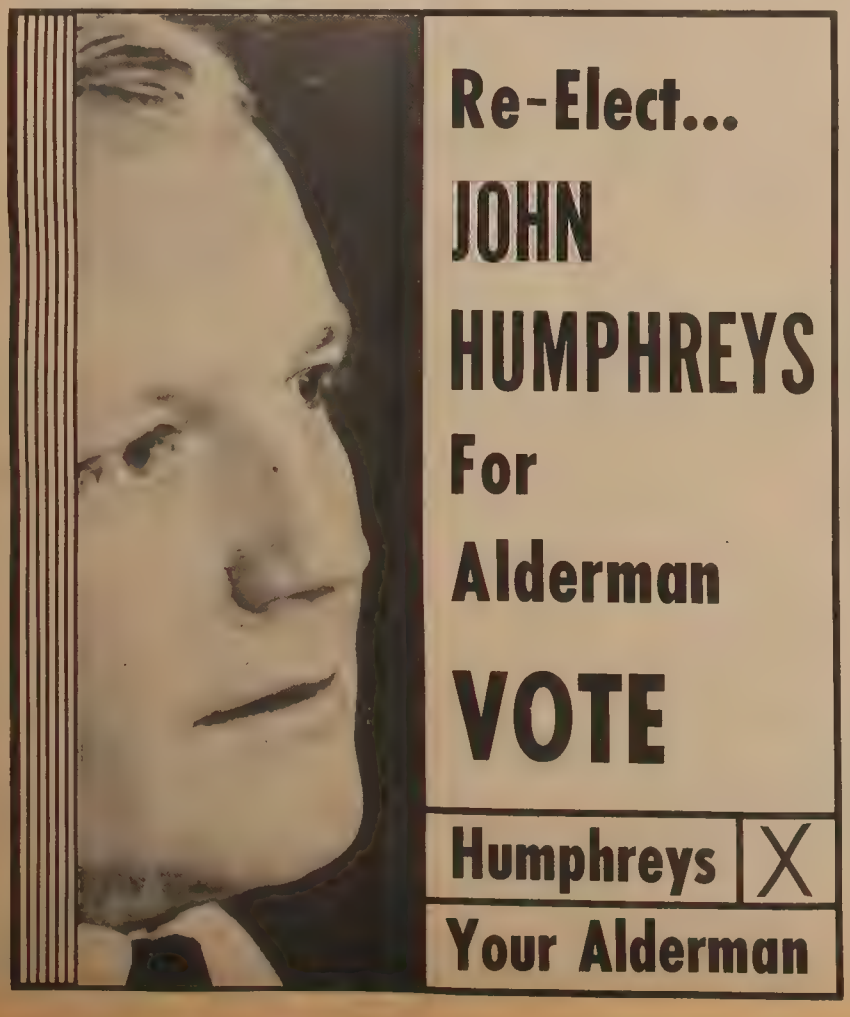
For the time being, the waterfront still remains an area of primarily large land holdings that is relatively free of extensive urban uses.

The potential, therefore, of such an area for more than the present token recognition of shoreline recreation development is readily apparent However, in the face of a year 2000 population expected to exceed 600,000 this recreation opportunity today will be gone tomorrow without a waterfront concept to guide development pressures.

A lack of concern in this direction will only breed further "piecemeal" waterfront industrial and residential development and steadily diminishing public access to the Lake Ontario shoreline, according to the study.

Recently, the Government of Ontario's "Design for Development: Toronto Centred Region" recommended that parts of the Lake Ontario shoreline be maintained for conservation and recreation uses Similarly, the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study, in its development alternatives, supports open space usage for most of the shoreline in the planning area, as does the City of Oshawa for most of the shoreline covered by its Official Plan.

STUDY APPROACH



The preparation of a plan for the Area shoreline is seen as a logical extension of the Metropolitan Toronto Waterfront Plan (completed in December 1967 and containing major waterfront proposals for the lakeshore area stretching from Clarkson on the west to Carruther's Creek on the east). The Oshawa area report has adopted a basically similar approach in its presentation by dividing the study area into 4 sectors.

Western Sector This sector covers the waterfront area west of Dunlop Drive and includes Heydon Shore Park, Whitby Harbour, Lynde Creek and Cranberry Marsh.

Corridor Sector This segment of the Lakeshore consists primarily of the underdeveloped land between the built up portions of the Town of Whitby and the City of Oshawa. It extends from Dunlop Drive on the west of Park Road on the east and includes open farm land, the Camp X property, Corbett Creek and the Thickson Point residential community.

Central Sector The plan for this sector covers that section of the Oshawa waterfront east of Park Road, including the Lakeview residential community, Lakeview Park, the Oshawa Harbour, Farewell Creek and the Second Marsh.

Eastern Sector The remaining segment of the shoreline east of the City of Oshawa boundary is included within this study area. It involves extensive agricultural land, the Darlington Provincial Park, the St. Mary's Cement property and the Bowmanville Harbor.

OBJECTIVES

First objective is to develop the waterfront as a linear open space system with selected nodes of more concentrated recreational activity. There should be a visual and functional continuity between as many of the recreational components of the plan as practicable.

Objective 2 is to preserve and protect distinctive natural and historical waterfront features.

Objective 3 is to develop the waterfront in a manner that will ensure maximum public benefit of available recreation resources and amenities.

Objective 4 is to provide a range of recreational facilities that will attract and serve a variety of age and income groups from both within and outside the region.

Objective 5 is to make the waterfront recreation resources more readily accessible to vehicular traffic.

Objective 6 is to encourage non-conflicting land uses that will also be spatially and functionally complementary to the recreational use of the shoreline.

A new east-west scenic drive is to be created to provide a convenient link to the various waterfront recreation areas. This route would vary in its distance north of the lakefront and would connect into existing streets in presently built-up areas. Where possible, however, such a road would be designated and controlled as an integral part of the waterfront open space system.

That portion of the proposed scenic drive between Whitby and Oshawa harbours would be viewed as one link in a larger scenic drive system to be developed for the overall Oshawa-Whitby urban area. This larger system would utilize the existing streets, would take the form of a circuitous loop,incorporating not only a segment of the shoreline, but also additional local and regional features of interest and would be properly signposted as a scenic route to emphasize its continuous nature.

Adequate car parking areas would be provided in support of all major recreation facilities. In addition, provision would be made for limited parking facilities at strategic points along the entire waterfront.

Use of the waterfront segment of the scenic road by industrial truck traffic would be regulated.

PERCIVAL

Lloyd Percival, director of the Fitness Institute told members of the Rotary Club last week that if a sophisticated program of coaching for Canadian athletes was not established soon, Canadians should not enter the 1976 Olympics. Canada, he said had a good reputation in amateur sports in the 1900's but since 1932, the golden year of 27 Olympic medals, had declined steadily. "We have the examples set by Germany, Russia, Japan and Sweden," he said, "and for us it is now or never."

RECITAL

The husband and wife team of Connie and Doug. Stewart studying under a Canada Council grant at the Royal Conservatory gave a piano and flute recital last Friday in the McLaughlin Library auditorium.

PENSIONS

A minimum $3,000 annual pension is underway for city hall employees with 15 years service, council decided last week. As well as the $3,000 a year from all pension sources, an employee will be granted an additional two per cent of his basic pension for each year of service over 15 years. Those employees who have less than 15 years service will have a deduction of two per cent for each year below 15 years. The new scheme lowers retirement age for city employees to 65 from 70.

Con. Margaret Shaw, who is seeking another term as a member on Board of Control says she considered running for mayor but considered herself a "better backbencher".

"I think I can do more as a controller than a mayor and for this reason I have chosen not to run for mayor", she says.

Of the many projects Con. Shaw would like to see completed in the next term is the regional government issue. "I think it was very unfair for some of the other county areas to vote against the merger study. If you can't be perfect you can at least be flexible".

Con. Shaw says she supports Con. Charles McIlveen's motion that the standing committees of council be replaced by committee of the whole.

"This would allow new members of council to get their feet wet in all aspects of government and would allow everyone to be an expert on all matters of municipal government."

Con. Shaw was one of the few council members who, last month opposed the raising of the mayor's salary. "It's not the $10,000 increase," she says. "It's the fringe benefits like $2,000 for expenses, $1,000 from the police commission and $500 from the PUC."

She says that offering this increase has not brought about better candidates for the mayor's seat. "You can't buy good people."

Con. Shaw is throwing her support behind Ald. Edward McNeely in his bid for the mayoralty position. "I think Ed is the man for the job. I think he is exceptional in his attitudes toward problems. Unlike most lawyers who view things in a quilty or not quilty light, or black and white, Ed sees a grey area that must be explored."

Con. Shaw is planning an "active" campaign. She intends to attend forums and speak to the public. She would like to see more low rental housing built in Oshawa.

"I also question whether we need to resurface roads as often as we do and I think we should cut down costs in certain departments."(The Controller is a member of the public works committee.)

She says she sees an increase in taxes for the next year "regardless of what the candidates are promising".

Economy is my platform, says Mrs. Thomas

Con. Christine Thomas is seeking another term on Board of Control having previously served as alderman and mayor of Oshawa.

Con. Thomas is running specifically so she can make contributions in the field of finance. "Economy has always been my platform and it always will be", she said.

While she would not like to see the city enter an austerity program she feels "careful spending" would hold the mill rate to it's present level.

"I have a strong desire to keep the taxes down by wise spending," says Con. Thomas.

She said she thought the city has undertaken too many projects now and will not introduce any new ideas as platforms. She is interested in seeing a day care centre established "only if the need justifies the project".

At the moment Con. Thomas cannot see the merit of Con. Charles McIlveen's motion to have the standing committees abolished and replaced by committee of the whole. "Looking at it from my years of experience I can't see how council can effectively deal with all these matters unless it is prepared to meet two nights a week rather than one."

Con. Thomas is planning to attend all the forums open to candidates and says she will be more than willing to answer questions from the public.

Chronicles of Osh

1. And it came to pass that the eleventh hour of the eleventh month was drawing nigh unto the land of Osh and that the people were casting their eyes towards the hills, so to speak, from whence there wasn't much help coming either.

2. Now the chief ruler of Osh and his elders and Charles the Physician among the elders, and the elder Fin and the two women of Osh were on their last legs, and all were to be judged by the people of the land of Osh.

3. And it had become apparent that among them there were some who would not be judged, in that they had sought to escape the judgment of the people by throwing in towels, as it was customary to call putting an end to things in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy in the land of Osh.

4. And the Wayward Beevee, chief ruler of Osh was said to be among those who were throwing cloths that were soggy more often than not.

5. And the ritual of the judgment of the people of Osh was to come to pass in the first week of the last month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy.

6. And there was growing enthusiasm in the land of Osh in the last days of the eleventh month of the year in that there were among the men and women of Osh several of the uninitiated who came forth out of the woodwork to present themselves to the people of the land of Osh as their saviours.

7. Now also in the eleventh month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy, and at the eleventh hour, the elders of Osh on the urging of Blondjohn and Rosgib had spoken, saying, behold our land will be ruled by a new chief ruler and we the people of Osh must not let this man go in rags (and there were some who had taken this to mean real rags and it didn't) and the elders spoke saying let us give unto the chief ruler due honor and glory and dominion and bucks, and let us expect of our chief ruler that his chief rulership be his chief aim in life and that he rule the people of Osh before anything that is other than the people's.

8. And lo, came forth a number of men from among the people of Osh who spoke saying, behold your chief ruler.

9. And among them there was one man named Mike who taught unto some of the children of the land of Osh in a way that was not public but of the church. And Michael, chief-ruler-to-be (maybe), spoke saying behold, I shall give unto the people of the land of Osh new ways of communications. And furthermore did he speak saying, behold I shall communicate. And he also spoke saying he would arouse the people of the land in a novel way, and he would do without the means normally associated with arousing the people in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy, a way which was of printing messages on the parchments of the land. And there were among the people of Osh some who said, behold, Oh Michael, chief-ruler-to-be (maybe), if you can do such, you deserve a double page spread in the Old Testament.

10. Now also, with the man Michael there was a man called Anthony, a father of six children and greatly respected by his fellow-man for his forthrightness and concern when it came to the lot of his fellow human beings. And Tony spoke saying, behold I shall bring unto the land of Osh and unto the Whitites peace. For I shall undo what the elders of the land of Osh have done in that they sought to bring unto their own the land of Whit, lock, stock and Pharaoh. And the peace sought and promised by Tony was a big piece and there were some who spoke saying behold, it's a tall order.

11. And while the two aforementioned Oshites were proposing unto the people their thing, one of the elders of the land of Osh arose and spoke in the council of the elders in the Temple of Osh saying, behold, I shall be your new chief ruler. I am a man of pride and I feel proud of the land of Osh and I shall bring unto it pride and glory and I shall rule with the hand of decision. And there were among the elders many who said, behold, Neely will be a man hard to beat in the land of Osh and there were some who were willing to lay bucks to it.

12. And others said, behold, the elder Attersl, who had been said to be seeking the chief rulership also was taken by surprise by the words of the elder Neely.

13. And thus it was that the land of Osh and its people approached the last month of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy and that the Chronicler of Osh came away from his place of hiding to shed some light upon the scene of Osh and as the people were girding their loins to prepare for the day of judgment.

2560 KIDS PLAY THE GAME

Twin pad keeps kids home

By Jim Bishop

There are a great many people around this city who remember that September morning in 1953 when our whole winter sports program went up in smoke.

Our Oshawa Generals, had just opened their training camp, the minor hockey groups had begun their registration and it was all for naught.

That morning the Oshawa Arena caught fire and burned to the ground. This catastrophe spelled the end of Oshawa's hockey season. The Generals players were assigned to other OHA teams, signifying the end of an era in Oshawa's sports history.

The next few seasons saw the minor hockey people trying to keep some semblance of a hockey program going for our youth by taking bits and pieces of ice time throughout several counties.

In 1956, we finally got an ice surface. City Council at that time decided to build a small rink for our minor hockey players. The only restriction, of necessity, was that this arena was to be used only for children 18 years of age and under.

This meant that any adult groups had to continue playing out of the city or at the outdoor North Oshawa Arena when weather and ice conditions permitted. The one positive note that came out of the Arena fire was the moving of Wren Blair's Smith Truckmen to Whitby, where they embarked on a period of hockey greatness all their own, that was to bring recognition to the whole area and to the country.

From 1956 until 1964, when we received our Civic Auditorium, there was a terrible scramble for ice time. The Auditorium served to ease the situation somewhat, but when the demand became too great again it was decided to put a roof on the North Oshawa rink in 1968.

The ever-growing population of the city kept causing more and more pressure on the three ice surfaces and in 1969, under the guidance of aldermen Charles McIlveen and Gib Murdoch of the Parks and Property committee, decided that there was a need in the city for even more ice.

Bill Kurelo, of the Auditorium and the other arena managers travelled around looking at some of the innovations in other arenas and came up with several proposals based on their studies and their own experience. All the requirements were presented to the engineers of Colorspan Buildings Ltd. and they came up with working drawings for a twin-pad arena with the ability to keep ice year-round.

The total cost of building this structure was $720,000. There are sufficient dressing room facilities, an all-purpose room and a fully-stocked concession. There is a glassed-in mezzanine housing the concession and washroom facilities and room for the spectators to keep warm while they watch the action on either pad.

At present, there are about 3800 participants using the new Harman Park Arena every week. The breakdown shows 400 people for figure skating, 2,560 playing hockey and approximately 800 turn out every week for public skating. A percentage breakdown shows that 82.6% of the ice time is used by minor groups. In fact, 73% of all ice time in the city is used by minor groups.

One thing about our arenas is the ice-time rental cost being much lower than in other centres. The cost of renting ice for adult groups is 20 and 25 dollars per hour and for minor groups, $15.00.

The Harman Park Arena is managed by Charlie Durno. He is well-known for his work in hockey in the area and was selected for the job from over 40 applicants. There is an additional staff of five persons full-time and two seasonal helpers.

Present plans right now, call for having ice all summer in the one pad and using the other for lacrosse. This will of course depend on the demand.

One of the innovations that will aid in the keeping of good ice during the summer months is the installation of heating cables under the floor of the ice surfaces. These cables are designed to keep the temperature of the ground at 32 degrees which will melt any frost and stop the formation of perma-frost. The reason for this is to keep the frost from causing structural damage to the building itself.

The Arena is the first arena built by the Colorspan people and it took just 7 months to get the first ice surface open. While the building is not entirely complete at this time, (workmen are still putting on the finishing touches), the people of Oshawa have full use of a beautiful and much-needed recreational facility.

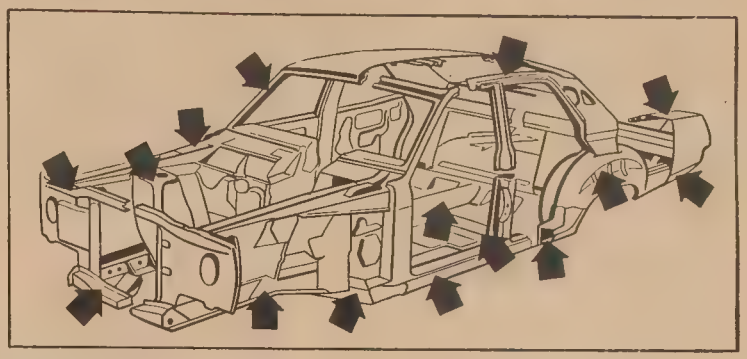
Crushmen score big win at home

Jim Robson, last year's scoring Champion in the Eastern Jr. B, loop scored his first goal of the season and helped greatly in the Crushmen defeat of the league leading Kingston Frontenacs.

The Crushmen trailed 2-1 at the end of the first 20 minutes of play, before they found their skating legs and came back to take a 4-2 win at the Civic Auditorium. Steve West, the sensational scorer up from last year's Bowmanville Jr. C.'s scored the other three goals for the winners.

The Crushmen received good defensive work from Scott Willson and Paul Britton and great goaltending from Gerry Higgins. This year's club is playing fine hockey and are only trailing the first place duo of Peterborough and Kingston by two points.

Once some of the midget age players get a little more experience under their belts, look for this team to give it a real good run for top league honors and should provide some good future players for the Generals.



Next home game for the Crushmen will be Friday night when they take on the Belleville squad and the team will be distributing New York Ranger crests to the children in attendance.

Why most 'rustproofing' is a waste of money.

Today, when you go out to buy a new car, you're offered every conceivable option, accessory and extra that the dealer can think of suggesting.

One of the most widely accepted of these options is dealer undercoating, sometimes called "rustproofing", by the more imaginative dealers in the business.

Ziebart Auto • Truck Rustproofing was the pioneer in the business of protecting new cars from corrosion and rust. And we know that genuine rustproofing is one of the most important things a new car should have.

However, before you can make a decision as to who you want your car rustproofed by, we think you should know all the facts.

What is rust?

There are many popular misconceptions regarding rust and Ziebart would like to clear a few of them up.

1. All rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. These are two things impossible to avoid on the roads.

2. The most dangerous rust starts on the inside of your car, in hidden seams, crevices and hollow areas.

3. Most people believe that salt is the major cause of rust. This is not so. Salt will not cause rust by itself, but it accelerates rust and will quicken the damage.

4. Keeping a car in a heated garage during the winter causes the car to rust even faster. This is because the ice that would normally remain frozen outside melts and the water seeps down into critical hollow areas.

Since rust starts from the inside of your car, it follows that in order to prevent rust, you must protect every critical hollow area with a chemical barrier that stops the moisture from getting to the metal. It's this exclusive chemical barrier that makes Ziebart the finest rustproofing anywhere.

How the Ziebart process works.

Rather than to spray just the bottom of your car, as is done in undercoating, or to protect the areas easiest to get at, as is usually done in dealer and service station "rustproofing", Ziebart coats every critical area of your car with our special rustproofing sealant that will not crack or peel.

This is done with long nozzles that force the compound into every crack and seam by hydrostatic pressure.

In order to get at every critical area, Ziebart first drills small holes at strategic but inconspicuous spots around the car. Then the long pressure nozzles are inserted into the holes to spray every crack and seam.

The Ziebart sealant is a special patented formula developed by us. It is chemically adhesive to metal, liquid enough to seep into the seams and crevices, remains pliable for permanent protection, is an insulator, will withstand dirt, water and salt and will never harm plastic, rubber, glass, paint or upholstery.

Ziebart keeps abreast of the new styling changes in every model, every year. We do this so we'll know exactly where to protect on each car and so that we'll be able to effectively service every type and model of car, no matter what the make.

All this care and concern with the quality of the rustproofing job we do makes it possible for Ziebart to guarantee that your car will not rust through for 10 years, no matter how many miles you put on it, if you have it Ziebarted before it is driven 3,000 miles.

What does it mean to you?

In addition to the obvious benefits derived from having a new looking car for a lot longer than you thought you would, the Ziebart process can mean a lot more to the new car buyer.

For instance, the trade in value on a car that has been Ziebarted is substantially higher than on one that has not.

Another thought to consider is safety. Although you can't see it, rust on a three or four year old car has usually begun to eat away at vital mechanical parts. A three year old hydraulic brakeline can fail when weakened by rust.

Many men give the car to their wives when it becomes four or five years old. If the car has not been Ziebarted when new, it could very well be a deathtrap because of the rust that's been eating away since it was bought.

Where to find out more.

You'll find a Ziebart dealer in the White Pages under "Ziebart". He'll be happy to make an appointment for you to bring your car in for a complete Ziebart Rustproofing job.

The Ziebart process takes a full day or more, admittedly longer than other so-called "rustproofers" because we do the job properly.

If you've just bought a new car, or are thinking about buying one, be sure and contact us.

And don't forget to show this ad to your own car dealer. He might be interested to find out what RUST-PROOFING really means, himself.

Durham Lords pull big comeback

The Durham College hockey Lords pulled off a big comeback on Saturday night to get their first point of the season by tying St. Lawrence College of Kingston 6-6, but the basketball team did not fare as well, losing 98 to 73 to the team from the same school.

In the hockey game at North Oshawa, the Lords spotted the Kingston club a 4-0 lead at the end of the first period and then came roaring back in the second to tie the game at 4-4. In the third, the teams kept trading goals. At the 3-minute mark, Gary Gostlin scored for Kingston before Ken DeHart again tied things for the Durham crew. In the middle of the period, Kingston again went ahead on a goal by Joe Gora. At the 16 minute mark, John Horton picked up a Dennis Homeniuk pass and fired it home for the tying goal. Other scoring for Durham was handled by John Vandermeer with a pair and singles went to Vaughn Smith and Chris Stead. Kingston singles were scored by Barry Toner, Rick Sly, John Myke and Dave Reilly who also added three assists.

Basketball

In the basketball game, played at Eastdale Collegiate, the Lords showed considerable improvement over their last game but were guilty of giving the ball away too many times and bowed to St. Lawrence by a score of 98 to 73.

by jim bishop

It would take the combined talents of all the hokey Hollywood script writers, Grantland Rice, Rogers and Hart, Robert W. Service, Davey Crocket and a mentally-ill weatherman to produce a more exciting finish to the Western Football Conference final on the windswept snowswept, wastes of Taylor Field in Regina. (How's that for an opener).

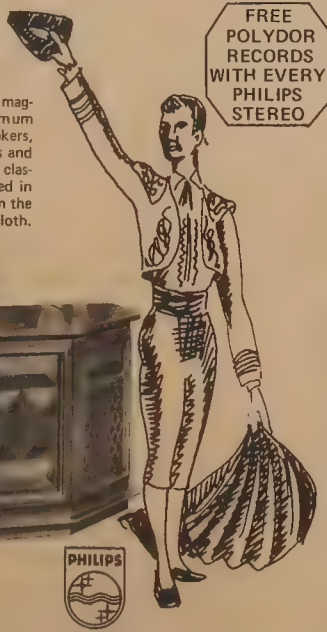
While not a great day for the football players, it certainly must have been super-great day for the distillers whose product comes in a bottle popularly called a "Mickey". 18,000 fans went to the Regina ballpark in three-degree temperatures and 40 miles-per-hour winds to watch the visiting Calgary Stampeders buffet their hometown roughriders as much as the Arctic weather which invaded the prairies for the game.

Actually, the Stamps tried to repeat their charity of the second game as Hugh McKinnis fumbled on the Saskatchewan four-yard line with but 90 seconds remaining in the football-cum-soccer-cum-hockey-cum-bobsledding contest and the Roughies leading at that point, 14-12.

Suddenly, in true Horatio Alger-fashion, the Riders are forced to give up the ball. On the first play with only 25 seconds, Keeling hit McKinnis with a pass to the 25 yard-line and allowed Larry Robinson to become the hero of the piece with a 32-yard field goal into the teeth of the hurricane, which was far from being the Chinook that westerners are so fond of telling us poor easterners about. Just incidentally, the win will send the Stampeders to Toronto for – Dick Beddoes calls it that – The Great National Drunk, also known as the Grey Cup.

Montreal was the other team in Canada's football derby that wasn't supposed to win but they too confounded the experts, including this one, as they wiped out the Hamilton Pussy Cats. I don't know what the record book shows, but this is the first time in my memory that two third-place teams have hooked up in the National Final.

Since I haven't won a football bet all season, (being a long-suffering Argo fan), I will give the bettors a bit of advice on how to make a buck on the game.



My two dollars goes on Calgary and I call them to win by a score of 21 to 17. So sports, do yourselves a favour; bet on the Als, and when it becomes beer time, remember that it was me who tipped you off.

Upsets two favorites

Munro wins Dunlop spiel

Two big upsets and $1000 went to Toronto skip Bruce Munro Saturday when he took the top prize money of the Dunlop Invitational Curling Bonspiel.

Munro, who curls out of Humber Highland, took all the honors when he defeated Bob Charlebois, of Avonlea, 7-5. It was sweet revenge for Munro, who went down to his first defeat of the season last week at Charlebois' broom in the All Star League Bonspiel.

Charlebois was one of the favorites to take the Dunlop, with two handy wins during the semi-finals over Sloan Sargeant of Dixie 6-3 and Jim McDonald of Hamilton 9-8.

Munro also knocked out the second favorite, Paul Savage of Toronto's Terrace, in the afternoon semi-final that had spectators on the edge of their seats. His 8-7 victory came at the very last end, when a half-inch measure gave him the winning rock over the Ontario champion. An 8-4 win over Bob Woods of Avonlea for Munro and a 4-3 win over Ted Clarke of Bayview set up the meeting between the two rinks.

Although Munro has curled three times during the five years of the Dunlop, it is the first time he has wound up in the top prize money. Curling with him were John Cushing, Peter Phillips and Chris Johnson.

Curling with Charlebois were Peter Krivel, Ray Lilly and Rich Palmer.

Ted Clarke of Bayview took the second event, which carries prize money of $250. His 10-1 win came at the end of the sixth end, when Sloan Sargeant of Dixie conceded. Clarke lost his first semi-final game to Savage 4-3 but beat Bob Woods 7-5 in the second game. Sargeant also lost his first game 6-3 to Charlebois, but won his second 8-5 over Stu Daw of Dixie.

Alex Leslie of Hamilton Glendale took the third event and $160 prize money from James Waite of St. Thomas in an extra-end game that finished 9-8. Leslie had curled 64 ends in two days, since he was in Friday's qualifying matches, when he and his rink went into the extra end.

Leslie won his two semi-final games, beating Bill Dixon of Brampton 7-6 and Ted Brown of Kingston, last year's Dunlop winner, 8-5. Waite also won his first two semi-finals over Harry Sheldon of Unionville 9-5 and Bob Decker of Annandale 8-6.

Intense concentration by Paul Savage (right), defending Ontario curling champion, got his Toronto Terrace rink into the semi-finals of the fifth annual Dunlop Invitational Bonspiel at the Whitby Curling Club over the weekend, but wasn't enough to surmount the roarin' game played by Bruce Munro of Humber Highland. Munro's rink edged Savage's crew 8-7, then went on to win the $1,000 top prize at the prestige event.

Fourth event money of $100 went to Ray Grant of Unionville when he defeated Tom Steen of Oshawa 7-6. Grant won both semi-finals, 9-6 over Cam Guyatt of Hamilton Thistle and 9-7 over Stan Curtis of St. Thomas. Steen took out another Oshawa skip, Gord Hawkshaw, in the morning game with an 8-6 win and beat Kingston's Jake Edwards in the afternoon 6-5. Curling with Steen were Brian Suddard, John Piper and Mike MacKay.

Stan Jones of Humber Highland took the $100 fifth event money with his 8-5 win over Murray McGregor of Guelph. Jones moved into the finals after defeating Harry Sheldon of Unionville 6-3, although he lost his first match to Bob Decker of Annandale 5-4. McGregor lost to Ted Brown of Kingston 7-5 but beat Bill Dixon of Brampton 6-4.

Terry Begin of Ottawa Granite took the $100 sixth event with an 11-7 win over Bob Harris of Unionville. Begin lost his first morning game against Stan Curtis of St. Thomas 7-6, and was trailing Cam Guyatt of Hamilton Thistle 5-1 when he made a big comeback with eight points in three ends to take his second game 10-6. Harris lost out in his first game to Jake Edwards of Kingston 5-3 but knocked Oshawa skip Gord Hawkshaw out of the running with a 10-9 win in his second.

RECIPE FOR COLD WEATHER

Take one Typical Senior High School Student and add one warm, cozy and comfortable borg-lined Duffle Coat with parka. Trim this with a colourful seven foot woolen scarf and finish off with a pair of shearling lamb gloves. Who cares about the cold? Ivan Novak, a senior in one of Oshawa's fine High Schools, highly recommends this all purpose outfit.

Generals suffer bad luck week

The Generals were the victims of penalties and bad-luck on the weekend as they had their winless streak extended to seven games.

In London, Friday night, they took 74 minutes in penalties and were unable to muster any strength in the third period as they bowed to the Knights 5-2.

The Knights led 3-1 at the end of the first and Oshawa were unable to come back due to their top scorers sitting out penalties and Ed Reigle going with makeshift lines. Jack Kell had a hat-trick for the Knights with singles going to Dennis Ververgeart and Reg Thomas. Simpson and Al Avery handled all the scoring for the Generals.

On Sunday at Maple Leaf Gardens, the Generals played well enough but did not score enough goals as they were defeated by the Marlies 7-5. The Gens were even with the Dukes in shots 36-36, but Steve Shutt scored 2 third period goals, one into the empty net at 19:39 to give the Marlies the win. In addition to Shutt's two goals, Dave Gardner scored three times with the others going to Steve Vickers and Bill Harris. Gerry Methe and Al Avery each scored twice for the Generals with Tommy Simpson adding a single.

The next home game for the Generals is this Sunday when the Peterborough Petes will be the visitors.

The Expo's are coming

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Oshawa Legion Minor Baseball Association was held Sunday and the name of the group was changed by deletion of the word "minor".

Jim Lutton of Oshawa was again named president, with Bill Watters elected to the First Vice-president's position. Doug Finney will serve as Second Vice-president and Art Perry was re-elected as Secretary-treasurer. The number of directors was increased to four with Brian Collins, Tony Jones, Gord Johnson and Jim Bishop filling the posts.

Highlight of the meeting was the announcement by the president of a baseball clinic to be held at the Legion on Thursday, January 21.

The clinic will be sponsored jointly by the Montreal Expo's and the O'Keefe Brewing Company. Jim Fanning, general-manager of the Expo's will be on hand with Jim Gosger and Bill Stoneman and there is a possibility that Rusty Staub may appear as well.

The clinic will be open to any players, coaches or umpires that wish to attend.

Generals and auditorium to help the high schools

Auditorium Manager Bill Kurelo and the management of the Oshawa Generals have come up with a scheme to promote Jr. A. hockey with the area high schools students while at the same time helping the high school athletic programs.

A number of tickets have been distributed to the principals of all high schools in Oshawa, Whitby and Courtice. A student who wants to attend any of the Generals home games can pick up one of these tickets from the school office and exchange it at the Auditorium ticket office for a regular admission ticket. With the exchange, the student will pay one dollar, of which the Auditorium will refund 25 cents to the school for use in it's student athletic endeavours.

Industrial hockey league

In the opener Sunday night, Duff's Towing defeated One-Hour Martinizing 7 to 1. Neil Pascoe and Dern Ferguson each scored twice for Duff's with singles going to John Labanovitch, Keith Lawson and Les Brown. Ted Underwood replied for the losers.

Robson Leather beat the Genosha team 3-1 in the second game with the Robson scoring being handled by Gil LaPierre. Tim Donovan and Pete Bedard. Rick Craggs got the lone tally for the Genosha.

In the nightcap, Whitby Hotel swamped the UAWA 14 to 5. Doug Pascoe and Wayne St. John each scored the hat-trick for the winners with Roger Waddell, Jerry Garrard and Don Glover scoring two each. Singles went to Peter Vanderberge and Irwin Waldingsperger. For UAWA, Spin Krantz had two goals and singles went to John Krantz, Gord Eyre and Roger Elliott.

Standings thus far, show Robson Leather in first place with 8 points, Duff's, 6, Whitby Hotel, 6.

Coulter has plans for downtown and reorganized committees

Graham Coulter, 53-year-old Oshawa businessman and one time alderman has announced his intentions to run for Board of Control.

Mr. Coulter is past president and chairman of Coulter Manufacturing Company and was an alderman in Oshawa in 1958. Maneouvering his candidacy he pointed to his extensive business experience and past experience on council.

A 30-year resident of Oshawa, Mr. Coulter would like to see the downtown core area revitalized. "I would like to see the downtown area become the commercial and financial centre of Oshawa."

Mr. Coulter says he supports Con. Charles McIlveen's proposal to have the standing committees abolished and replaced by committee of the whole. "This would allow council to deal with priority issues and then routine business could be left to the reorganized committees to deal with."

Mr. Coulter feels the most important issue and closest to the electorate is taxes. He would like to see the 1971 taxes kept "reasonably close to the line".

Mr. Coulter supported Oshawa's stand for an Oshawa-Whitby merger and feels Oshawa council will have to show leadership in the months to come. "I certainly don't think Oshawa's position is to be a dictator or dominator in the future of this area."

Deluxe Traction, Our Best 4-Ply Nylon Snow Tire

Save $2 to $3 a pair . . .

19.98 each in pairs

For sure-footed traction on ice and packed snow the DeLuxe Traction has thousands of small gripping edges that provide a firm grip on wet, slippery surfaces. Our best 4-ply nylon snow tire is also designed to dig deep into packed snow and give you the grip to go. It's a proven performer in tough Canadian winters, yet the tread is designed to give a quiet ride on bare pavement. For a more stable ride the DeLuxe Traction has a wide 78 ratio profile design, just like the tires on new 1970 model cars.
Studding $6 per tire.

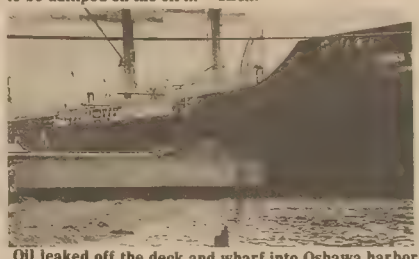
Straw soaking up furnace oil at pier.

In Oshawa harbor
Oil disaster nipped in bud

A major pollution disaster in Oshawa harbor was nipped in the bud this week in a joint effort of harbor and city personnel.



More than 30 barrels of furnace oil ended up on the water surface in the harbor when a pipeline connection gave way during the early hours of Monday.

By last night things were back to normal.

BREAK

At 4 a.m. Monday, the connection broke. Oil spilled from the James Transport's deck and the wharf.

At first light Harbor Manager W.A. Gillberry ordered 10 tons of straw to be dumped on the oil in the harbor and a floating boom to be installed at the harbor mouth, to prevent the oil from drifting into lake Ontario. The straw soaks up the oil slick.

Oil leaked off the deck and wharf into Oshawa harbor

At 1 p.m. on Monday, crews from the City of Oshawa Works Department set about to recover the oil soaked straw from the water Works department officials ordered in the city's big white pumper, normally used to drain sewers, to clean the harbor of oil and straw.

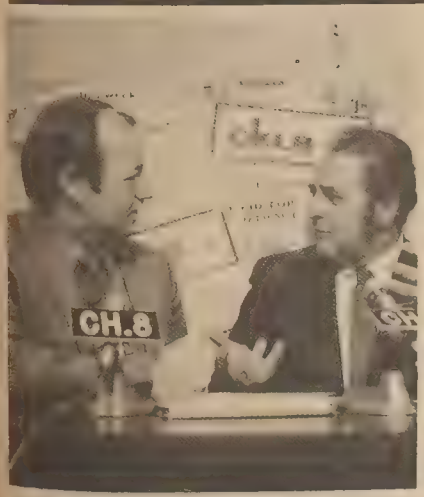
By noon yesterday all but a few gallons of oil had been removed.



Water Resources officials praised the harbor commission for "extremely quick action"

A scene from the "rehearsal." It's Peter Brouwer, left, editor of This Week, with Ross Gibson, news director of Radio CKLB, on the scene of next Monday's first-ever Oshawa municipal election coverage by television. Brouwer and Gibson (who will be awaiting the results of his own bid for Board of Control) will look behind the scenes on election night, and the results with the broadcast simultaneously on Cablecast 8 and CKLB, 1350. For details, see inside.

Inside this week

Inside this edition of This Week readers will find an abundance of information on the upcoming civic election.

The candidates for mayor and board of control have been interviewed extensively. Their stories are on pages two and three. Aldermanic candidates, PUC hopefuls and potential trustees have their say on following pages.

Mayors on tv

Candidates Tony Peleshok and Gord Attersley appeared on Oshawa Cable TV last week as guests of the This Week interview show.

Tonight, at 7.30, it's Alderman Ed McNeely's turn, and Friday at 5.30 the fourth mayoralty candidate, Mike Breaugh will put in his appearance.

Cable programs are broadcast on Channel 8.

Next paper Friday

A special election issue of This Week will appear on Oshawa doorsteps Friday.

While this Wednesday's edition contains considerable election background, allowing voters an opportunity to make a wise choice, Friday's paper will concentrate solely on the 1970 municipal election.

January's gap needs your choice

There is going to be a gap you could drive a truck through when Oshawa City Council holds its inaugural meeting in January.

We will sorely miss the contributions of such city hall anchormen as Mayor Bruce Mackey, Controller Charles McIlveen, aldermen Gib Murdoch, Norman Down and either Gord Attersley or Ed McNeely. (Or both perhaps?)

It is unfortunate that on nomination night neither Dr. McIlveen nor Mr. Murdoch accepted the challenge of a nomination and failed to let their names stand. It was not so much that they wanted a rest in the sense of physical weariness — no, they were fed up. Lack of accomplishments in council during the last two years left them frustrated. Both are on record with that opinion. Especially Dr. McIlveen worked furiously to improve things at city hall. He fought like a tiger to rid Oshawa of its Board of Control which in his opinion was part of the problem. In the end he really failed to get the backing of council. The OMB came from Toronto to decide Oshawa should really have another go at Board of Control. That for McIlveen appears to have been the last straw.

Some of the administrative improvements for which he pushed however have already come about, and there's little doubt that the presence of McIlveen, Murdoch and Mayor Mackey as well, will be felt at city hall for some time to come, even though

A CHOICE OF MAYORS

Concerned for city: Peleshok

Tony Peleshok is a mayoralty candidate who couldn't help himself.

After following council for several years and Oshawa's involvement with regional government, Peleshok explains that he became so concerned about the situation that he had to attempt to do something about the problems he has been observing.

"I really had no intention of running originally," says Peleshok who has never stood for public office before. "My nomination is just a natural result of my growing concern for the welfare of the city."

The specifications engineer with General Motors feels that the city administration presents a poor front to the residents of the city. The average person, he says, finds it difficult to get the information he wants from city hall staff. Peleshok promises to take action to improve the coordination between departments and communications with the public if he is elected mayor.

He's also concerned about improving the efficiency of the civic administration. Peleshok says that a clean up at city hall is badly needed, perhaps extending to reorganization of the departments.

Expenditures have to be carefully controlled in the coming year, says this mayoralty candidate. "However, if the people want something badly enough, they'll pay for it." Peleshok puts services which will improve safety in first place on his priority list for the 1971 budget.

He stresses the need for greater communication between council and the public. If a group is doing a worthwhile thing in the community, they should be eligible for a grant from council. This father of six feels that council would be spending its money more wisely to assist young people's organizations which are already operating for some worthwhile purpose than to put a lot of money into a youth drop-in centre just because a group of kids asked for it.

There might be an opportunity for council in the future to subsidize a housing development where tenants can eventually own the homes they have been renting from the city for a number of years. Of course, the mayoralty hopeful cautions, this is just an idea. Such a project would only materialize if there was a large demand for it and certain occupancy.

"One-third of the people of Oshawa are tenants," says Peleshok. "What is council doing for them?" However, he says, it is not council's responsibility to tell groups like the tenants what they need, but rather to have the tenants come to council to explain their needs and desires. "Let them take the initiative," he advocates. "If you show the different groups you have concern for them, they'll respond and come to council with their problems."

Pull city together: McNeely

Ed McNeely is a quiet, thoughtful, pipe-puffing type of man who realizes fully what it will mean to be mayor of the city of Oshawa.

Mayoralty candidate McNeely has a substantial history of service to the city — as city solicitor for 11 years and as alderman and chairman of the public works committee for the past two. The time is now ripe for his bid for the mayor's chair and McNeely feels he can handle the job. He's a lawyer and has a practice in partnership with former Mayor Ernest Marks.

As an alderman, McNeely has established a reputation for leadership and reform. He is the man responsible for the creation of the new department of planning and development. His public works committee brought in a streamlined program and rule book for snow removal. And McNeely is one of the original advocates of the Oshawa-Whitby amalgamation and has most eloquently stated Oshawa's position.

Oshawa will have to work hard to win the trust and friendship of the other municipalities which will come into regional government with Oshawa, he says. "We haven't been part of the county," he says, "And I can't help but feel there is a certain amount of trading off on the part of the smaller municipalities against Oshawa." McNeely says it is the responsibility of the mayor of Oshawa to lead in the establishment of a good relationship both officially and personally with the other municipalities.

McNeely also questions the feasability of creating the region on schedule on January 1, 1971. He feels that the municipalities, — and Oshawa in particular with its large staff — will need more than one year to get organized for the transition.

The first four months of the new mayor's term will be primarily devoted to the preparation of the budget for 1971, McNeely points out. With regional government looming on the horizon, council has to be aware that it will soon lose many of the powers it now enjoys, he warns. The 42-year-old candidate suggests that council will have to carefully assess the benefits of going ahead with projects which will be regional responsibilities. Oshawa might not get a facility as quickly if the provision of the facility is a decision of the regional council, he says.

McNeely is still very concerned about the structures and machinery which determine how things are done on both elected and administrative level at city hall. While McNeely supported the hiring of a city manager and the replacement of board of control with an executive committee, he opposes the simple "city-manager'council" concept.

"While some would be happy with a city-manager with a businessman image," he says, "I'm more concerned with

Set growth pattern: Breaugh

The next two years are crucial one's for Oshawa, says Mayoralty candidate Michael Breaugh.

"If Oshawa hasn't set the pattern for growth by that time, it may be too late because the city will have lost much of its power to regional government," warns Breaugh, the 28-year-old principal of the experimental St. John XXIII public school on Athabasca.

Breaugh decided to aim for the top job in the city rather than an aldermanic post because "that's more the way I see the needs of the city. The needs are at the top. There is plenty of good material for the other positions."

The way to make Oshawa a strong and growing community he says, is to attract diversified industry. Without this new assessment, says the Queen's graduate, there is no way the city can finance the other amenities of life — parks, roads, arenas. There are too many people depending on one major industry, he says.

Breaugh calls for the immediate implementation of the plans for industrial parks. "When we have established this broad economic base, we will have the funds to deal with the development of our lakefront and parks, our recreational and social needs in the manner that befits our people. Survival comes first. Then comes the development of the community."

In the long run, Breaugh sees the creation of a "livable city, the kind of large urban centre of about 200,000 people, which has the kind of amenities and development that only a city of that size can have."

Oshawa must make careful preparations for its future after the introduction of regional government, says the mayoralty hopeful. "When the province begins to fulfil its commitments to promote industry help finance hard and soft services and fulfil its design for the region, it will do so only in areas where the municipalities have proven their ability to help themselves," he says. Oshawa's importance in the region will be directly related to how well it has developed new industry and fostered the redevelopment of the downtown core.

Breaugh endorses the creation of a mall in the downtown as conceived in the Murray V. Jones report. "Let's set an atmosphere which will allow private capital to give us high-density units to supply the people who will live and shop downtown," he suggests. "Let's put the onus of commercial building and improvement on the people who will profit by it."

Council, says Breaugh, is the decision-making body for the city and must be responsive to the needs of the electorate. Board of control he says, erroneously, is a "check or control factor on the actions of council. It is the Senate of the city." Under the Municipal Act, the board is given no such powers.

The mayor, this candidate feels, is the leader and co-ordinator and

Attersley "believes in work"

Gordon Attersley is putting his long years of experience to the test.

Alderman Attersley is basing his campaign for Mayor on his lengthy record of service.

"I'm not the greatest orator," he says, "but then I believe in working, not talking, like some of the candidates.

"I promise to apply myself to the jobs or assignments which will confront me as mayor. It's up to the public to judge me on my record. They can either accept it or reject it on a promise."

Attersley feels that some of tne new aspirants to the mayor's chair without municipal experience have entered the contest because of their lack of knowledge. The oldest of the mayoralty candidates — he's 58 — places a great deal of emphasis on the importance of continuity.

Attersley has served a long apprenticeship. He was first elected as alderman in 1952 and has served continuously on Oshawa council since then with the exception of 1958. He lost out to Lyman Gifford in a bid for the mayoralty that year. The last three elections Attersley has received more votes than any other alderman.

As an alderman, he has served a chairman of all the standing committees except public works and was finance chairman for four years of the six he served on that committee. He was chairman of finance in the 1950s when Oshawa adopted the policy of preparing five-year capital forecasts, a procedure made mandatory by the provincial government.

The past four years, Attersley has been chairman of the social services committee which deals with people problems. In this period, the committee has helped to get a branch office of the Alcohol and Drug Addiction Research Foundation in Oshawa. Oshawa is the first municipality in Ontario to have a municipally-run family counselling service. The committee is presently studying how to help emotionally disturbed children and is considering the need for a day care centre.

"One in ten families in Oshawa is a one-parent family," he reports. "While a day care centre doesn't solve all the problems, it will be a tremendous help to many women."

Attersley has worked with General Motors for 35 years in many jobs ranging from invoice audit, to purchasing to sales, and now he is a planner for the sales division of the parts department. He has completed a number of courses in factory management and supervision and feels he has the varied business experience necessary for the mayor of Oshawa.

Attersley has also been involved in community activities for many years. Sports are a special love and he has participated at all levels — playing, coaching, managing, sponsoring. He helped get the children's arena built and is now on the arenas board of management. He's also spent many years with the

BOARD OF CONTROL

Get things done: Blake

Calvin Blake promises to bring to board of control his talent for organization and getting things done. And the city needs people with enthusiasm who will arouse a strong sense of community if Oshawa is not to flounder over employment and the one-industry town problem, says Blake.

Three years ago Blake, 42, sold his business and retired because he has an adequate income from his investments and does not need the money.

In 1966, Oshawa changed drastically, he says. Until then, there had been enough jobs for everyone and no unemployment. Now, youngsters coming out of high school and university cannot find employment in the city. "Oshawa is going to fall apart at the seams unless something is done within the next two years," says the candidate for board of control. "This needs a total commitment from the community."

The formation of a region in this area is essential, because the provincial government will only provide help in attracting industry to a large municipality with a lot of people, says Blake.

While the high unemployment and growing welfare list are at the top of his priority list, Blake also feels that the downtown must be re-developed over a period of time, financed by private capital. Council and the merchants should sit down together to work out the problem, he suggests.

Blake feels council and board of control need people who will get the work done efficiently. "I know how to allocate duties. I'll generate steam but everybody's got to help." This potential controller feels that the electorate wants a balance of representation from the community, not a council top-heavy with highly-educated people

More responsibility: Coulter

Board of Control candidate Graham Coulter would like to see the controllers entrusted with more responsibility.

Although I have only one vote and can't really promise anything, says Coulter, I would like to see board of control as a more effective committee which can aid the staff in carrying out council's instructions and also assist council in the formation of policy.

Coulter says the 1971 council must continue the reorganization of the administration and establish a pyrmidal structure for responsibility and reporting. As a businessman — he's now retired from Coulter's manufacturing where he was president — the candidate for controller is basing his campaign on his experience as a businessman and an industrialist. When he was an alderman in 1958, Coulter served on the industrial commission and is convinced that the city must attract a variety of industry to counterbalance the effect of General Motors. His experience in setting up a plant in Oshawa should be a valuable asset in this area.

Coulter stresses the need to make the city more attractive not only to satisfy the recreational and aesthetic needs of the present residents to present a better face to potential industry.

Regional government is a major concern, and Coulter would work towards getting a favorable form for Oshawa with the proper representation on the regional council, and not in a position of being the financier for the region.

The city has done a great deal to prepare the downtown as a commercial, institutional and residential centre, he says. Now it is up to private developers to do their share. "This is a high assessment area which should be guarded, "he says.

Watch stampeding: John Dehart

After his defeat in the mayoralty race two years ago, John Dehart is back on the scene in the contest for controller.

Dehart, who organized the first large regional government seminar in Ontario county, today warns the city not to "be stampeded" into regional government. He feels that 1972 may put too much pressure on an orderly change into the new form of government.

"It is most important that Oshawa gets proper representation on the regional council," says the 47-year-old candidate, "to protect Oshawa's tax base, or else the outlying municipalities will be spending Oshawa's money." And to make the region work, says Dehart, the province must come forward with a concrete program to encourage industry to locate in the new region.

Dehart also feels that board of control can play an important role in improving the relationship between industry and the employees in the community and may be able to persuade the industries to hire the laid-off workers.

Oshawa has to be ready when the federal government takes the lid off urban renewal grants to municipalities, he says. Instead of writing letters to the minister in charge, board of control should arrange a meeting with Robert Andras to get on the list eligible and waiting with plans in hand for federal money.

Dehart also emphasizes the need to include improvements to make the city more attractive in future budgets. "Too much money has been spent on roads in the past," he says, "We must make Oshawa an attractive place to live."

While Dehart would like to study the various suggestions for streamlining council, he feels the city needs the influence of an imaginative planner

Watch isolation: Ross Gibson

Oshawa has to co-ordinate its planning with plans for the region, says Alderman Ross Gibson who is campaigning for seat on Board of Control.

Gibson, 47, was a surprise candidate for controller. He is news director for Radio Station CKLB is just concluding his first two-year term on council.

"Let's not plan in isolation" is Gibson's key platform. The province has already accepted the Toronto-centred Region plan as an "unofficial-official plan" says the Alderman, and the city must take this into consideration when planning for its own development prior to the implementation of regional government. Gibson feels the city must establish its position as the leader in the region and cannot justify any criticism of regional plans unaccompanied by well-thought-out alternatives

Gibson, who is vice-chairman of the traffic committee, says that council must continue to encourage re-development of the down town core with the assistance of private developers And the city must continue to actively pursue new industry with a positive program and a well-laid-out industrial park, says the industrial commission member.

The board of control hopeful deplores the division between Oshawa and the rest of the county which has arisen during regional government discussions and urges that all municipalities involved renew their pledge to work together to do justice to the industrial, residential and recreational potential of the two whole area

Gibson is a strong advocate of the city manager system and feels there is a great need to revamp council to improve participation by all council members and to oil the lines of communication between council, municipal staff and the public

Can't hold it down: Margaret

"No one is going to hold down the city of Oshawa," says incumbent controller Margaret Shaw.

"I have faith that Oshawa is just starting to grow out of the baby stage and become a big boy."

Mrs. Shaw is running for her third term as controller. She has also served as an alderman for two years and was a trustee on the board of education.

Mrs. Shaw is extremely pleased with the industrial development Commissioner Robert Nicol has brought to the city in the past two years. Up to the end of October, $10 million in building permits had been taken out for industrial and commercial construction she reports. He has been this successful even though times are harder, says the controller who predicts that Oshawa is on an upswing.

Mrs. Shaw hopes that the past animosity between council and board of control will cease next term and that council will recognize that board of control should play more of a policy-setting role She supports the abandonment of the committee system to allow all members of council to be more informed about all aspects of the civic administration.

The new council must be careful to hold the line in taxes. "The people just can't take it any more," says Controller Shaw She also advocated tax relief for senior citizens to allow them to continue to live in their homes instead of going to a home for the aged.

However, the most important thing council has to deal with is regional government. "We should sit on the steps of Queen's Park until Premier Robarts tells us how the province is going to help offset the increase in taxes to the people of Oshawa," she says.

Need background says Christine

While she is encouraged by the calibre of the new candidates for council, Controller Christine Thomas is seeking re-election to help provide the continuity necessary as Oshawa prepares to enter regional government.

The background knowledge gathered over the years is essential in this time of rapid change and development, says Mrs Thomas who was Mayor of Oshawa in 1961 and 1962 and spent eight years as an alderman.

Her chief concern is the protection of Oshawa's financial position as the city goes into regional government. Controller Thomas feels that the new council must consider very carefully the 1971 capital budget so that the city is not oppressed with too heavy a capital debt. She suggests that the capital forecast for 1971 of $9 million could easily be cut in half

Municipal spending should be directed towards items where the city will receive a return on its investment — development of the industrial park and the renewal of the downtown core Urban renewal is something which should be undertaken slowly in co-operation with private development so that the city can get the proper kind of assessment out of the downtown, she says.

And council must make sure that the people of Oshawa will not have to pay for the services which will be provided for the other municipalities in the new region, says the Controller who feels that her prime functitn is as watchdog over Oshawa's purse strings.

Board of control will probably carry on as it has in the past two years, she predicts, acting as council's finance committee and undertaking special assignments at the request of council

they will not be there in the new year

Where does all this leave the voter next Monday?

Well, take a look down the aldermanic list. Of the very capable and knowledgeable aldermen very few are left.

In fact, of all 12 incumbents, only six have chosen to give it another whirl. And the six who are in the running have not all shown themselves to be forerunners in positive thinking and constructive action.

Fortunately, among the "new" candidates, there are a number of very promising men and women. At this point we would certainly single out one Helen Wilson, a teacher at McLaughlin Collegiate, John Purcell, stockbroker; Peter Magda, a lawyer, Keith Ross who has made his mark on the industrial commission and in planning and Mike Lisko, the school teacher.

For Board of Control the choice is not nearly as varied. Controllers Shaw and Thomas and alderman Ross Gibson certainly deserve a position on the Board. But to pick four from the six candidates is indeed difficult.

As for the mayoralty, it's a shame not all four men will be winners. Oshawa could certainly use all four. But there will be one winner. More about that too, in Friday's This Week.

On the subject of public utilities, we said a few weeks ago that in our opinion, the commission needed a shaking up and perhaps some new faces. Nine candidates have offered their services for the four seats. Thing to remember there is that we do need change and a fresh approach, but let's also be careful not to throw out the baby with the bathwater..

On the education front, we're very happy indeed to see so many new faces added to the incumbents. And some of these new people show a great deal of promise as makers of meaningful decisions.

We're glad people like Stanley Lovell and Steve Saywell and Norm Edmondson are offering yet another two years of their valuable time. Just last week a reader remarked that Mr. Lovell probably spends more time as education board chairman than on his own business. We're inclined to believe that.

Both school boards can stand a breath of fresh air

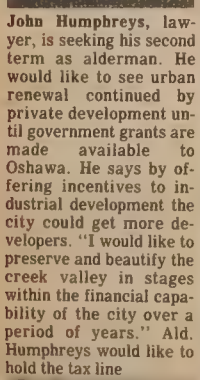
ALDERMEN



Ruth Bestwick is seeking her second term as alderman so she can finish the tasks she has started on the last council and to do what she can for the community. Mrs. Bestwick, who is perhaps best known for her work with the Drop-In Centre, has served two years on the Social Services committee. She would like to see more homes built for young families that can be purchased with low down payments and reasonable interest rates.

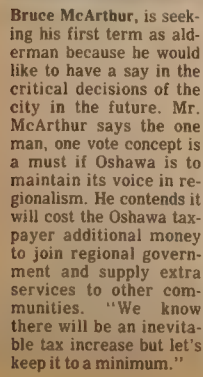
Genevieve Eyman is seeking her first term as a city alderman. Mrs. Eyman thinks the city needs downtown development and industry but says the cost of this should not be the responsibility of the taxpayer. She says this cost should be the responsibility of the merchants who will benefit from it. She would like to see the industrial commission attract more industry to the city.

Ruth M. Hopps is seeking her first term as an alderman because she says she is not satisfied with some of the results of previous councils and cites taxes as an example. Mrs. Hopps, who is opposed to the increase in the mayor's salary feels the city needs a full-time mayor especially "with regional government". She would like to see the rate of taxation controlled and is concerned about the rising rate of unemployment. Mrs. Hopps, used to own a ladies wear store

John Humphreys, lawyer, is seeking his second term as alderman. He would like to see urban renewal continued by private development until government grants are made available to Oshawa. He says by offering incentives to industrial development the city could get more developers. "I would like to preserve and beautify the creek valley in stages within the financial capability of the city over a period of years." Ald. Humphreys would like to hold the tax line

Alan L. Jones is seeking his first term as an alderman "for the betterment of our fair city". He would like to see community life made more sociable through more communication between City council and the 24 Neighbourhood Park areas where teenagers and senior citizens alike can enjoy a social gathering. He would like to see more industry brought into the city which "will help to bring taxes into proportion and help relieve the working man".

Victor Kitchen is seeking his first term as alderman. He says that under regional government, representation should be governed by population rather than territory. He would like to see the next council look into the possibility of promoting a second hospital for the city. "I believe Oshawa has grown to the population that requires another hospital that is certainly essential to the well-being of all their citizens".



Donald Lee, originator of the Oshawa Tenant Association, is seeking his first term as a city alderman. Mr. Lee says he is running to instill in city council "some meaningful leadership and genuine concern for the type of environment that as civic leaders they should be building for the citizens of Oshawa". He would like to see encouragement of more highrise development, lower rents, more housing, stringent building codes and the right to vote for 18-year-Olds

Mike Lisko, elementary school principal, is seeking his first term as alderman. He supports Con. McIlveen's motion to abolish the standing committees to eliminate inefficiencies. Mr. Lisko would like to see the introduction of a ward system in Oshawa ensuring equal representation of all areas. He calls for encouragement of private and corporate development for the "neglected" downtown area. "Oshawa's industrial complex must be expanded

Peter Z. Magda, a lawyer, is seeking his first term as alderman. He has pledged to take a hard working dollars and cents approach to the solution of many of the city's problems. He would like to see the downtown area redeveloped in an orderly manner by attracting more commerce and making "all of us proud of our city". He would like to see more industry encouraged to move into Oshawa

Bruce McArthur, is seeking his first term as alderman because he would like to have a say in the critical decisions of the city in the future. Mr. McArthur says the one man, one vote concept is a must if Oshawa is to maintain its voice in regionalism. He contends it will cost the Oshawa taxpayer additional money to join regional government and supply extra services to other communities. "We know there will be an inevitable tax increase but let's keep it to a minimum."

Dennis McAuley is seeking his first term as a city alderman. His platform is to bring industry back to Oshawa; to ease the tax burden of the citizens; and development of the harbour area to entice trade. Mr. McAuley is a maintenance mechanic and is president of Local Union 2784 steelworkers union of the late "Reynolds".

John D. McLaughlin, lawyer, is seeking his first term as an Oshawa, alderman. He would like to see a "pay as you go" policy for Oshawa and a push for re-development of the downtown area when urban renewal funds are available. He would like to see a push for retention of industry and attraction of new industry and implementation of regional government and development on terms favorable to Oshawa citizens.

ALDERMEN

Robert Moon, a Durham College teacher of business communications and political science is seeking his first term as an alderman. He would like to help make Oshawa a model industrial community "perhaps the best in North America". He supports an economy-minded administration and a hold-the-line tax policy. He would like to see the founding of a week-long International Cultural and Culinary Festival which would attract thousands of visitors.

Roger H. Morrison is seeking his first term as alderman because he believes in the principle of involved citizenry. "I pledge to work with honesty, sincerity and determination on behalf of the citizens of Oshawa". He says the problems of the community such as pollution, urban renewal, drug abuse and creek valley development are problems of every citizen. Mr. Morrison served on the Oshawa and District Labor Council in 1967.

David O'Flynn, insurance inspector, is seeking his first term as city alderman, because he feels "an infusion of new blood may be the tonic needed for council". He says urban renewal and all other environmental necessities are a must. "Regional government will be implemented but we must make Oshawa's viewpoint known so that it shows concern for citizens of Oshawa as well as other communities".

Lloyd Pidgen is seeking his first term as alderman "because I am a concerned citizen ready and willing to serve the city". His policy on taxes is that the city spend only when you have the money and do without till such time as they have sufficient funds. He says the city should be prepared to make a sacrifice if necessary. He would like to "all those expensive studies by so called professional experts stopped".

Allan C. Pilkey is seeking his second term as alderman. At 25 Mr. Pilkey was the youngest member on council and is concerned with problems associated with young homeowners and taxpayers. He would like to see more developed playgrounds around apartment complexes, full value for ratepayers tax dollars, and an arrest of the rising taxation spiral. "I would like to be re-elected to protect Oshawa's interest within the framework of regional government."

James Potticary, pension consultant, is seeking his second term as alderman "so the citizens of Oshawa will have a better place to live." Mr. Potticary would like to see day care centres in the city, commencement of the Creek Valley project and more low cost housing to Oshawa through developers. He would like to see the implementation of the new building standards by-law in 1971.

John Purcell, stockbroker, is attempting to gain a seat on council hoping to give more representation by the business community. He feels if industrial development and urban renewal are to receive the weight and attention they require, then a stronger representation is needed from the business community. "Urban re-development is urgent if we are to arrest the decay which is setting in the downtown district," says Mr. Purcell.

Russ Rak, who is seeking his first term as an alderman, calls for the election of himself and other labour candidates who will unite in their efforts to remove the total cost of education, public welfare, health care, housing and urban renewal from being a charge against the property tax. These services, he claims, do not properly qualify as exclusively local functions to be paid out of property taxes.

Alice Reardon is seeking her fifth term as city alderman. Mrs. Reardon as chairman of the Traffic Committee is most anxious to see the approval of a parking garage for the downtown area. Mrs. Reardon says it is no use trying to fool the people that taxes will go down or remain the same. "It is impossible to bring the taxes down if we are to provide the services required." She says election issues are the same issues council must face all year round

Keith Ross, a candidate for alderman and a member of the industrial commission is proposing bold steps to update antiquated bylaws. In particular he refers to the bylaws that "are hampering economically feasible development". He favors the immediate construction of a downtown parking garage and public washrooms in the downtown area. "The new council will have to do everything possible to bring decent housing within the price range of every citizen

William H. Tredwell, real estate representative, believes in total involvement saying the time is past for sitting on the sidelines and criticizing. He calls for more encouragement of private and corporate development to move into the area to bring full employment to the citizens. He would like to see a start made on the Creek Valley project saying "we can't afford to wait until the city acquires all the land necessary to complete this development".

Jack Vanderkop, an engineering estimator, is seeking his first term as alderman. "I feel there is a great need for people with a fresh outlook on current matters, people who will stand up and speak with a clear mind. Mr. Vanderkop said he felt the city should examine its spending before committing itself. "Issues may be appealing but restraint is often important," he says.

William T. Werry, alderman for the past three years, is seeking another term. Ald. Werry is in favor of Con. Charles McIlveen's motion to abolish the standing committees and replace them with committee of the whole. "I think this way everyone on council has an opportunity to widen their scope on municipal matters and this would be a good preparation for regional government."

Douglas H. Wilson is seeking his first term as alderman. He calls for urgent tax reform. His solution to problems is to have the provincial government raise the taxes on province wide industry and distritube them to the areas needing municipal services. "Regional government won't solve any problems," says Mr. Wilson. He says he would like to see his tax dollar spent on servicing and improving roads, police and fire protection, parks etc.

Helen Wilson, business and commerce teacher at McLaughlin Collegiate is seeking her first term as a city alderman. She says Oshawa needs a strong political force at city hall in order to get government grants to develop serviced industrial parks and estates ready to receive the new industry needed in Oshawa. Oshawa needs housing but needs a varied selection of dwellings to meet the needs of the different kinds of people who will buy them, says Mrs. Wilson.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

ONTARIO COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION (elect 7)

Fred Britten, who has served for seven years on the board of education is seeking re-election to insure the work begun by the first board of education under the county system is continued. He would like to see equal opportunity for all children in Ontario county regardless of race, creed or color. He would like to see the cost of education maintained at a "reasonable level" without curtailment of programs.

Leonard Camozzi is seeking his first term as a trustee on the county board of education because he feels the board needs young blood to replace members lost by old age and those defeated at the polls. "This is 1970 and the time is gone where the school board is a social gathering for older members of the community". Mr. Camozzi is director of the Junior Achievement Association of Oshawa.

Lloyd Clarke is seeking his second term on the county board of education to try and restrict the unnecessary rising costs of the frills being implemented in the newer schools. He says the older schools needing renovation are being neglected in favor of newer schools. He says a trustee's responsibility is making sure all children receive equal opportunity under the school system.

Peter Conway is seeking his first term as a trustee on the County Board of Education "to try and do my part as a citizen". He would like to see a greater variety of courses offered under the adult education program.

Margaret Couch, a former secondary school teacher, is seeking her first term on the County Board of Education. She says a fresh approach is needed and she has the time and energy to devote to the job. New approaches must be taken and new ways must be found to improve the quality of our educational services without forcing the cost of education out of reach says Mrs. Couch. "Old ideas must be reconsidered. Even the Hall-Dennis Report should be constantly reassessed," says Mrs. Couch.

James W. Doswell is seeking his first term as a school board trustee to ensure the best education for children at the most reasonable cost. He says a school board trustee has to interpret education needs into costs and change tax dollars into the best educational system. "Our children are our future assets and we must provide the opportunity for them to learn and to keep abreast of technical advances," says Mr. Doswell.

Norman Edmondson, Oshawa lawyer, is seeking re-election to the County Board of Education. His platform is progressive response to educational needs and careful regard for the interest of the tax payer. Mr. Edmondson is presently vice-chairman of the Board of Education.

Rev. Walter Jewell is seeking his first term as a school board trustee and feels his experience as a minister and engineer would be advantageous to the board of education. He would like to see more community participation in the use of schools. He says there is some need for more economical use of the buildings and funds administered by the board.

Rev. William Jones is seeking his first term on the County Board of Education to help provide equal opportunity for all students. He would like to see a 12-month year in education, teacher re-education incentives, merit pay for better teachers and family life education taught in the schools. Rev. Jones holds two degrees in education plus two other degrees for his doctor of education degree.

Mrs. Anne Lee is seeking re-election as a County Board of Education trustee and would like to see greater government support through financial aid for education. She calls for good administration through good trustee leadership to forge ahead with the challenge of education. Mrs. Lee was first elected to the Oshawa Board of Education in 1955.

Stanley Lovell, a member of the Oshawa Board of Education for six years and the Ontario County Board for two years, is seeking re-election. Mr. Lovell has served as chairman of the county board for the past two years. He says the next two years will bring an evaluation of existing programs. He foresees the beginning of new approaches to education through use of television and electronic aids, great out-door education and work experience. The major cost of such programs he says must come through economies made in the present educational programmes budget.

PUC

David G. Brady an engineering technician, is seeking a seat on the PUC. He says his occupation has familiarized himself with many phases of PUC operations and management. He would like to see rates staying the same without a reduction in services. "I will work diligently in the best interest of the citizens of Oshawa."

Gordon Henderson, is determined rates should not be increased and that if certain economies are instituted this can be done without any reduction in service. He would like to see senior citizens given a "better deal with regards to bus fare". He believes board meetings of the PUC should be open to the public. "No closed doors" is his policy.

Edwin Armstrong, who has served 18 years on the PUC is running for re-election. A retired mechanical engineer, Mr. Armstrong is interested "in continued improvement in operations of the OPUC" which he feels have been demonstrated over the past several years.

Roy J. Fleming, 55-year-old General Motors employee with twelve years experience as a Public Utilities Commissioner is seeking re-election to the PUC to "make sure we get our full dollars worth for all money spent by OPUC." Mr. Fleming feels his experience as a commissioner would be an essential help when regional government becomes effective. Mr. Fleming is married, the father of three children and lives at 609 Carnegie Ave.

Knud Due believes new views and outlooks are essential on the PUC and is seeking his first term. He believes the publically owned PUC corporation meetings should be open to the public. He suggests hydro and water rates be maintained at their present standing. He would like to see the PUC ownership "kept where it belongs — with the residents of Oshawa, until OAPADS' recommendations change its unilateral position."

David H. Brown, a registered professional engineer, is seeking a seat on the PUC because he feels he can offer a qualified choice to the electorate and can serve his community and profession at the same time. He feels public utilities will be facing "crucial issues" in the future when regional government is instituted. "It is important that the quality and cost of services be maintained under any new form of government."

Dr. Brian Doherty is seeking his first time as a commissioner for the PUC. He is concerned that public transit will not become more attractive to the commutor than private vehicle unless certain factors are fulfilled. Dr. Doherty suggests that when the user becomes convinced of the availability of the bus to his home, the obvious economy to the user and the advantages of timing and scheduling, that then business volume will increase.

Frank J. Grindley, Oshawa businessman, is seeking his first term as a PUC commissioner. He says he thinks businessmen should contribute more of their time to civic administration. He says: "regardless of whether regional government is decided I feel closer co-operation with neighbour counties should be examined and would prove economic to Oshawa."

Reginald W. Pinder, retired accountant, is seeking his second term as a PUC commissioner. Mr. Pinder says regional government is "the issue today" and will affect the utilities. He has time to attend all meetings, local or otherwise that will affect public utilities. Mr. Pinder is chairman of the Lakeshore Municipal Hydro and Water Commissions, and would like to continue working with the lakeshore municipalities.

Barry Mason is seeking his first term as a board of education trustee because he is concerned with what he calls mushrooming costs of todays education. He says he is shocked at the "astronomical" salaries paid to top level board employees while office workers receive "subsistence wages". He calls for a halt to ever increasing education costs, questions the merit of present expenditures and would work for a program to stamp out drugs in high schools.

Gordon S. Smith is seeking his first term as a County Board of Education trustee and says he has the energy, ability and qualifications to get the job done and represent the people well. He would like to see a policy established to limit the number of pupils per class. He calls for improvement in the program for mentally retarded children and provision of more facilities and programs for children with other learning disabilities.

Mel H. Smith is running for the Board of Education to offer Oshawa tax payers the benefit of his 40 years experience in industrial, commercial residential building. If elected he would insist that a complete detailed study of all plans, architect's blue prints and definite costs be approved by the school board, before a school is built. He is in opposition to allowing liquor outlets at any time on school property.

Tom Thomas is seeking his fourth term as a board of education trustee. With the completion of a 2-year term on the new County Board of Education he would like to continue to build up an educational system, modernized and adapted to the ever changing needs of the times.

Doug Wilson, Oshawa developer, served as a trustee on the 1967-68 board. Parent involvement is important, says Mr. Wilson. He says many parents are lead to believe they are not wanted in the educational system. He is against any new policies which will increase the cost of education until such time as the costs can be justified.

Earl Wolff, vice-principal of Bowmanville High School is seeking a term as a Board of Education trustee. He believes, with his background in education that he can make a significant positive contribution to education. He offers only one election promise — to work to the best of his ability and energy for the betterment of education in Ontario County.

Stephen Wotton, with four-years experience on the Board of Education is seeking re-election. He is in favor of one educational system to avoid further segregation of children on religious grounds. His platform is an up-to-date meaningful educational system within a reasonable cost structure.

ONTARIO COUNTY BOARD OF EDUCATION SEPARATE SCHOOL CANDIDATES

There are four candidates running for the position of separate school representative on the Ontario County Board of Education. The following three candidates presented their information to This Week.

James Brady is seeking his second term on the County Board of Education as a separate school representative. He would like to see continued expansion of community use of schools; improvement of learning opportunities for high school students and greater efficiency in school administration. Mr. Brady served two years on the Whitby council before being elected to the school board.

John C. Larmond is seeking re-election as a separate school representative on the Board of Education to complete the organization of the County Board system. He would like to complete a number of important educational programs he, as a member of the past board, was responsible for instituting. Mr. Larmond has served five years as a separate school representative on the Oshawa board of education and two years on the Ontario County board.

Bill Ward, principal of St. Christopher's Separate School is seeking election to the County Board of Education as a separate school representative. He is a strong supporter of the extension of the separate school system to grade 13. He says he will use his experience in education for the continued improvement of the educational system.

ONTARIO COUNTY SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD (OSHAWA) (elect 9)

Following are the candidates for the Ontario County Separate School Board, with a brief statement from each:

Hugh Armstrong, a 2-year member of the Separate School Board is seeking his second term. He is concerned about the rising cost in education. He would like to see more community use of schools and would like to have one uniformed style of school for the province. He would like to see a joint sharing of facilities with the County Board of Education, thus eliminating "costly duplications". Equal provincial grants for all separate schools from kindergarten to grade 13 is another of his platforms.

Frank Baron, with 12 years experience on the Catholic School Board, feels he can contribute in a positive manner to the progressive advancement in Catholic education. He would like to see the abolition of the residential tax increase "which resulted in higher taxes for Catholic school supporters". He feels his 20 years of business experience would be an asset in running the administrative aspect of the system.

Edward Beauchamp is seeking his second term as a trustee. During that time he was the school board's representative on the Oshawa Planning board and is presently vice-chairman of the board. He would like to see the pupil per teacher ratios in the system so that the condition of 35 to 40 pupils in the class will become rare. "This is important in all schools but becomes critical for effective methodology within the open school concept."

Ron Belton is seeking his first term as a separate school trustee. He feels one of the most important issues facing us today is the extension of government grants to grades 11-12 and 13. "We have for too long been indifferent about the inequalities in the existing system of provincial grants." He would like to see provision of more special services for the exceptionally bright child as well as for the perceptually and physically handicapped.

Winona Clarke, a 30-year veteran on several school boards, is seeking re-election to the separate school board. Her platform is equal accommodation for all Catholic pupils in the county regardless of pupils in the county regardless of their location. "As a member of Oshawa Separate School Board I believe I played a part in the great strides we have made of 10 new schools and nine additions."

Joseph Corey, with four years experience on the High School board, is seeking election to the separate school board. He thinks it is vital for parents to be elected as trustees because "education is primarily a parental responsibility". He says the school board must keep abreast of real challenge and responsibility and constant changes in education and business.

William Forbes is seeking election to the Separate School Board. He says the greatest legacy we can give our children is a good education and to accomplish this we require tax dollars, qualified teachers and adequate schools, properly located. Mr. Forbes supports the extension of government grants to separate schools up to grade 13.

Anthony Meringer, a 4-year veteran on the separate school board, is seeking re-election. He would like to see a new government law introduced to force land developers to set aside enough land for school and recreational needs. He would also like to see extension of government grants in the separate school system.

John Muha is seeking his first term as a separate school trustee. He would like to see alleviation of crowded conditions in some schools where necessary. He would like to see the school board get back the loss of "many thousands of tax dollars due to Catholics directing their money to public school systems". If elected he would become a "watchdog" on pupil to teacher ratio in the classrooms.

Michael Rudka is seeking re-election to the Ontario County Separate School board where he has served 15 years. His platform is "sound experienced administration".

Rev. Roland Sanschagrin is seeking re-election to the school board for his second term. He would like to see development of bilingualism and biculturalism "for a better understanding among Canadians". He would like to see equality in education for all.

Ivan B. Wallace is seeking his third term as a separate school board trustee. He says the school board requires greater effort to return to an equal mill rate. He is in favor of extension of school grants and taxes to grade 13. "The county school board needs competent and experienced trustees." Mr. Wallace has served as chairman and vice-chairman of the school board.

—by peter brouwer.

Somehow, with all the furious election activity of the last couple of weeks, I've got politics coming out of my ears. For one night last week it even got to the point where I had a nightmare in which Don Lee and Margaret Shaw and a new-girl-on-the-scene by the name of Helen Wilson, and Ross Gibson and a mayoralty candidate called Breaugh all played a prominent part. I won't delve into the gory details, except to say they would have made Chief Jon Jenkins' hair stand up even straighter.

What led up to the nightmare is much more significant. It was the Liberal Association's election forum at Lovell School. Every candidate did his or her thing for a few minutes and as opposed to the forums held at the UAW hall, there was a turnout at this one that made it worth the candidate's while to show up — though a few didn't. (There are a few more forums this week. If you have not attended one, there's still time. Do go, and make up your own mind about the candidates.)

Alderman Attersley started the ball rolling with a "with me it's the people first" and "I'm a working alderman, not a talking one." Next came Mike Breaugh who spoke of the good use to which he would suggest everyone put a certain newspaper and of "action instead of fancy planning." McNeely was next, speaking of pulling the organization of city hall together and getting a man with knowledge and experience who can command respect. Peleshok spoke of the "Board of Control fiasco" and said the present council had made such a mess of things that half of the members are not running for another term.

Then came the controllers, of whom Calvin Blake said he is not known to settle as a loser and Graham Coulter expressing his interest in industrial development and the rejuvenation of the downtown core of the city. Next was John DeHart with a machine-gun delivery of facts and figures and an appeal not to "sit here and cry of doom and gloom." He was followed by Ross Gibson who gave a clear and concise rundown of constructive suggestions, much like his usual noon-newscast on CKLB. Margaret Shaw promised she would "get back in there to battle for the people" and added that "if you can't be perfect, you can at least be flexible." Controller Thomas was next, with the shortest speech I've heard her make all year. But it was to the point, and showed insight and experience.

As for the aldermanic candidates I'd like to pick some of the highlights:

There was Victor Kitchen who commented "you can't say too much in the time it takes to boil an egg". (Aldermanic candidates had three minutes to state their case.)

There was Donald Lee, the candidate-with-the-long hair (like the prime minister's) who really did say some very worthwhile things but against whom there was obvious hostility from among some of the Liberals in attendance.

Next was Peter Magda who found Lee's a "hard act to follow", which it was.

Waq e then there was Robert Moon, Durham college teacher and former journalist whose sense of humor alone would make a welcome addition to council meetings. Moon suggested forums such as this one be held once a month or so.

There was David O'Flynn who showed a total lack of understanding of what goes on at the Youth Drop-In Centre, (and later there was Helen Wilson, who showed the opposite.)

There was Lloyd Pigden, Kinsman, Sunday school teacher, father of six and a member of the board of his church. He was wearing a United Appeal button, a Kinsman button, and one I failed to identify in the excitement.

There was Allan Pilkey who compared Bonnie Brae Point to Mount Everest in connection with a city land purchase in that area.

Next came Jim Potticary, for decentralized recreation and "people working with people."

And then came John Patrick Purcell, who

sparked Peleshok's interest in municipal politics is Oshawa's performance on the regional government study. He has been a dedicated observer of regional government developments and feels tha Oshawa has not shown the leadership it should have in the Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study. He feels there is no need for amalgamation of Oshawa and Whitby and urges that Oshawa "show strong leadership by being concerned for the other municipalities and the opinions of the people of Oshawa."

Peleshok was disturbed by the administration's apparent disregard for citizen briefs on regional government.

Peleshok feels he can provide leadership for Oshawa and the region.

Breaugh

should establish patterns and procedures for the entire civic administration. Breaugh feels that council procedure should be revised to make it more efficient, and that the municipal administration also requires streamlining and should not be controlled by a group of powerful civil servants.

This city has a desperate need for a change in its style of political leadership, he feels. A dynamic, fulltime mayor with energy, drive and skill is most important in this period of Oshawa's development.

Breaugh feels he can fulfil the position and says that he is now a frontrunner in the race. He feels that his victory will be directly attributable to people who are voting for the first time in a municipal election because he has given them a choice.

Breaugh and his wife have two children and live at 185 Athabasca Street.

and a new approach in a number of areas. Both school boards too will be in need of the continued advice of some of the stronger and well-experienced members.

Perhaps these observations don't leave you too much wiser. Thing to remember is that tonight and again tomorrow night and Friday night there are election forums at which the candidates are available to speak and to answer questions. Why not make an effort and be there? And also, do take the time to read up on those who are offering their services in this week's paper.

Most of all, make plans to get out and vote next Monday. A better tomorrow for your family and your neighbor's really does depend on it.

Meanwhile, we'll be back with a more definite editorial on Friday. We too want to sit in on two more election forums.

Attersley

nieghbourhood parks association.

"People are saying that the Mayor of Oshawa has to be someone who can represent the city and meet people of importance," says Attersley. "I've handled all the visitations and protocol for the city since 1955." Attersley managed the cermonies when Governors-General Vanier and Michener visited the city, as well as many other formal events.

The Mayoralty candidate feels the city should postpone any massive reorganization of staff or council until after the creation of regional government when both the council and the city's responsibilities will be smaller.

In these trying times, he says, council and the mayor will have to be concerned with holding the tax line as much as possible providing only the necessary items, such as a new sewage treatment plant.

Attersley lives with his wife at 300 Mary Street. Their three children are married with children of their own.

popular control." If people want simply efficient government the province can appoint a manager, he says. But he'd rather see the people chose who they want to run the city.

An item of high priority to McNeely is how to improve the way the business is done. If a study finds that standing committees should be done away with, council will have to establish a new relationship with the senior staff and the mayor, he says. As Mayor, McNeely would like to have regular meetings with the senior staff members, getting their advice and assistance and helping them set priorities.

"The mayor is both administrative and political head of the city," he says. "He has a specific role, although he has only one vote. He cannot be simply a member of council.

"The mayor has a duty to pull the city together," says McNeely, "And no city manager can do that."

McNeely lives with his wife and five children at 377 Simcoe Street North.

SOME DOCTORS & DENTISTS ARE USING HYPNOSIS

Once hypnosis was only an entertainment medium. But today it is being used medically more and more in the treatment of many conditions. There are actually physicians who are just specializing in the use of hypnosis. It has proven effective in such situations as stopping thumb-sucking, nail-biting, and excessive drinking. And, recently it was proved to be a valuable aid in treating musculoskeletal disorders such as bursitis.

Hypnosis for medical conditions should always be in the hands of trained experts. The amateur hypnotist could potentially cause harm, for there is still a great deal to learn about how it actually works and its possible side effects. Do not expose yourself to hypnosis unless your physician advises it.

YOU OR YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a delivery. We will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people rely on us for their health needs. We welcome requests for delivery service.

showed he was "sensitive to the needs of the people in this room" by asking them all to take one minute of his three minutes to stand up and stretch their legs.

And Alice Reardon informed the crowd she had 18 grandchildren, while Keith Ross pointed out to all those critical of industrial development (the lack thereof) that many of the critics don't know what they're talking about.

Vanderkop concluded Oshawa has the most favorable weather in all of Canada.

For me, candidate Helen Wilson was the surprise of the evening. She showed professional insight into planning and development.

The last candidate, Doug Wilson, spoke of a tax reform system that sounded more unworkable even than the existing one.

The question period was the most enjoyable, with Controller Shaw making a speech in support of candidate McNeely, and Alderman Allan Pilkey (youngest council member) concluding there's a huge generation gap between him and the "drop-in kids".

Who made the best speech of the night? In my opinion it was a toss-up between Mike Breaugh, Donald Lee — long hair and all — and Alderman Gibson. Gibson has an unfair advantage; he does this kind of thing every day.

No one at the forum though, could possibly have gone home sufficiently informed about all candidates.

It would be an excellent idea if next election, forums were to be held with one evening spent on the mayoralty, one on Board of Control, and at least one on council and one on board of education. Question and answer periods at these events could then be much more informative and worthwhile.

And another thing, mayor, board of control and council, and the school boards and puc as well, should perhaps consider holding a forum every so often. The council chamber would be a good place for one.

Nell Attersley

She's willing to share hubby

In last week's issue we ran features on the families of mayoralty candidates McNeely and Peleshok. This week it's Candidates Attersley and Breaugh's turn.

Nell and Gordon Attersley are celebrating their 40th anniversary this month and Mrs. Attersley considers that her husband's election as mayor of Oshawa would be a "perfect anniversary present".

When her husband first entered municipal politics 20 years ago Mrs. Attersley was "floored" when he came home with a box full of pamphlets. He was defeated in his first attempt to run for council.

"I thought that would cure him, but oh no, two years later he ran again and won and he hasn't looked back since," says Mrs. Attersley.

The three Attersley children have grown up, left home and have produced nine grandchildren. They do not live in Oshawa so cannot help their father with his campaign but they are behind him 100 per cent.

Being the wife of a politician Mrs. Attersley feels requires special qualities. A measure of patience, understanding and co-operation all blend to make a politician's wife.

"You have to get used to the fact that the phone seldom ceases to ring, usually around lunch time or at 5."

She says that the wife of a politician has to get used to her husband spending his free time helping his constituents. She remembers many times when her husband offered to take her out for a Sunday drive and then ended up visiting someone who had asked for help.

Twenty years ago Mrs. Attersley couldn't get used to her husband spending as much time with city affairs as he did. She has mellowed over the years and now has come to expect that if elected she will have to share her husband with 88,000 other people.

Over the years she has become Mr. Attersley's secretary and opens his mail, reads it to him while he eats his lunch and types the odd letter for him.

"However, the one thing I never have gotten around to doing is his filing and he is always at me to help him out," she says.

Mrs. Attersley is recovering from a year-long illness and hopes to be well recuperated to take an active part in her husband's campaign. She plans to attend the forums with him and they both take pleasure in attending local gatherings.

It's a three-way simulcast

At 8 p.m. Monday, newscoverage of Oshawa's municipal election moves into high gear with a simultaneous broadcast over Cablecast 8 and CKLB, 1350.

The election program, to be broadcast mainly from the city hall council chambers is a joint venture of Oshawa Cable TV, Radio CKLB, Durham College of Applied Arts and Technology and This Week

William McCarthy, instructor in radio and tv communications at Durham College, is producer-director. McCarthy has a background of experience with the CBC, CTV and private radio stations.

CKLB's coverage will begin as soon as the polls close at 7 p.m., according to news director Ross Gibson. The telecast will start an hour later, when definite trends develop, and it's expected to last until about midnight.

Gibson, along with Peter Brouwer, editor of This Week, are the anchor men for the broadcasts. Students from Durham's Applied Arts Division will also be on the air, both live and on special tapes that have been prepared in advance of and during election day. Also involved in the program are Public and Personnel Administration students, who are handling political research and Design Arts students, who are providing graphic materials for the TV segment of the simulcast.

CKLB's Ross Gibson is one anchorman. His and Editor Brouwer's reports will be carried simultaneously on Channel 8 and CKLB, 1350.

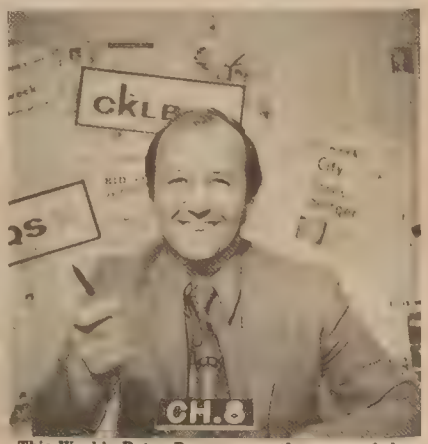
Broadcasts will originate from the council chambers and also the PUC building, where the election computer is located.

Linked in by two-way radio will be Durham's journalism room, where first year students will handle out-of-town results from the Broadcast news wire of Canadian Press, available for this occasion through the tie in with CKLB.

Regular breaking news will be handled by CKLB's newsroom, which will break into the simulcast during video portions broadcast from Election Central.

The College's Applied Arts Division is responsible for all creative aspects of the program as well as overall production and direction. Technical know-how and advice will be provided, as usual in College productions, by the Technology Division, two of whose students are employed at Cable TV.

Facilities for broadcast are provided by Oshawa Cable TV and CKLB, although some College equipment is involved.



The ready co-operation of CKLB, Oshawa Cable TV, and This Week with Durham College sets an example of media-educational relationships which hopefully will be copied elsewhere.

DETAINED

Oshawa lawyer David L. Bowman wanted by Oshawa police on over 25 charges of fraud was arrested Sunday in San Francisco. He was being detained by San Francisco police on charges of illegal entry into the United States and non-bona-fide visitor status.

DISPLAY

A display of paintings and sculptures by 50 local artists will be held at the Whitby Mall Dec. 10, 11, 12 and 13.

This Week's Peter Brouwer, on the scene of the Election '70 cable-cast from Oshawa City Hall, Monday evening.

Council rejects parking garage in last policy meeting

For perhaps the last time this year, the 1969-70 Oshawa City Council was free to make policy decisions, Monday.

When council next meets as a unit, it will do so in the shadow of its successor. Following the civic election next Monday, the old council will mainly attend to housekeeping to keep the municipal administration going until the new council can take over.

The council members evidently were well aware of the upcoming election and the loss of their power

After hearing an elaborate and thorough presentation, — complete with slides, drawings and diagrams — of the possible sites for a parking garage and the reasons for proposing that the first one be built on the Althol Street West parking lot, Council emphatically rejected the construction of the parking structure at this time.

The parking structures had been proposed as early as 1965. The 1967-68 council had proceeded with the functional design of a combined parking garage and bus terminal for King Street West at Church, and had even had an expensive model built before the project was tabled. The present council, at budget time this year, set aside monies to purchase the necessary land for the Athol Street parking garage and the preparation of functional plans and designs of the building. As a result the traffic committee and staff spent many hours discussing the various sites, styles of buildings, and alternative ways of undertaking the project.

Monday, however, council as a whole decided the construction of a parking garage in the downtown as recommended by Alderman Alice Reardon is premature.

Bait?

Alderman Edward McNeely suggested that a parking structure should be used as "bait" by the municipality to attract new commercial development to the downtown. Parking should be built in conjunction with private projects, the mayoralty hopeful says, with the inducement of linking the parking directly to the new store or office building.

Alderman John Humphreys said that there would be no significant use of the parking facility until new development materializes. The parking should follow, not preceed it. Humphreys commented that there is really nothing to park for now downtown and that parking spaces are readily available at all times. "We'd just be building more concrete," he said.

Alderman Allan Pilkey suggested that there is a great deal of public support for levying an area benefit assessment on the business which will benefit from the parking structure although Alderman Ross Gibson reported the downtown merchants had rejected that proposal out-of-hand.

From preliminary studies, the traffic staff had estimated that a demountable type of parking structure — one that can be taken apart and moved to another site — at the Athol Street lot could be constructed for $835,600, including land. Already $370,000 has been set aside for this purpose in the off-street parking reserve fund, leaving $465,000 to be debentured over 15 years at 10 percent. Estimating an income of $97,500 annually, traffic committee secretary Robert Richardson calculates that the net cost of operation would be $17,600.

Positive action

Council did take some positive action, however. It approved the construction of the first stage of a new sanitary sewer which will eventually run from roughly Bloor Street to the downtown core. This will replace the city's original sanitary sewer built in 1904. Council also helped to expediture the construction of new apartments for senior citizens on city-owned land in the Normandy-Dean area.

Expanding on an earlier application to the Ontario Housing Corporation, Council approved a motion by Alderman Jim Potticary to request a minimum of 50 units — and more if an OHC study showed the need. In return, the city agrees to pick up 7½ percent of the operating deficit if there is one and to accept a grant equal to the taxes from the Ontario Government.

Relocate

After a short squabble, council also endorsed a recommendation from the parks, property committee to relocate various departments of city hall.

To accommodate an expanded youth drop-in centre, the social services department will move to the fourth and fifth floors of the Old City Hall.

"Christmas is a'coming and the geese are getting fat. Kindly put a penny in the old man's hat. If you haven't got a penny a ha'penny will do. If you haven't got a ha'penny, God Bless You . . ." an old nursery rhyme out of the limbo of the past

"Christmas isn't like it used to be," you say

Well, why isn't it? It's always been a time for giving and sharing. That hasn't changed and this year, in Oshawa, there's more opportunity for giving and sharing.

"Oh, well," I hear you hedge, "it's not the same now that the family is grown up."

Your family, maybe, but there are other families, other children. How long is it since you ran up a pair of flannelette pyjamas on the sewing machine, after the kids were in bed, or made a party dress out of a yard and half of red velveteen, or knitted mitts to gladden a child's day?

D'you remember the happiness you knew in doing those things? You can capture that inward glow again.

The supply of used clothing at Simcoe Hall is getting uncomfortably low. Over 2000 individuals have been helped this year already and winter is only beginning. For boys and girls, aged four to 12, there is a need for pyjamas, underwear, school clothes, mitts, caps, overshoes and snowsuits. Baby garments are in short supply and there is a lack of blankets and sheets.

There are mothers of fatherless families and unmarried mothers who come to the Welfare Building on Short Celina Street for help. Whatever you are discarding, be it clothing, furniture or appliances, call Simcoe Hall first. Somebody needs it.

Be a Christmas angel and volunteer to assist in the distribution of the Christmas Cheer fund.

The junior anf teen-age girls in their craft classes are eagerly making decorations and gifts from all sorts of odds and ends. They make Christmas wreaths from IBM cards; angels from Reader's Digest magazines and Christmas bells from foam egg-cartons.

Every scrap "doth suffer a sea-change, into something rich and strange."

It wouldn't take long to fill a carton with what-have-you from this list: Beads, costume jewelry (even broken), sequins, tissue paper, contact paper, small juice cans, 48-oz. juice cans, corks, oil paints, twine, scraps of felt, wool and leather, burlap, ribbon, magazines, bottles, tiles, cottage cheese containers, baby food jars, buttons, plastic and cardboard tubes.

Christmas is what you make it. It's up to you.

So is the administration of our civic affairs for the next two years. No matter how busy you are next Monday, take time to vote.

Name game, and no vest

There are so many names on the election ballot this year that the voters are sure to be confused. However, Mayoralty candidate Alderman Edward McNeely, is afraid he could be the victim of a special brand of confusion.

Apparently people are confusing him with Alderman Russell McNeil, a General Motors retiree who is not seeking reelection to any post.

McNeely is a 42-year-old lawyer and was city soliciter for Oshawa for 11 years. He doesn't look at all like Mr. McNeil.

McNeely — that's with two ees and a y at the end — doesn't have a red vest like Mr. McNeil.

One industry shows up when pollution probed

Only one Oshawa industry — GM — showed up at a meeting Monday at which pollution — and what the people of Oshawa can do about it — was discussed by experts.

While a large number of Oshawa industries had been asked to send representatives, all except GM declined the invitation.

The special pollution probing meeting had been called by the Oshawa Naturalists Club.

One of the slogans of today's pollution and ecological revolution is to refer to the earth as a spaceship with limited carrying capacity.

The meeting, Monday, was told this and many other startling pieces of information by conservation specialists, a member of Pollution Probe and other experts.

The meeting was devoted to hearing the opinions of experts in the field of conservation and pollution and the main topic of discussion was what an Oshawa citizen can do to promote conservation and bring a halt to pollution.

Miss Brenda Goldberg, a conservation assistant with the Federation of Ontario Naturalists told the audience that unless something is done to curb the massive attack of pollution and overpopulation, the frightening prediction of an end to the earth may become a reality even though she termed it "hard to believe".

Paul Tomlinson from the University of Toronto's Pollution Probe told the audience it took a personal commitment from someone to do something about pollution. He has refused to use pesticides, buy a car, or use an electric razor or knife sharpener.

"At the rate we are going we will have to double our present capacity for hydro production and therefore double the amount of pollution that comes from hydro plants," says Mr. Tomlinson.

He said that Canadians have a higher per capita consumption of hydro than Americans and he thinks the highest per capita consumption of any country in the world.

Speaking on behalf of conservation preservation was E.J. Tozar, administrator of land management, Central Lake Ontario Conservation Authority. He said the public should be made well-aware of natural resources and products and then would learn to preserve them.

He said the Conservation Authority operates at a cost of three cents per citizen per week. With this money the authority acquires approximately 100 acres of land per year and turns it into recreational or conservation area for educational purposes.

"If we could get the government to double this amount we might be able to buy the resources to clean up the lakeshore on Lake Ontario instead of having 'no trespassing' signs on the property," said Mr. Tozar.

Steve Russell, representing the Oshawa Fish and Wildlife Committee showed slides of the Oshawa and Warren Creeks and the various effects pollutants such as oil and human waste had on wildlife and fish.

A. W. Scott, of the General Motors pollution control department told the audience General Motors corporation spends $110 million annually on research alone towards better control in automobile pollution emission.

"I think this is a significant reduction "

Chronicles of Osh

1. And the day of judgement for the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy was drawing nigh in the land of Osh, and elders of Osh were girding their loins and were making for those things with which they would find favor in the eyes of the people of the land of Osh.

2. And they gathered muchly, though not all in one accord, in the marketplaces and the tents of the land where the people of Osh congregated, to make known unto the people where they stood and why.

3. And behold, Charles the Physician, and the Elder Murdo and Norman the tiller of the soil, and the elder Fin and the elder Russ were not among the elders who were presenting themselves unto the people to be judged, for they had thrown in the cloth. And for the people of Osh the loss of the physician, and Murdo and Norman was a loss that was great.

4. Now from among the people of the land of Osh there had arisen many others of the wise and unwise men and women who presented themselves unto the people to be judged, some for the first time, some for a second and third.

5. And while the Elder Neely, who was considered a wise elder, yea even by the Tymes of Osh, was seeking the people's favor in that he was presenting himself as the new chief ruler, the Elder Attersl also was seeking the people's favor. And it was said in the land of Osh that the elder Attersly had among the Oshites many friends and that he belonged to everything that was Osh, so to speak. Now also seeking the favor of the people and the throne of Osh were Michael who taught and Anthony D'-Inspector. And Michael had been the first to tell the people of Osh of his wish to sit upon the throne of Osh, and he spoke with eloquence and assurance that bordered on the unbelievable. And Tony spoke to the people saying, behold, I have gathered with the wise men of oapads, and I am wise to this thing.

6. Now there were many who spoke saying behold, the people's favor will be divided greatly between the elder Neely and the elder Attersl, but the Chronicler of Osh saw Michael who taught as a horse of a dark color.

7. And seeking to sit on the bench with the two women of Osh, Margie and Chris, there were Rossgib, and John of the hearts, and a man who bore the first name of a reformer and Graham the manufacturer. Now John of the hearts had been seeking the throne of Osh in years gone by but this time he would be satisfied with a seat on the bench. And Rossgib was seen by many as a man who did not mince words and who could be counted upon to keep the women on the bench from deliberating in overabundance when underabundance would suffice. And Graham who had made things in the land of Osh was said to be the favorite of many except those who worshipped in the hall of union in the land of Osh. And Calvin did not speak as did his namesake in an earlier century.

8. And for the seats of the "Strong case"

Oshawa's jetport brief ready

If the new international airport is not located in the Oshawa-centred region, Oshawa city council warns, the region may not develop to the extent forecast in the Toronto-Centre Region Plan.

The warning comes in Council's brief to Donald Jamieson, the federal minister of Transport in charge of selecting the site for the much sought-after international airport.

The brief, approved by council Monday evening was prompted by Ald. Ross Gibson, and follows a telegram to Jamieson requesting that the airport be sited east of Metropolitan Toronto in the "newly-emerging" Oshawa-centred Region. The brief will be forwarded to the Transport minister by the usual process — the Canadian Postal System — although Council had originally intended to send Mayor Bruce Mackey and Alderman Gibson to Ottawa personally with the brief.

The brief notes that the city understands through unofficial sources the department of transport has narrowed the location of the new airport to four possible sites — one in the Oshawa Centred Relion.

"We believe that recent planning developments initiated by the Ontario provincial Government have helped to formulate a very strong case for the location of the new airport in our area," says the brief.

The May 5, 1970 document "Design for Development: The Toronto — Centred Region" has indicated a population boom in the area east of Metro, to alleviate the strain on Toronto's seams and to counterbalance the more extensive development in the western end of the Golden Horseshoe. To stimulate the desired growth, the provincial government has stated that it will establish policies which will stimulate growth in the eastern section.

The new international airport will have a tremendous impact on the growth of the area in which it is located.

Design for Development recognizes this and comments: "The integrity of the development concept requires that a site be chosen which does not add such a powerful magnet for development in a location which conflicts with the strategic components of the plan." The brief also notes that the board of directors of the Central Ontario Regional Development Council, in reviewing Design for Development concluded: "The proposal makes clear the need for consideration of the new airport location, without knowing where it will be located. The Board suggests and recognizes that in the event that a new airport is located in the region in conflict with the principles of the proposal, it will not be possible to retain the concept."

The Oshawa Area Planning and Development Study, Council tells Jamieson, is attempting to design a workable region which will fulfill the aspirations of the Toronto-Centred Region plan with respect to this area. This means creating 200,000 more jobs for the area in the next 30 years. Prime Minister John Robarts notes that an airport will bring with it in excess of 120,000 people with public and private investment in excess of $3 billion.

Planners the world over are watching to see if the Ontario Government's ambitious determination to change historical growth patterns.

"We are firmly convinced the Ontario Government could not do otherwise, in their submission to the Federal Government, than to recommend that the new international airport be located east of Toronto," says the brief. "We are of the opinion that the Federal Government, through your Department, will cooperate to the fullest possible extent with the planning objectives of the province of Ontario in situating the new airport facility."

Two young Oshawa musicians, Jeannette Taves and Stephen Powell, who are furthering their studies at the University of Western Ontario will be taking part in a concert by the UWO Faculty of Music Singers to be held in First Baptist Church, Oshawa, December 9 — next Wednesday.

The 40-voice choir will be conducted by Professor D.J. Johnson, associate professor of Choral Music and Voice at "Western". The program which starts at 8.15 p.m. will also feature the UWO Brass Ensemble.

Jeannette is in her third year at UWO, taking the honors course in Organ Performance and Church Music with an additional major in Piano Performance. She will be heard in recital at McLaughlin Public Library on Friday evening, December 4.

When she was eight years of age she heard the organ in Leamington Baptist Church and announced afterward, "When I grow up, I'm going to be a church organist."

Miss Taves

Six years later she played for services in the summer at First Baptist, Oshawa. Since then she has supplied at the organ for several summers, also at Centennial United Church and for the past two summers at All Saints' Anglican Church, Whitby, as well as at First Baptist.

Daughter of Mrs. D. Taves and the late Reverend David Taves, Jeannette attended Donevan Collegiate and played violin in the collegiate orchestra. During the time she was in the orchestra they played at Expo '67 and visited Sackville N.B. where they gave a concert at Mount Allison University.

She sang in the choir at Conant Public School and also played the piano accompaniment when necessary.

She studied piano under Mrs. L. W. Parrott from 1961 to 1968 until she went to university, passing the Grade 10 Conservatory examination with 1st class honors in 1968.

Jeannette has competed in music festivals in Peterborough and Ajax, winning several awards including the Jeannette Scott Scholarship and the Oshawa Beta Sigma Phi Scholarship.

As a student teacher she taught piano for two years at Simcoe Hall and gave private lessons at home to a few pupils.

Stephen Powell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril A. Powell of Oshawa. Stephen is in his second year of the Honors Music Education Course in UWO Faculty of Music. His major instrument is the organ and he is studying under Professor John McIntosh.

Powell

Stephen attended O'Neill Collegiate and played French horn in the collegiate band. He studied piano under Mrs. Kerr and organ under Alan Reesor.

He joined the boys' choir at St. George's Memorial Church at the age of 10, graduated to the senior choir and continued to sing with them until he left for "Western".

There will be no admission charge to the concert, but a collection will be taken

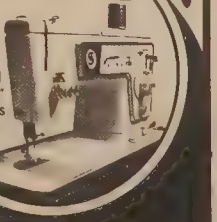
elders of Osh there were many who sought favor in the eyes of the people of the land of Osh. And Blondjohn was one of the few elders of Osh who had said unto the people, behold I will give it another whirl. And the people of the land of Osh were expected to whirl him into the council of the elders. And Pilkal had also spoken out, saying, behold I will. And there were many who said he would, but some there were who said he wouldn't.

9. And the two women of Osh who had been elders, offered themselves once more unto the people, as they were Ruth who spoke seldomly, and Alice who parked a garage.

10. And from the halls of learning in the land of Osh there had come forth another woman of Osh, whose name was the last upon the slip of paper on which the Oshites would express their wishes of judgement, and her name was Helen. And behold her light shone brightly.

11. And many more there were, yea, even nine of the men of Osh were seeking the people's favor on the peeyousee.



12. And also there were many men and women who spoke unto the people saying, behold your tents of learning and your children and your children's children. And these Oshites were not bored with ed.

13. But among the people of the land there was much confusion as to who was who and wherewithall they would make a choice.

4. And the week of Osh presented into the people its pick, and some there were who gnashed their teeth while others spoke saying, behold some of these men and women are weak.

15. And the Chronicler of Osh found much confusion among the people and in his own soul, and he spoke saying, let the people of the land of Osh turn out in great numbers on the day of judgement to bring unto the land of Osh a new chief ruler, and two new men to sit with the girls and new elders and a peeyousee and men and women to guide those who guide the children of the land of Osh.

It's overtime from here for Generals Reigle

By Jim Bishop

One of these days the Generals are going to put all their eggs in one basket and scare some teams out of the league. The club just cannot put together 60 minutes of hockey without making a few costly mistakes that mean the difference between winning and losing.

On Sunday, at the Civic Auditorium, the Gens played as well as they have all season. The only problem was that this excellent play lasted but slightly more than 40 minutes. Down 2-1 going into the third period the club hit for two quick goals but a couple of sloppy mistakes later they were behind the old 8-ball again. The big, fast Peterborough Petes hit for four unanswered goals in the latter part of the frame and the Gens bit the dust for a 6-3 loss.

Six different players shared the scoring for the Petes with the single tallies going to Jim Mahon, Rick Cunningham, Skip Foster, Craig Ramsay, Ken Richardson and John Rutherford. Tom Simpson continued his torrid scoring pace for the Generals as he notched goals number 15 and 16. Gary Mahon, who played a strong checking game, both fore and back, counted the other goal for the homesters.

Last night's result in the game with Kitchener Rangers was not available at press time but a win in this one could count a long way in getting the Gens off on a winning streak. They journey to Kitchener Friday night for a return match against these same Rangers and then return home on Sunday for a battle against the Niagara Falls Flyers.

We are still convinced that the Generals have enough horses to beat a lot of teams in this league but Ed Reigle is going to have to work overtime to get them to work as a unit and maintain a concerted effort throughout the whole of a hockey game.

FORUMS

The Kinsmen Club of Oshawa is sponsoring an election forum Thursday at 8 p.m. at the Kinsmen Community Centre. Candidates for mayor and board of control are invited to attend. Candidates for mayor, board of control and council are invited to attend a forum sponsored by the Jaycees tonight in council chambers at 8 p.m.

SHORT GOAL

The Oshawa-Whitby United Appeal is short $100,000 from its $450,000 goal.

Crushmen drop two points

The Oshawa Crushmen played well and received a win and a loss over the weekend but still managed to drop two points further behind the league-leading Peterborough Lions.

On Friday at the Civic Auditorium, the Crushmen scored a big victory over the Belleville team by a score of 6 to 4. The home team receive scoring from places that have not been producing well this season and this may be a sign of good things to come. Len McAvoy and Chris Bone each scored their first goal of the season to go along with other singles by Scott Willson, Eric Howard, Al Bathe and Luc Charbonneau. John Mulvihill, Cliff Janistch, Brian O'Coin and Doug James replied for the losers.

The Crushmen were never headed in the game as they grabbed off a 2-0 first period lead. The club got great performances from a number of players including Paul Britton and Chris Bone.

On Sunday the Crushmen travelled to Peterborough to pay a visit to the Lions and while the Generals were losing 6-3 to the Peterborough Petes in Jr. A. play, the Crushmen were losing to the Peterborough Jr. B. squad 9 to 4. For the winning Lions, Darcy Smith and Doug Murray scored two goals each with singles going to Randy Spencer, Rick Nobes, Gord Rodin, John Paterson and Rick Kemp. The big shooter in the League, Steve West of the Crushmen got back in the groove as he figured in all the Crushmen scoring with two goals and two assists. West now tops the league and of course is the leader on the Oshawa club with 13 goals and 20 assists for 33 points. Larry Hopkins has 13 and 2 for a total of 15 points and Luc Charbonneau has 5 and 9 for 14 points.

The action for the Crushmen shifts to Trenton on Friday as they go to battle the Golden Hawks. They then return to the Civic Auditorium on Saturday at 7:15 p.m. when they entertain the Cobourg Cougars. Saturday's game will see the executive of the Crushmen handing out Montreal Canadian crests.

The crest giveaway program has been very successful for the team as they have substantially increased their attendance figures over the last three weeks. Better than 600 fans took in the Belleville game last Friday and this should increase on Saturday for the Crushmen game against their arch-rivals, the Cobour Cougars.

PELESHOK
FOR MAYOR

PELESHOK TONY X

Keeping a new car new is more than just a Saturday wash job.

Some people are under the impression that keeping a car clean is the best way to keep it looking new and rust free.

Nothing could be further from the truth.

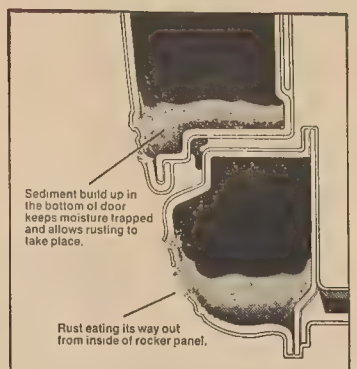
There is only one way to make sure your new car is protected from corrosion and rust. And that's with Ziebart Auto•Truck Rustproofing.

Ziebart has been in the rustproofing business since 1953. And although we've inspired imitators, we know that we're the only ones who can keep our promise to protect your entire car from rust.

How rust begins.

In order to appreciate the Ziebart process, there are a few misconceptions about rust that must be cleared up.

1. All rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. These are two things impossible to avoid.



2. The most dangerous rust starts on the inside of your car, in hidden seams, crevices and hollow areas.

3. Most people believe that salt is the major cause of rust. This is not so. Salt will not cause rust by itself, but it accelerates rust and will quicken the damage.

4. Keeping a car in a heated garage during the winter causes the car to rust even faster. This is because the ice that would normally remain frozen outside melts and the water seeps down into critical hollow areas.

Washing your new car has the same seeping effect.

Since rust starts from the inside of your car, it follows that in order to prevent rust, you must protect every critical hollow area with a chemical barrier that stops the moisture from getting to the metal. It's this exclusive chemical barrier that makes Ziebart the finest rustproofing anywhere.

The most dangerous rust begins in the hidden, boxed in areas of your car. This diagram shows cross section of a door and rocker panel being attacked by rust.

How Ziebart does it.

Rather than to spray just the bottom of your car, or to protect the areas easiest to get at, Ziebart coats every critical area of your car with our special rustproofing sealant that will not crack or peel.

This is done with long nozzles that force the compound into every crack and seam by hydrostatic pressure.

In order to get at every critical area, Ziebart first drills small holes at strategic but inconspicuous spots around the car. Then the long pressure nozzles are inserted into the holes to spray every crack and seam.

The Ziebart sealant is a special patented formula developed by us. It is chemically adhesive to metal, liquid enough to seep into the seams and crevices, remains pliable for permanent protection, is an insulator, will withstand dirt, water and salt and will never harm plastic, rubber, glass, paint or upholstery.

Ziebart keeps abreast of the new styling changes in every model, every year. We do this so we'll know exactly where to protect on each car and so that we'll be able to effectively service every type and model of car, no matter what the make.

All this care and concern with the quality of the rustproofing job we do makes it possible for Ziebart to guarantee that your car will not rust through for 10 years, no matter how many miles you put on it, if you have it Ziebarted before it is driven 3,000 miles.

What Ziebarting can mean.

The benefits of the Ziebart process are not only cosmetic.

As well as giving you the opportunity to drive a new looking car for a lot longer than you thought you could, Ziebart can make your car safer.

Although you can't see it, rust on a three- or four-year-old car has already begun to eat away at vital mechanical parts. A three-year-old hydraulic braking system can fail when weakened by rust.

Many men give the car to their wives when it's three or four years old. If the car has not been rustproofed, it could very well be a deathtrap because of the rust that's been accumulating since it was bought.

Another thought to consider is trade-in value. A car that has been Ziebarted and is in mint body condition can mean quite a few more dollars towards that new car four or five years from now.

Give Ziebart a call.

You'll find your nearest Ziebart dealer in the White Pages of your telephone directory. Give him a call to set up an appointment.

The Ziebart process takes a full day or more, admittedly longer than most "rustproofers" because we do the job properly.

Contact him soon.

And then start thinking how you'll explain to your neighbours about that new looking car parked in your driveway.

Three years from now.

Ziebart

The cause for artificial football turf was never more evident than in Saturday's Grey Cup Game at the CNE Stadium. The biggest single game of our sports year had to be played on a field that resembled after five minutes a cross between an artillery battleground and a cow pasture.

Perhaps the cost is prohibitive but the results would have to be worth whatever it costs. It is a shame that the powers that be in the Canadian Football League do not see the need for this kind of field and do something about it.

When you are playing a major league sport you should have major league conditions to play under and nature supplies the Canadian game with so much adverse weather from September on, that any natural field is impossible to keep in good repair.

Perhaps the parks in Winnipeg, Regina Calgary and Edmonton do not need it since they are frozen harder than a banker's heart from October on. But certainly, the four ballparks in the East and in Vancouver with all the rain they receive, should go to the expense of providing the best footing they possibly can. The fans who pay a good buck to see a game, deserve to see the best football the players are capable of playing and it is impossible to have this when the running backs are tripping over great clods of turf.

It was almost a joke when Sonny Wade nearly caused himself a muscle pull by picking up about three square yards of sod and throwing it out of his team's way. The teams in the East are among Canada's richest sporting organisations and it is about time they thought about the fans and made the fields playable.

The Grey Cup itself was not the classic that everyone was expecting. In fact there were moments when it was downright dull. Neither team played the exciting football that we are accustomed to seeing in the national final and it was the team that made the least mistakes in a mistake-filled game that won the Cup.

Once again I lost my two bucks. I just hope that the area sporting types took the advice I gave out last week for free and bet the opposite way. And anyone who did take my advice, I hope you'll remember me should we chance to meet at any of the local watering holes.

Durham gets one win on weekend

Durham College Lords hockey and basketball teams went on their first big road trip of the season along with about 50 spectators and cheerleaders but got only one win out of four despite playing very well.

The weekend series got underway in Ottawa Friday night as the Durham teams met strong opposition from Algonquin College.

In the basketball game the Lords were defeated 120 to 55. The Cats from Ottawa showed their superiority early in the game as they took advantage of several basic mistakes by Durham. Pete Fourney hooped 27 points for the home team while Rick Kilfoyle had 24 and Garry Swan scored 17. For Durham, Ted Harrison scored 18, Bob Burley with 16 and Ron MacLeod with 14 were best for the Oshawa squad.

The hockey game at Barbara Ann Scott Arena was one of the most exciting games of the college season. Durham spotted the opposition two goals in the first period as they outskated and outshot the Algonquin club but could not solve the goaltending of Don Wilson. In the second, it was all Durham as they received an outstanding performance from Bill Barker. The former Crushmen defenseman scored two goals in that period as the Lords went ahead 3-2. The teams traded goals in the third but a fine defensive display by Durham held off the big Ottawa club and the Durham team got their first win of the regular schedule. Chris Stead and Dennis Homeniuk and scored one goal each for Durham to go along with Barker's two. Gary Langford was outstanding in the net for Durham.

Saturday morning the Durham teams moved over to Cornwall for a pair of games against St. Lawrence College. Again, the basketball team played well but made a few too many mistakes

In the hockey game at Cornwall Saturday, the Durham team lost a close one, 2-1. They were the victims of some of the worst refereeing this writer has seen for a long time. Garry Leroux

Sir,

On page 11 of Wednesday's publication you reported a proposal by Mr. Robert Moon, one of the candidates for alderman in the coming municipal elections, with respect to an "International Festival" consolidating, co-ordinating and enlarging the splintered existing folk festivals.

Mr. Moon obviously does not know his subject and through the medium of your newspaper I would like to tell him that far from being splintered the folk festival movement throughout Canada is alive, active and co-ordinated. There are many active Folk Arts Councils in Ontario all affiliated with the Ontario Folk Arts Council which receives a substantial Provincial grant with which to continue its work of helping local Folk Arts Councils and expanding the cultural exchange programme between Councils. Mr. Moon might be interested to know that the Oshawa Folk Arts Council receives a grant from the City of Oshawa, and a member of City Council is an ex officio member of our board of directors. Alderman Alice Reardon has been City's representative for several years and has given us invaluable assistance and encouragement. There are Folk Arts Councils all over Canada affiliated with Provincial Councils, who in turn are affiliated with the Dominion Folk Arts Council.

The Oshawa Folk Arts Council, formerly the Oshawa Folk Festival, has been active in this community for over eleven years and has been very successful in its endeavours. Each July 1st we organize a street parade as well as a day of events in Alexander Park, including ethnic kitchens, dancing, athletics and other activities with the cooperation of the City Recreation and Parks Departments. In addition the ethnic groups participate in a Folk Festival of singing and dancing each year. A week of carol singing was held before last Christmas and it is hoped that the ethnic and church choirs will participate in carol singing this December. This year an Easter Fair was held in the Midtown Mall and a Christmas Fair is being held at the same place tomorrow, Saturday, November 28th.

It would be interesting to know how Mr. Moon would go about organizing a Folk Festival for a week or ten days attracting thousands of visitors to this City. If Mr. Moon is sincerely interested in ethnic culture and folk festivals we would welcome him as a member of the Oshawa Folk Arts Council, but we would point out to him that it is not the function of City Council to promote and organize Folk Festivals, although we know we have its support and interest in our work in this field.

Wm. H. Tredwell,
President,
Oshawa Folk Arts Council.

Mr. & Mrs. Walter Naklicki of 335 Central Park Blvd. S. Oshawa, recently celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary at a banquet and dance held at the Polish National Union of Canada, Branch No.7 hall.

Present at the gala event were their three sons, Roman, Teddy and Henry. Also present were Mr. Naklicki's brother Roman from Manitowadge, northern Ontario with his wife and two sons and approximately 200 friends.

Walter Naklicki and the former Hedwig Siolek were married in Bensheim Germany on the 25th of November 1945, officiated by Reverend Fr. H. Malak. The whole family went to see this church where the couple were married, last summer.

Best wishes were received from his two brother's who are living in California. Congratulatory telegrams were received from J. E. Broadbent M.P. and Mr. & Mrs Clifford Pilkey M.P.P and many other friends and well wishers.

A bouquet of 25 red roses was presented to the couple by their three sons, Mr. & Mrs. Naklicki also received a very beautiful gift from the United Council of the Polish Organization.

This week's choice for mayor... Ed

Having studied all that the four candidates for the position of mayor have had to say hitherto, we find the decision as to which man in our opinion is best qualified to be Oshawa's Number One Man a difficult one. Our decision has not been quite as clear cut as we had anticipated a couple of weeks ago.

We've taken a careful look not just at what the candidates have been saying these last couple of weeks. An election speech is all too often nothing but just another election speech. We've carefully considered the records of service of each of the four candidates. We've made our choice. We hope that for the good of Oshawa the majority of the 28,000 Oshawa households reading this paper will agree with us.

All four candidates have some of the qualities which in our opinion are needed to be mayor.

However, on balance, we must give our endorsement to candidate Ed McNeely, whose brand of past experience must weigh heavily in his favor.

In addition, Ed McNeely, as far as we are concerned, is his own man. The mayor of Oshawa, in the next two years and especially if regional government is to come to the area on terms this city can live with, has got to be a decisive leader, able to perform what is necessary, rather than what may be popular. Ed has demonstrated he can do just that.

In this context it is most unfortunate that the city will lose the potential services of three of the candidates for mayor, as between them they would be able to give sterling service in other elected posts.

and these for Board of Control

It is undeniably regrettable that the present lame duck city council has not seen fit to hold a referendum as to the desirability of abolishing Board of Control.

However, in its wisdom, council didn't and there's no use in crying over it now. Queen's Park has dictated that Oshawa shall have a Board of Control, and we've taken it lying down.

Accordingly, what can we expect from Board of Control in the next two years? A whole lot more of the same, or dare we hope the Board will no longer procrastinate about trifles and will do the job we, the electorate, are appointing it to do.

With the choice of candidates — six for four seats — the law of averages dictates we are going to be lumbered with at least some of the incumbents. But perhaps with an injection of new blood in the form of A. G. Coulter and more important, with the down-to-earth aggressiveness of Alderman Ross Gibson, we will have in these two candidates at least a two-some that should balance out the negative attitude found on

This maybe-mayor's wife takes over at 2 a.m.

Mayoralty candidate Breaugh's family completes the final in a series of four features on the mayoralty candidates and their families.

When her husband first decided to run for mayor Andrea Breaugh thought she would be the official hostess for his campaign workers. What she didn't bargain for was taking over the secretarial duties after the workers had left at 2 a.m.

"I thought I would be bringing coffee to the workers at first but now I have really become interested in the organization and have ended up answering phones, typing press releases and general office duties," says Mrs. Breaugh.

She often finds herself working till early in the morning after having put in a day of supply teaching.

Mrs. Breaugh doesn't think having her husband as mayor would be much of a disruptive influence on the family. "As a school principal Mike has always been involved with night meetings, or else he has been taking courses. So we are quite used to him being away from home."

With her young family, Erin 5 and Sean 6, Mrs. Breaugh says she hasn't had time to become a member of any city groups but hopes to become a member of different committees in the future.

"So far my interests have been with my family, my teaching and neighbourhood activities," she says.

Mrs. Breaugh finds this a very exciting time and is accompanying her husband to all the speaking engagements. She finds it very hectic working during the day and campaigning during the night and says she now realizes why her husband will give up his job if elected.

If her husband is elected Mrs. Breaugh will have to give up her plans

STRAIGHT TALK FROM A DYNAMIC LEADER

"A Leader NOT A POLITICIAN"

-the man for Oshawa Now-

REGIONAL GOVERNMENT

The role of this city in a regional form of government depends entirely on its ability to develop itself. No amount of political manoeuvering can deny the strength of reality. We cannot lead a region in our present condition because we are not utilising our strengths. We need visible proof that we know how to develop ourselves before we can expect others to accept our leadership. Unquestionably, we have the potential. We have enough plans to develop ten cities. What we don't have is the power of reality. Most of our development to date is on paper. When it is alive and growing in our city, there will be no question of our role in this region. We will be the leading municipality by means of reality or not at all. We need a city that does fulfill itself and has left its dreams and bickering to build from within. This is truly an era for leaders, not politicians.

URBAN RENEWAL

Obviously, we now have a stalemate on this issue and all sides are waiting for a move from someone else. Let's sort out our responsibilities and begin our task. The city is responsible for streets and services. Let's face up to it and re-route our traffic arteries as proposed in the Murray—Jones Scheme. Let's set an atmosphere which will allow private capital to give us high-density units to supply the people who will live and shop downtown. Let's put the onus of commercial building and improvement on the people who will profit by it. Let's turn the development of parkland along the creek over to the Central Lake Ontario Conservation Authority and pay our share when it becomes reality. It may be twenty-five years before we see a plastic dome over King and Simcoe Streets but meanwhile let's not sit over the corpse and wait for the other guy to drag it away.

PRIORITY OF NEEDS

More than anything else this city needs new and diversified industrial growth. We need facilities, services and land that is ready and suitable for modern industry. A strong industrial base is the backbone of any city. It pays for the things we need. It gives us jobs, keeping us off the welfare rolls. It allows us to pay for the parks and special services that we need. Welfare should be for those not able to work, not those unable to find work. A park is a nice place to go on your day off. It is not a pleasant prospect if you have nothing more to do for the rest of your life. A booming downtown area is great for those who can afford it and depressing for those who can't.

CITY ADMINISTRATION

The administration of any city or department or organization can be as perplexing and difficult as you care to make it. Despite what politicians proclaim, it can also be as simple and effective as its leadership. Administration, to be effective, is a simple procedure. You give good people a task, clarify their terms of reference, and let them do the job. Our own civic administration is a rather awkward model of an over-organized, inward-reaching bureaucracy, fed by its own red tape and so occupied in constant struggle to control its inner workings that it has little time left to fulfill its original purpose — to serve the community.

WE NEED...

1 A STRONG LEADER-FULL TIME

2 A DECISION MAKING COUNCIL

3 AN ADMINISTRATION THAT REPRESENTS AND SERVES ALL OF US

4 WE NEED TO RESTORE THE POWER OF THE ELECTORATE IN CITY HALL

5 A NEW STYLE OF MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT

occasion in some of the incumbents.

Our first choice for Board of Control is inevitably Mr. Gibson. In his two years on council he has demonstrated his ability to cut through the muddled rhetoric which we have come to expect to hear at many meetings of council. Gibson has shown he can take a project, explore its ramifications and follow it through to the very end. His efforts as Oshawa's representative on the Central Ontario Development Council are a shining example of thoughtful service to this city.

To Mrs. Thomas we would respectfully suggest that the ability to add up a row of figures does not make one an expert accountant capable of managing the city finances, except perhaps in one's own mind.

To Margaret we say, sock it to "our enemies" as you did a few weeks ago in regional discussions, and you're earning your keep. But, Margaret, don't fight within the family of council — it's not ladylike.

for council . . . .

A few years ago, Oshawa's weekly "rated" each candidate in the municipal race on such things as "imagination", "drive", "foresight", "experience" and so on. Some of the ratings proved quite correct. Others were, it has been shown, way off base.

And this election is not a rating game. It's a matter of making seriously and intelligently a choice of the people we think would make the best individual members and also, the best balanced team.

We would like to present our pick from the city council slate. See how it compares with yours. The candidates are chosen in order of preference:

JOHN HUMPHREYS — In his two years as alderman he has proven himself as an extremely intelligent decision maker who never beats around the bush.

HELEN WILSON — In interviews and at forums she has proven that she knows what she's talking about. We look for her to make a very positive contribution to council's actions.

KEITH ROSS — He has tremendous drive and a wealth of experience as a planning board member and a hard working pusher for new industry on the industrial commission. He deserves a chance to be a decision-maker rather than an advisor.

MIKE LISKO — We have found him a thoughtful new breed type of teacher who is very much in touch with today's changing world. His proposals for cutting city hall inefficiencies make a great deal of sense.

JOHN McLAUGHLIN — He's firmly on record as a "pay-as-you-go" man. We need his kind, so the imagination of some of our other people will not run rampant in terms of dollars.

ALLAN PILKEY — Despite the fact that Mr. Pilkey really disappointed us last week with his observations about the generation gap between him and the drop-in kids, we feel his diligent efforts during the current two-year term, combined with his youth and the fact that this will help balance the representation on council, warrant yet another term for this alderman.

JIM POTTICARY — This alderman has shown himself somewhat of an idealist with high standards of community excellence. He contributes to city hall deliberations with an awareness of the needs of the common man.

ROBERT MOON — This candidate's background of international experience could stand Oshawa in good stead. Mr. Moon no doubt has a lot to learn about Oshawa politics — he's a newcomer to the city. He brings with him, however, qualities that are difficult to find among some of the "natives." Above all we do like his sense of humor.

RUTH BESTWICK — She never enters into great debates at council meetings but we have found her a very hard behind-the-scenes worker on a number of city hall projects, especially the youth drop-in centre.

DONALD LEE — Mr. Lee has come on strong during the campaign to the point where some have referred to him as a "rebel." He has shown concern for a number of social injustices we must be concerned about. His voice, often one of strong and loud dissent, would make a welcome contribution to council deliberations.

LLOYD PIGDEN — This candidate, in our opinion represents the very opposite of Candidate Lee. Mr. Pigden has been coming on strong during the campaign as a family man, a church man and a service club man. The city will always need "solid citizens" like Pigden.

JOHN PURCELL — We support this candidate because of his background as a businessman and his businesslike approach to political problems. This is not always the best approach, but we feel there will be enough other-than-business candidates to offset Mr. Purcell's Progressive Conservative attitudes.

There it is — our choice.

But remember, I'ts only our choice.

Now it's up to you!

. . . and a word on education

This Week's list for board of education, in order of preference, goes:

STANLEY LOVELL — He's the board's current chairman who has been making his education job and full-time one.

NORMAN EDMONDSON — He's aware of the needs in education and he's the type of businessman who feels taxes have gone up about as high as they should.

STEVEN SAYWELL — Another veteran of school boards, whose experience is important with the County Board still in its formative stages.

TOM THOMAS — He has made his mark as a board member and has done a lot of work behind the scenes.

MARGARET COUCH — She'll bring a fresh approach and youthful, vigorous attitudes.

DOUG WILSON — He wants more parent involvement and the builder and businessman in Mr. Wilson will help keep the costs in line.

LLOYD CLARKE — As long as he is not made the editor of an educational publication we believe Mr. Clarke will be making an excellent contribution. He has during his first term in office.

Our choice for separate school candidates to the Ontario County Board consists of Jim Brady and John Larmond, both capable trustees seeking a second term, and Bill Ward, a school principal whose experience in the classroom would be useful indeed.

This Week's choice for the Ontario County Separate School Board:

HUGH ARMSTRONG — For sharing more facilities with the public board and keeping costs in check.

FRANK BARON — For his 20 years of solid experience.

RON BELTON — More specialty services for the exceptionally bright and the handicapped.

WINONA CLARKE — Another veteran, Mrs. Clarke knows what it's all about, but in many ways shows the fresh approach often associated only with brand new candidates.

ROLAND SANSCHAGRIN — he makes a good balance with the hold-the-line people and the costs-only-conscious.

JOSEPH COREY — For more parent involvement.

JOHN MUHA — A new man to watch the dollars and to bring a fresh new look at things.

Again, don't take our word for it.

Go and vote on Monday. It's your choice.

. . . . something about the PUC

We're looking for Dr. Brian Doherty especially to proceed with some farsighted planning on the Oshawa Public Utilities Commission.

We said a few weeks ago that in our opinion it was time for a change on the PUC. The incumbents have done a good solid job, but especially in view of the developing Oshawa area's impending boom a fresh approach to some of the PUC's problems is in order.

Thus, after Dr. Doherty, our choice for PUC is David G. Brady. He has the technical knowhow and he has shown to possess an insight into many phases of the PUC operation.

Edwin Armstrong, our third choice, has served 18 years on the PUC. Remember what we said earlier this week about not throwing out the baby with the bathwater.

David Brown, another engineer, in our opinion would also make very worthwhile and thought-out contributions to the Commission.

to take university courses to become a full-time librarian.

"I will give up these plans so I will be available to get involved in activities that affect women in the city if Mike is elected."

Mrs. Breaugh says she didn't have to encourage her husband to run but is now behind him 100 per cent. "I support him in every endeavour he attempts and I think he will be the new mayor of Oshawa," she says.

She spends her spare time to phone people asking them to work for her husband, distributing leaflets and doing secretarial work. Her recreation room has been turned into campaign headquarters and the newly installed phone is "ringing all day long."

"It's been very hectic these last few weeks but I know it's going to get even more hectic during the next two weeks."

Con. Margaret Shaw and Calvin Blake were absent. John Dehart was present at the beginning of the meeting but was absent when his turn came to speak and showed up again later in the evening.

Con. Christine Thomas was the first to approach the microphone and she told the audience she was deeply concerned about the rising debenture debt

"We must take a second look at the capital expenditures for the next five years and make a list of priorities," she said

She said the climate in Oshawa must be favorable to new industry. She forecast an optomistic future for Oshawa and outlined all the advantages it had to offer in the way of attractiveness to industry.

"Of course, the government's forgiveable loans have been a handicap to Oshawa," she said.

The next candidate was Graham Coulter who proposed a "hold the line" tax policy. He said the real issue was to get citizen involvement in the governing of the city.

Mr. Coulter, encountered some opposition from the audience during the question period. He was asked why Coulter Mfg. Co. had moved a plant out of Oshawa thus creating unemployment for many workers.

Mr. Coulter explained he was no longer associated with the industry but that during his term as director of the company he had promoted many jobs for Oshawa citizens

Ald. Ross Gibson was the last of the Board of Control candidates to speak. He predicted changes in municipal government were inevitable and that Oshawa would have to prepare for these changes by long term long range scales of planning. "Bold, imaginative and aggressive planning is needed to prepare for the future," said Ald. Gibson.

Ald. John Humphreys left the regular electioneering format Wednesday night and told the audi-

We must look beyond the horizon

Quote from a recent Ross Gibson speech:
"I believe as we enter the next decade, which will explode in the field of technology, social and economic reform, cities not prepared to look beyond the horizon, will be up the proverbial creek."

After two years as one of Oshawa's leading aldermen, Gibson is seeking a seat on the Board of Control " And we are going to make this thing work," he comments.

An 'x' and an 'x' only!

Monday is election day in Oshawa and it's your opportunity to have your say in shaping the future of the city for the next two years.

In the majority of cases, polling booths are located within two or three blocks of the voter's residence and the entire voting procedure is estimated to take less than 20 minutes.

The procedure is quite simple. Upon entering the polling station the voter goes to the polling clerk who checks the name and makes sure it appears on the voting list. The deputy returning officer then gives the voter his ballot, which he has initialed.

Everyone receives the one composite ballot which is to be used for voting for mayor, Public Utilities Commission, Board of Control and aldermen. Another separate ballot is given to each voter for school board trustees (either separate of public) depending on how his property has been assessed.

The voter then enters the polling booth and fills out his ballots. All ballots must be marked with an X and an X only. Those with any other type of markings will be destroyed. A person may abstain from voting for any or all of the candidates.

If a voter has spoiled his ballot he may return it to the deputy returning officer who will place it in a special envelope and then give the voter another ballot. For the first time this year ballots may be marked with a pen. Pencils will be supplied in the polling booths.

Deputy clerk Cec Lundy estimates the entire procedure of marking the ballot will take less than 10 minutes. Once the ballot is marked the voter folds the ballot with the deputy returning officer's initials on the outside and returns it to the DRO. Only the deputy returning officer can put the ballot into the ballot box.

Best time

In previous years the morning and early afternoon were the best time to cast your vote if you wanted to avoid line-ups. Now with General Motors and other industries on strike, Mr. Lundy thinks the polls will be busier during the day.

The polling booths open at 10 a.m. and close at 8 p.m. Mr. Lundy expects the first results to be returned around 9:30 p.m. with the last results staggering in around 3 a.m.

There are close to 48,000 eligible voters in the city. Cards were placed in the mail yesterday to all voters indicating where to vote. There are 172 polling stations throughout the city, an increase of 12 from two years ago.

For the first time computors will be used in tabulating the results.

ence attending the Jaycees forum his impressions of what an alderman is.

First, he said, you have to be your own campaign manager, posting your own election signs and protecting them from being torn down by the city.

"I guess you have to be a bit of a student engineer to read all those maps and devour copious reports," quipped Ald. Humphreys.

You have to be willing to desert your family at least three nights a week, as well as doubling as a diplomat he said.

"A Roman Catholic alderman might find it a bit embarassing to be called upon to represent the city at an Orange Lodge dinner," he said, "but you must be a diplomat at all times."

Often times an alderman is faced with devouring treasury reports far beyond his grasp, and has to be a student accountant to accomplish this.

Often times, Ald. Humphreys said, an alderman will find himself turning pale in the face when he is faced with an angry delegation to council only to discover the person leading the delegation protesting one of your motions is an old school chum.

Humphreys, however, must find some rewards in the job or he wouldn't be seeking re-election.

Special films and videotapes on many facets of this city will be featured on the Cable TV coverage of the 1970 municipal elections.

For some weeks, senior students in the Applied Arts Division's Communication Arts program of Durham college have been roving the city in camera crews, taking candid shots of the city and conducting man-on-the-street interviews.

They will be seen over Cable Channel 8 during the College's election night broadcast, which begins one hour after the polls close at 7 p.m. on Monday, Decmber 7.

Election coverage will be broadcast simultaneously over Oshawa Cable TV facilities and on radio over CKLB (1350). The radio portion of the broadcast begins at 7 p.m., and links up with TV coverage at 8 p.m. The simulcast will continue until about midnight.

Applied Arts students, under producer-director William McCarthy, instructor in Radio/TV Communications, will play key roles in the undertaking. Anchormen will be Ross Gibson, news director of CKLB, and Peter Brouwer, Editor This Week.

"The background, the ability and the determination to be an excellent Mayor of Oshawa."

OSHAWA NEEDS experience in the Mayor's office. Our municipal government today is big business . . . needs a sure and steady hand on the reins. There is no substitute for a wide knowledge of municipal methods.

OSHAWA NEEDS a young and vigorous approach to the many problems ahead of us. Urban renewal, industrial development, administrative reform . . . all need bold new approaches and the leadership of an active Mayor.

OSHAWA NEEDS a Mayor with a positive approach to regional government. We need a strong voice to represent our interests in the days ahead.

ED McNEELY spent twelve full-time years acting as Oshawa's City Solicitor. Since that time he has added Council service. Nobody knows our problems better or will deal with them more effectively.

ED McNEELY, at forty-two years of age, has proved his capabilities in public service, in private law practice and as an elected official. He tackles all his projects with energy and youthful enthusiasm. He will serve us well.

Fourth forum brings flood of promises, questions

More than 200 interested citizens crowded into city council chambers Wednesday night to listen to candidates speak at the Jaycees election forum.

It was the fourth in a series of public forums and was by far the best attended with audience-initiated questions taking up one and a half hours at the end of the speeches.

Mayoralty, Board of Control and aldermanic candidates treated the audience to election promises, past records of accomplishments and a few optomistic forecasts for the future of Oshawa.

First on the list of speakers was Ald. Alice Reardon who offered the audience no election promises. She said that as chairman of the traffic committee she was accused of making some very unpopular decisions during the past two years but assured the audience the decisions were made with the "best interest of the majority of the people at heart".

Aldermanic hopeful Don Lee spoke next and was perhaps the most dynamic of the speakers of the night. He accused council of "piddling around" and not acting quickly on implementing certain bylaws which would, for example, protect citizens against bad housing.

"I am not a politician. I am a concerned active citizen, interested in the plight of the ordinary citizen," said Mr. Lee.

He suggested that the council was stacked with lawyers and persons with real estate interests who "would have something to lose if certain bylaws were enacted".

Ald. Alan Pilkey told the audience of his participation on the city's executive OAPADS committee and the motion he has made not to extend services to other municipalities under regional government unless Oshawa received support from the provincial government.

David O'Flynn, who is seeking his first term on council told the audience that Oshawa as the eastern end of the golden horseshoe was "tarnished with neglect". He was referring to the "lack of industrial interest shown in Oshawa".

"We need fresh new faces on council," says Mr. O'Flynn.

One candidate who has been electioneering for the past four weeks, Genevieve Eyman, says she has been "door-knocking" and the people she has spoken to are not interested in paying for a parking garage when they are several malls offering free parking.

"From my experiences the people feel that regional government will come to pass regardless of what they have to say on the subject," said Mrs. Eyman.

The next candidate to speak, Russ Rak, said the citizen and small businessman were already taxed beyond their capabilities. He said he would like to see civic monies being spent elsewhere than low rental housing, public welfare and education.

Victor Kitchen told the audience he was sensitive to the needs of urban renewal in the downtown area and that plans for the area must continue so the city is prepared when government funds for urban renewal are unfrozen.

Roger Morrison said he would use his experiences as a businessman, employee, employer, tenant and landlord to work to the best interest of Oshawa citizens.

"Council must provide encouragement and leadership and this," said Mr. Morrison, "doesn't cost a cent".

"Oshawa could become one of North America's model communities," said aldermanic hopeful Robert Moon.

He would also like to see a wooden bridge con-

REG. PINDER for P.U.C.

I am running for office primarily because I want to be of service to Oshawa. I have lived here for the past 30 years. I like Oshawa and I think Oshawa has a great future. At this particular time, with regional government so close, the Oshawa P.U.C. needs people with experience. There are going to be some difficult days ahead, and I feel that with experience I have gained in serving on the Commission, I am in a good position to assist in resolving the problems that will arise in these next two crucial years.

I am chairman of the Association of Lakeshore Municipal Hydro and Water Commission and have been very interested in this Association from its beginning and as its chairman, I feel I will be able to make a valuable contribution towards the establishment of a workable utility system under regional government.

Thank you.

About turnouts

In 1958 when Council was elected for the first time to serve a two-year term rather than a one-year term, the lowest percentage voting turnout occurred with only 27 per cent of the eligible voters casting their ballots.

The second lowest turnout occurred last election with only 39 per cent voting. There were only two years when more than half the voters turned out to the polls. In 1952 and 1960, 51 per cent of the eligible voters voted.

In 1967 when a plebiscite was held to vote on the liquor license act in the areas annexed by the city in 1922 and 1951 only 8.5 per cent turned out at the polls. This was the all-time record low for Oshawa citizens.

structed over Oshawa Creek to link the Midtown Mall with the downtown area.

Perhaps one of the most unpopular suggestions of the evening came from hopeful Lloyd Pigden. He said if elected he would make a motion to immediately cut the mayor's salary down to $10,000 annually and reduce all councillors renumerations by 20 per cent.

"We must be prepared to make some sacrifices to avoid bankruptcy," said Mr. Pidgen.

Dennis McAuley said that if more industry were brought into the city, unemployment would go down and taxes would lower because of a larger industrial base.

Peter Magda said he would like to see a stronger attempt made to induce industry into Oshawa thus creating the 200,000 jobs needed "by the turn of the century".

Stockbroker John Purcell said it was time businessmen gained more representation on council. He said previous councils could not deal effectively with the industrial and commercial development of the city because "it is beyond their realm of experience."

One of the most demonstrative speakers of the evening was Keith Ross, a member of the industrial commission who outwardly appeared incensed at accusations that the commission was not doing its utmost to attract industry to the city. "Before people start making promises about improving situations they should be aware of the facts. It is very hard to attract industry to Oshawa in the face of government grants and loans to other areas."

John McLaughlin urged the public to exercise their right and go out to the polls Monday and vote for the most "effective, efficient, capable and co-operative council possible."

Michael Lisko expressed concern over the present structure of council which he said was the reason why "talented men refused to seek re-election." He was in favor of abolishing the standing committees on a trial basis to discover a more effective council.

Jack Vanderkop praised the Oshawa Centre describing it as "private developers initiative" and said he would like to see the same thing done in the downtown area.

Douglas H. Wilson called for tax reform by having the provincial government raise the taxes on province wide industry and distribute the monies to areas needing municipal services, such as Oshawa.

Bruce McArthur told the audience he was not in favor of further expansion of the airport but would favor another location "many miles from Oshawa".

Ald. Jim Potticary called for urban renewal in the area south of Bloor Street and Olive Ave but did not favor urban renewal in the downtown area paid for by the tax-

McNeely gets biggest hand at forum

The four mayoralty candidates appeared at the Jaycees forum Wednesday night to outline their views to the public.

Gordon Attersley, an 18-year veteran on council was the first to speak, assuring the audience he would be a "full-time" mayor if elected.

He said he was relying on his past experiences on council to back him up as a good candidate for the position. He outlined his accomplishments during his years on council and told the audience of his community work and affiliations with the boy scouts and other organizations.

He said he looked forward to the new year when he hoped day care centres for working mothers would be introduced into the city. He has been working on this project for six years.

Referring to regional government Mr. Attersley said "co-operative fence mending" was needed. He would also like to see Oshawa receive government grants to compensate for servicing outlying municipal areas.

In reach

Out to prove that politics is not beyond the reach of the ordinary citizen was candidate Michael Breaugh. He told the audience that it was a fallacy that the ordinary citizen could not comprehend regional government.

"Oshawa is about to become a big league city and will face problems and difficulties that will need a good deal of common sense and work by ordinary citizens," he said.

He called for a responsive and representative council that would listen to the needs of the people and not force them to storm city hall in delegations to be heard.

"I have specific skills and abilities I think the city could use and that match the wants and needs of the city," he said.

payers money.

He said he hoped to see day care centres begun early next year and a swimming pool in the south end of the city.

Ald. Ruth Bestwick was the last apeaker on the aldermanic slate and said she would like to see more housing constructed in Oshawa that would be available to young families who could afford only a low down payment.

Candidates Allan Jones, Ruth Hopps and William Werry did not appear at the forum. Candidates William Tredwell and Helen Wilson arrived too late to speak but answered questions during the question period.

Speaking in his usual calm and relaxed manner, Ald. Ed McNeely received the best response of the night from the audience.

He called for forums to be held between elections to allow citizens to come before council with issues of direct concern to them instead of waiting for teo year intervals.

He said the city needed the kind of mayor who could see "concrete issues" and who would take the opportunities to build Oshawa into the type of city "we wish to live in the future".

"We need a mayor with leadership, knowledge and dedication," said Ald. McNeely.

Questioned on whether he would make the mayor's job a full-time one or not Ald. McNeely said he would devote as much time as was needed to do

Tony Peleshok was the last of the candidates to speak. He said his concern for the city in regional government was self-evident as he had attended more than 50 hours of government bearings over the past few months.

He called for citizen participation and asked people to get involved in civic matters and hoped during the new term more people would turn up at council meetings.

"I look forward to a full house when council resumes," he said.

By James Sabyan

Pity the poor civil servant who lately has been bewildered by the organized confusion in the city hall complex.

Just the other day several burly men were seen dashing up and down the corridors and the elevator in the old tower. They brought with them a strange assortment of gear. One of these men manhandled what looked like a giant salad bowl fit for the jolly green giant. The other one carried a tripod with strange markings on the tripod head, and boxes with words like transmitter stenciled on the side.

Everything magically disappeared up the elevator and ended up on the roof of the building. Four miles away the same happenings took place but this time the elevator was missing and in its place a large scaffold with a pulley was used to lift up the dish and equipment. It was pulled up 60 feet and carefully aimed to be in direct alignment with the dish on the city tower.

The unit is a microwave transmitter and receiver that will carry the pictures from the city hall election night to the main transmitter site located four miles away. Through this complicated apparatus the signal will be beamed to the transmitter and then fired through the system at the speed of light. The voice part of the transmission will be carried by the telephone lines to the same point.

In the council chambers the production crew will be feeding the final signal from four cameras, three on the set and one more well hidden to handle the art work and special announcer. All of this will be controlled from a specially constructed mobile van with monitors for each camera and a communications network that would make the Bell telephone people sit up in envy. In this van sit the producer, script girl and technical director eyeing every move made by the cameras and calling for predetermined scenes.

On the main floor the three camera men will be peering into the picture tubes of the studio cameras moving zoom controls and wiggling tripods. Also on the main floor the floor director will be carrying out the orders from the producer and aiding the direction from this point. With miles of cable dropped on the floor someone is bound to trip or at a critical moment manage to disconnect the audio leads just as one of the anchor men makes a startling announcement. With screams of "No Audio," ringing through the intercom the floor director will dash madly about till the fault is found.

But the loneliest man of the evening will be the switcher at the transmitter four miles away who will listen to his intercom and watch the final signal go out to the thousands of homes. My bet is that he will manage to get caught up on his paper work because the way the special is shaping up he's really going to have nothing to do but watch.

Landslide for Ed

From the time the first election results were announced at 9:09 Monday night Ed McNeely led the mayoralty race and never looked back.

The 43-year old lawyer who has 11 years experience as city solicitor and two years on Council will commence his duties as mayor of Oshawa January 1st 1971 with a council comprised of 50 per cent newcomers.

McNeely led his closest rival Ald. Gordon Attersley by almost 6,000 votes when the polls closed at 5:30 a.m. McNeely polled 56.5 per cent of the total vote while Attersley polled 27.2 per cent.

McNeely said he was not surprised at the results and added he was extremely pleased.

"I am seldom surprised," he said, "but the sizeable lead I took over my nearest opponent was more than I had expected."

As the hour of midnight approached, the mayor elect and his family entered council chambers to the sound of loud applause reassuring him of his victory. He was accompanied by his wife Mary and their five children Brenda 17, Brian 16, Ann and Mary both 14 and Tommy 9.

He attributed his success to a good campaign based on creditability of his past two years in service as an alderman.

Mr. McNeely looks to the future of Oshawa with much anticipation and a

"Mayor" Ed McNeely, Monday night . . . when things were going well for him. He never looked back.

A sore head, a stiff neck and other sores

By Peter Brouwer
editor

Tuesday, 6 a.m. —

My eyes hurt, my seat hurts, my neck's stiff, and I feel as if I've been through the wringer. And now, at 6 a.m., I wonder, really, if it was all worth it.

I'll be going home in a few minutes to have breakfast with the kids. They'll be off to school soon.

For now, peering at my notes, I'd say Oshawa has seen a lot of firsts this week.

To name the major ones:

- A landslide victory for Alderman Ed McNeely, the city's new mayor, come January.
- A big nod of approval for the 1969-70 council, with all six aldermanic incumbents returned to office.
- A vote that seemed as if it had been thoroughly rehearsed by the electorate, throughout the city.
- A loud voice of protest indeed from a number of candidates over pre-election aggressiveness by this newspaper.

Let's take one at a time and run through them quickly:

The victory for McNeely was a resounding one indeed, and one that should give the new mayor plenty of confidence to tackle the job the way he sees fit. The electorate has given him a very complete mandate. As of the first two polls in, McNeely was leading the race, and he never let go. His gains got bigger and bigger.

vigorous interest in city affairs.

As one of the original advocates of the Oshawa-Whitby amalgamation McNeely says he will be striving to maintain Oshawa's position on regional government as it is now before consultant Donald Paterson.

"I haven't heard any of the elected candidates take issue with our position and I will take a firm hand in guiding our brief," said the mayor-elect.

He also expressed concern about the downtown urban renewal scheme and hoped "council's willingness to provide a downtown parking garage" would entice private industry to the core area.

"There is no easy way to accomplish downtown redevelopment but I would like to see money other than tax dollars going into this area."

McNeely has pledged to devote as much time as he deems necessary to fulfil the engrossing task of mayor of Oshawa. He will also continue his law partnership with former Oshawa mayor Ernie Marks.

"The job of mayor will always take priority over my practice," he said.

Attersley

Runner-up in the mayoralty race was 18-year council veteran Gordon Attersley who said a setback had never before stopped him from seeking re-election and he would be in the running again next time.

"I have worked hard and served the public well and I have no regrets about this campaign," he said.

He said all through his campaign he was working with the handicap of having the media favor McNeely.

"I can't understand why the papers asked for candidates and then favor one particular man. I thought I could overcome this but I couldn't," he said.

Early in the night, with less than half the polls reported in, Mr. Attersley predicted the voting would support McNeely.

Breaugh

Michael Breaugh, third place finisher with 9.1 per cent, said he was disappointed in the small number of votes he attracted and said had he more money to run his campaign he would have fared much better.

Last place finisher Tony Peleshok said he would continue to keep an active interest in Oshawa's affairs.

Voters happy with Education

By Carolyn Middleton of Durham College

Oshawa voters — obviously happy with the past performances of their board of education members — returned the majority of them to office for another two-year term on Monday.

Public school supporters returned Stanley Lovell, Ontario County Board of Education chairman, to office with an impressive vote of almost 3,000, letting him top the polls.

In addition, they returned incumbents Stephen Saywell, T. D. Thomas, Norman Edmondson, Mrs. Anne Lee, Lloyd Clarke and Frederick Britten to the county board. There was a close race for the seventh spot.

Separate school supporters returned seven incumbent members to office and two newcomers.

Re-elected were Terrence O'Connor, Winona Clarke, Rev. Roland Sanschagrin, Hugh Armstrong, Frank Baron, Dr. George Sciuk and Michael Rudka. The two newcomers elected were Anthony Meringer and John Muha.

Stanley Lovell, a long-time member of the board, was re-elected, running first in the race with 2811 votes. He feels that there is a need to evaluate the existing educational programs. A new approach to education through the use of television and electronic aids. Mr. Lovell added that expansion must come from economizing the present budget. Mr. Lovell feels that the public should be interested in the election of trustees to the board of education because the county board is spending some $35-million of the public's money.

Hugh Armstrong, who was re-elected, coming fourth with about 800 votes, said that "It's a matter of the provincial government giving us the rights to equal grants for separate schools from grades kindergarten to grade 13."

Mr. Armstrong said "It would be impossible to implement the Hall-Dennis Report if you did not have continuous education from kindergarten to grade 13. We should have equal amounts of money given to us by the Government per student.

He also feels that the schools should be open 24 hours a day. During non-school hours, roller skating, night school, weddings, card parties and all types of small community affairs could be carried on.

STRIKE MEET

The wives and children of GM strikers will be attending an "introduction to unionism" meeting tonight at 7 p.m. The strike committee of Local 222 has organized the meeting and guest speaker will be George Burt, retired director of the union.

On this page are the candidates and their total vote. An X behind candidate's name indicates he or she has been elected to office. Totals are the "unofficial" ones as of early Tuesday.

Alderman Ed McNeely (left) on Monday night's election telecast set with Peter Brouwer of This Week and Ross Gibson of CKLB radio.

It was a cliffhanger for some, until 4 a.m.

It wasn't til 4 a.m. that the last position was decided in the Monday's civic elections and only then did the people begin to straggle out of council chambers.

More than 200 spectators and candidates crowded into council chambers to watch the televising of the election and the minute by minute posting of the election results.

From the very beginning the polls indicated the mayoralty race was decided in favor of McNeely. He polled 56.5 per cent of the votes. All four candidates appeared at the Council chambers to say a few words to the public and thank their supporters.

One of the closest races of the evening took place in the Board of Control division with Graham Coulter and John DeHart running neck and neck for some time for the fourth seat. Con. Margaret Shaw placed first, with Ald. Gibson second, Con. Christine Thomas third and Graham Coulter fourth.

Blast from John

John DeHart, who finished fifth, blasted the press for its "biased coverage and support of certain candidates". Calvin Blake, last place finisher in the race did not appear throughout the evening.

Con. Margaret Shaw, who says she spent only $60 on her entire campaign, polled more votes than any other candidate in the election.

"I wanted to prove to myself and others that I could win without a lot of advertising and stand on my past record of accomplishments," she said.

The youngest aldermanic candidate, 25-year-old Alan Pilkey led the polls until the last minute and was then overtaken by Ald. Jim Potticary. Both candidates polled 7.1 per cent of the votes but Potticary led by 94 votes.

Pilkey expressed surprise at leading the polls and admitted had he more time to spare from his job he would have attempted a Board of Control seat.

His father, Oshawa MPP Cliff Pilkey (NDP-Oshawa-Whitby) accompanied Alan and provided moral support throughout the evening.

The six incumbent aldermen, Bestwick, Humphreys, Pilkey, Potticary, Reardon and Werry were all re-elected.

Six new faces will join council as of January. They will be Aldermen Lisko, Magda, Pigden, McLaughlin, Moon and Ross.

Peter Magda and Helen Wilson fought a nightlong battle for the 12th spot. The two candidates switched running positions many times throughout the race with Magda finally holding down the final seat.

Big break

Robert Moon, a Durham College professor, was considered a longshot from the beginning of the race but managed to clinch eleventh spot.

"I think my big break occured when I equipped 1000 Durham College kids with signs for their cars", quipped the new alderman.

Few of the aldermanic candidates appeared at council chambers, many preferring to wait out the results at home next to their television or radio.

Whitby Mayor Des Newman was on the scene Monday night and although he said he was not "sizing up the opposition" he did admit he was interested in who would lead Oshawa for the next two years in regional government.

INCUMBENTS

On the aldermanic slate, all six candidates returned to office very comfortably — a sign that those who did turn out to vote were not too unhappy with the performance of the 1969-70 council.

Also, from the very start, the trend that developed after a dozen polls were in, continued throughout the evening, with very few and minor changes. For most of the evening, Allan Pilkey led the polls for alderman, but in the end Jim Potticary carried the biggest total.

There were really no cases of a candidate faring extremely well in one poll, and losing terribly in another. The whole situation was one of even-ness.

PROTEST

As for the voices of protest (see also editorial) they came through loudly during the evening, as John DeHart, board of control candidate, Gord Attersley, mayoralty candidate, and a number of other losers protested in strong terms the way in which This Week had promoted enthusiasm in the election.

Mr. DeHart called the paper's editor a "dictator" and Candidate Ruth Hopps made a special trip to the city hall Cable TV and radio desk to tear up a copy of This Week in several small pieces.

It's now 6.30, and frankly, now my head hurts too.

Let us now close the ranks

Election campaigns naturally and rightly bring to the surface partisan feelings, and sometimes in the heat of battle, animosity. That's part of the system, and part of what makes elections worth while.

The municipal election is over now, however, and it is essential that partisan feelings and animosities be set aside, and that all sides close ranks behind the new administration.

The two years ahead will be extremely difficult ones for municipal governments in many parts of Ontario, and certainly in the Oshawa area.

Council and school boards will need all the help and encouragement they can get from their electors so that they can lead us effectively as we move closer to whatever shape of regional government we will finally end up with.

Help can be given in many ways, but the first step should be that we fully accept the new administration as the chosen government of the people, and give them our congratulations and best wishes, along with our thanks for taking on a job that all too few are willing to do.

It would be fitting, too, if those of us who take an active interest in the government of the community would resolve that when we have criticism to offer, it be offered in a constructive way.

That may not always be easy, but it is surely more effective and therefore more useful.

The paper and the advertisers

Editor Bill Forbes of Canadian Printer & Publisher magazine lists these points by leading Canadian editors in the never-ending argument about the influence of advertisers over newspaper editors:

Editors are absolutely independent of advertisers; they "don't need advertisers as much as advertisers need them."

Newspapers are protected nowadays by the wide range and number of advertisers; no advertiser is powerful enough to influence editorial policy.

Public relations departments in large companies are now sophisticated and sensible enough not to use the threat to withdraw advertising.

"The worst pressures come from do-gooders who want to promote some 'worthy' cause and expect newspapers to provide space, manpower, ideas and everything else."

Newspapers can't make or break politicians — Toronto's Mayor William Dennison was elected without the support of his city's three daily papers; Britain's Prime Minister Harold Wilson lost the last election while every public opinion poll and every English paper said he would win.

"If the press can manipulate its readers' opinions and if it is capitalistic-conservative as many critics charge, why have there been so few Tory governments in Ottawa during the past 50 years?"

Sir,

First of all I would like to congratulate the developers of the Oshawa Shopping Centre for a job well done.

One point I would like to bring to your attention is the unbearable heat.

On discussing this with friends I find they all agree, as I'm sure many other Oshawa Shoppers do.

We must dress warmly because of the increasingly cool weather only to suffocate upon entering the mall.

Many of us must take our small children along with us when shopping and I know one small gentleman who doesn't appreciate the extreme temperature.

Your first suggestion will undoubtedly be to remove winter coats, snowsuits etc., but I'm sure you can imagine the inconvenience of carrying coats and parcels and even then it's still too warm & stuffy.

I personally shop at the centre because of convenience of parking etc. and as a customer I sincerely hope this situation can be rectified.

Mrs. Nancy Pomfret
Editors note: We understand the heat problem is being rectified.

This is the kind of week where we've simply got to go for the mailbag and bring out some of those great letters that come in the editor's mailbox.

Dear PB:

I want to say what a splendid job your paper did in helping get out the vote. Your special edition was a gem of confusion. My wife and I spent the entire day voting, following your advice. Also, to be sure of unity on council, we voted for everybody. (And I did a write-in vote for the gorgeous blonde in the centre-fold of Playboy.)

Non-Committal.

Dear NC:

You may be non-committal now, but dont' be surprised if you find yourself committed sooner of later.

Dear PB:

A friend of mine says you never really get any letters from all these people, and that you write them yourself. Is that true?

Seventeen.

Dear 17:

You are at an age when it becomes important to recognize gossip when you hear it. Now just ask yourself: did I write your letter?

Dear PH:

As a recent arrival in Oshawa, I must say I don't find this a very friendly city. My neighbors never so much as bid me the time of day, and when I go to the post office I have to lick my own stamps. I dread this Christmas. If things don't change around here, I'm going back to Aklavik.

Ekimo Pie.

Dear E.P.:

Why not give yourself a little time to thaw out before making up your mind that Oshawa is not for you? As for the stamp bit, surely you're being a little unreasonable in expecting this kind of service from our post office. The rest of us figure we're lucky even to get our mail. I find that lonely people are lonely because basically they're selfish. I'm sure the city would take you to its heart if you did something to show your interest. What about volunteering to stand in the post office for a week, licking other people's stamps?

Dear P.B.:

What's with this thing where the kids come home at 2.30 every day, just because it's the week when parents are to visit school to consult with the teachers about the kids progress? Is the Board of Education so cheap that no overtime is paid to these teachers to see parents after hours? My big beef is that the whole thing has thrown off my schedule with the hairdresser's.

Mom.

Dear Ma:

Check with Stan Lovell. I can't figure it out.

Dear P.B.:

Do you think last wek's sloppy mess on our city roads did any damage to McNeely's mayoralty campaign? After all, he is still the chairman of the works committee.

Crumpled fender.

Dear C.F.:

It was an act of God, and the bylaw says that about that there is nothing than can be done.

Dear P.B.:

Is there any significance in the fact that in your Friday paper Doug Wilson was hitting Dave O'Flynn between the eyes?

Reader.

Dear R:

Obviously not.

Dear P.B.:

Is Ross Gibson prepared to equip everyone in Oshawa with a pair of far-see-ers, just so we can look beyond the horizon?

Bino Cular.

Dear B.C.:

Gibson says it will be discussed at the first meeting of the Board of Control, along with the creek that is proverbial.

Dear P.B.:

Would you call your job with Cable TV as an interviewer moonlighting or what?

Union man.

Dear U.M.:

I'm doing these things to appease my ego and vanity, which goes for this column too.

Mailman has beef

The bus is empty, but he can't take it

Every morning at 6:03 Albertus Mondria watches the GO bus pull out of the Whitby bus terminal, across the street from his home, headed for Oshawa. Most days the bus is empty at that time but because of a Department of Transport regulation he is not allowed to take the bus to Oshawa unless he uses the GO train.

Mr. Mondria is an Oshawa postman who must be at work at 6:30 a.m. and because he cannot always rely on his car to start in the mornings he prefers to use public transportation.

Until recently Mr. Mondria has been travelling on the 6:15 a.m. Burley Bus to Oshawa, but it was cancelled. He applied for permission to catch the GO bus from Whitby to Oshawa but was told by the Department of Transport that the bus service "carries a proviso that no local business can be carried on between Whitby and Oshawa".

Mr. Mondria claims Burley Bus Lines has "severely restricted its services to Whitby" and asked the town to allow Grey Coach and GO buses to take on local passengers.

Several letters to the Town of Whitby proved futile when he was told by Council it had no jurisdiction over the GO bus service.

Mr. Mondria claims GO service is being subsidized out of taxpayers money ("including Whitby residents") and is being run for the benefit of the people.

"Whitby," he claims, "is lacking bus service from the western end of town to Oshawa at 6 a.m.".

If Mr. Mondria takes the next Burley Bus to Oshawa he will be 45 minutes late for work and docked one hour's pay.

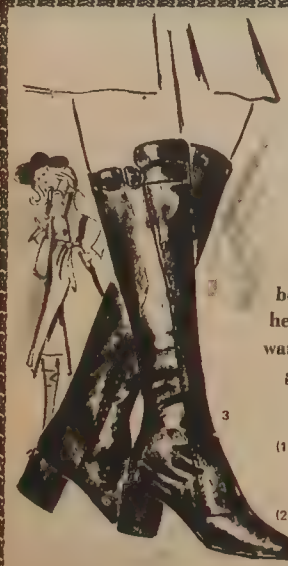
The federal government has provided for free transportation for all mailmen under a transportation subsidy clause.

Until he can arrange for some sort of public transportation to get him to work in Oshawa at 6:30 in the morning Mr. Mondria must depend on his car, "which isn't the most reliable in the world".

He is continuing his battle with the government and is not willing to give up until he wins what he feels in his right.

"There is no sense in letting an empty bus ride to Oshawa when it could be filled with passengers."

℞ MEASURE MEDICINES CAREFULLY



When your physician instructs you to take a teaspoonful of a liquid medicine he means for you to do just that. He has calculated how much active ingredient will be in that teaspoonful of the prescription and taking more or less will possibly be extending the length of the illness he is trying to treat.

Follow all the directions on your prescription package for they are there for important reasons. The label will tell you how and when to take the medicine and how much to take. Sometimes it will tell you how to store it, what to do if you need more, as well as anything else your physician thinks you should know". In mid-November, 50,000 people in Ontario County received an envelope containing sheets of Christmas seals. The seals were mailed from the Ontario County TB and RD Association and everyone of them carried a message of hope

At the turn of the century hardly a family escaped the "White Plague" or consumption as tuberculosis was called. It was the major killer. It seized its victims in the flower of their youth.

In the space of a man's lifetime medical science has brought this vicious disease under control and the discovery of antibiotics has achieved recovery for the afflicted, but tuberculosis is not eradicated

Poor living conditions and malnutrition are foster parents to the TB bacilli and the infection is a menace to all mankind.

The friendly Christmas seals are the ammunition with which you can fight this menace and that of other respiratory diseases such as chronic bronchitis and emphysema which are on the increase.

The war on these diseases in Ontario County has been waging for 25 years. The Oshawa Kiwanis Club started the Oshawa TB Association and later the administration was reconstituted by the Provincial Association into 47 County Associations. Christmas seals were first issued in 1945.

In February 1969, the Ontario County TB Association and the York-Oshawa Health Unit together opened the clinic in the Mid-town Mall which is staffed by Registered Nurses working for Public Health. Miss Gertrude Tucker R.N. is the director of Public Health Nursing and Dr. Cameron Stewart is the Oshawa-Ontario County Medical Officer of Health. Mrs. E. A. Collins has been the executive director since the inception of the county association 18 years ago.

Mrs. C. D. Russell is chairman of the volunteer committee, assisted by Mrs. M. L. Morris.

Volunteers are the "hands" of the association but it is the money from the Christmas seals that puts tools into those hands.

The fund goes into the rehabilitation of TB patients; their transportation to clinics and hospitals; health education through dissemination of information (leaflets and advertising); anti-smoking campaigns and the testing materials used at the clinic.

The clinic is open every weekday until 4.30 p.m. and on Thursdays until 8.30 p.m. The three-way test takes but 15 minutes. It includes a chest X-ray, a test for diabetes and a test for glaucoma.

It doesn't hurt and you don't have to undress.

Diabetes is a sneak. In its early stages sufferers can be completely unaware of its presence. Glaucoma is an abnormal condition of the eye.

Unfortunately, because the early stages may not produce disturbing symptoms, many of those affected do not realize that they have an eye disease until it is far advanced.

Glaucoma is more common than diabetes. Early detection and treatment can prevent blindness.

The miniature chest X-ray will reveal any abnormalities, chronic bronchitis and emphysema (pronounced em-fih-SEE-ma) a disease which causes the lungs to become greatly enlarged. There are four times as many deaths from emphysema now compared with ten years ago. Within the next ten years it might surpass cancer and heart disease as Public Enemy No. 1.

Since June 1969 the TB clinic has taken 7,467 chest X-rays; given 4,950 blood sugar tests for diabetes and 4,371 tests for glaucoma. Hundreds of cases have been referred to the family physician, hopefully, in time.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind and the Oshawa Lions' Club are proud to be associated with this health survey which is free. It can continue to be free with public support.

"If every envelope of seals sent out were returned containing one dollar, we would be grateful and re-assured," said Mrs. Collins.

If you can't give all you'd like, give all you can. It's a matter of life and breath.

If you've lost your envelope, take your donation to the TB and RD Clinic in the Mid-town Mall or to the Bank of Nova Scotia, 11 Simcoe Street N.

You'll breathe a little easier for having done it.

Former city principal writes book for children

A former principal of North Simcoe Public School, Edwin ("Ed.") George Higgins has written and had published a delightful little book called "Help, — There are Beavers in Lily Creek."

Suitable for children aged 7 to 11 (and adults who can recognize a bit of satire) the soft-cover booklet would make a good stocking-stuffer.

The story is based on an actual happening in Sudbury where the author now resides.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Higgins "Ed" was born and educated in Oshawa where he also taught. He left Oshawa about twenty years ago and is now superintendent of development, Sudbury Board of Education.

The book is published by Holt, Rinehart and Winston, Canada, and is obtainable in town.

Gifts for patients

The Canadian Mental Health Association has set up collection boxes for Christmas gifts for men and women patients in the Psychiatric Hospital Whitby.

These are the "forgotten" patients whose family ties are weak or non-existent.

The collection boxes are located at the White Cross Centre, Simcoe Street South; the McLaughlin Public Library; North Oshawa Public Library; the YWCA; the Bank of Montreal, Simcoe and Athol Streets; Jury and Lovell Pharmacy, Rossland Plaza.

The gifts should be new articles, about $2 value.

Father Joseph Venini

Oshawa-born missionary "home" to open school

Father J. Venini School. Glovers Road, was officially blessed and opened on Sunday, by the priest it is named after. Present at the ceremony were many old friends and acquaintances including Mayor Mackey and Father Venini's two sisters, Mrs. Amelia Karnath and Sister Margaret Mary of St. Joseph's Order in Toronto.

Father Venini was born July 10, 1898 in Oshawa, youngest of eight children. His parents originally came from Northern Italy. His father was a skilled cabinet maker who left his native land and came to Toronto in 1887. Two years later he brought Mrs. Venini and the family out to join him. This was during the depression year of 1889 whey they had a hard struggle to survive.

In 1890 they moved to Oshawa where his father found work in the new Williams Piano Works. He worked there for 50 years during which time he earned sufficient to keep his family in reasonable comfort. He and his wife won admiration and respect from all round them because of their industry and honesty in dealings with others, and the genuine love and care with which they raised their family.

Father Venini with Dany at the river near his parish of Guilapa, Guatemala City.

The made their home on Centre Street into a home where children were always welcome — a playhouse, as Mrs. Karnath, a sprightly 80 year old, affectionately calls it. Even now it is the place where Father Venini first heads for on his rare trips home.

Ordained a priest in 1926, Father Venini immediately set out for China and stayed there serving God and his fellow man until 1953 with only one break of service during the whole period.

His mission was essentially to the poor, whose food he ate and whose life he shared. He studied medicine when he could spare time and became the local nurse and doctor.

So zealous and dedicated was he that in 1939, instead of taking leave due to him he spent a year studying at an eye clinic in Shanghai. In 1940 he was interned by the Japs for the duration of the war, when he continued to study medicine.

He made his way back to Oshawa and his old home, when he might have easily called it quits, but instead took on a mission post among the poor in Guatemala. At an age when most men think of retiring, he himself planned and built a power plant to help the development of the community he now serves.

Why Joyce Stewart likes hospital job

At the November meeting of the hospital board it was announced that Mrs. Mildred Gulliver had requested that she be relieved of her duties as Director of Nusring Service because of ill health.

Mrs. Gulliver joined the hospital in March, 1952 and became Director of Nursing in December, 1967. During her tenure she saw the hospital grow from about 200 beds to its present 540 beds and as part of the senior management group was actively engaged in planning for the present expansion.

Over 500

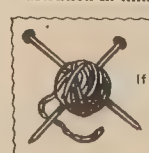
Moving up from her position as Associate Director is Joyce Stewart, who now assumes charge of a staff of approximately 500 people, more than half the population of the hospital.

Mrs. Stewart has been a full-time staff member at the Oshawa General since 1962, but, she says, it seems as if she had been there all her life. Born and educated in Oshawa, she trained at the hospital and worked there in part-time or full-time capacity for many years. She took time away to earn a diploma in teaching and supervision at the University of Toronto, to acquire a "very understanding husband" and five children, four boys and a daughter.

Not new

Mrs. Stewart is not new to responsibility. She was first to develop in-service training at the Oshawa General and is constantly working to incorporate new ideas and philosophies into patient care. She sees her present job as one of co-ordinating, guiding and stimulating the nursing service provided to citizens of the community. She plans to encourage people to be effective in their professional roles and sees enormous opportunity for liaison with community services and all public health services. This co-ordination will become easier when the hospital addition is completed and community services are housed in the new building.

Along with the 500 staff members under her supervision Mrs. Stewart must also maintain close contact with the School of Nursing and particularly the third year nurse-internes who do regular ward duty. Close communication is maintained between the School and In-Service Nursing.



Uniforms

One of Mrs. Stewart's theories which she put into practice about a year ago is that the white starched uniform of a nurse may be a barrier between herself and the patient.

For more than a year now she has come to work in "civilian" clothes and though she is sometimes mistaken for a visitor she believes discarding the uniform and cap really has helped improve her relationship with staff and patients.

She relates with a smile the story of several youths confined in Isolation, who were expressing their boredom and frustration in minor vandalism such as throwing objects out of the window. Mrs. Stewart visited them in street clothes, not wearing the mask and sterile gown the boys associated with hospital personnel. They were startled at her apparent flouting of rules and warned her she'd be in trouble with the authorities for not wearing a gown. Mrs. Stewart responded by asking them to think of the hospital room as they would a room in a neighbour's house and treat it accordingly. At the end of their chat, the boys gave no more trouble, They had equated uniforms and regimentation with captivity and discipline and reacted against it. Treated like reasonable people they responded reasonably.

Says Mrs. Stewart: "If I'd gone in there in uniform and cap they'd have classified me right away as part of the authority they were rebelling against."

Pastels

Already some of the nursing supervisors have followed her lead regarding uniforms and on the paediatric ward nurses no longer appear in stark white but wear soft pastel colours. It has been proven that small children go more readily to a nurse in a coloured dress, and as one small boy remarked approvingly: "My mum has a dress just that colour".

This kind of link with home and familiar things is exactly what Mrs. Stewart hopes to achieve.

For this reason, she is delighted that the Women's Auxiliary is extending its volunteer services through many parts of the hospital, and is particularly interested in the involvement of volunteers in team nursing in one of the wards.

Future

Asked about her ideas concerning the future, Mrs. Stewart becomes even more enthusiastic. She foresees a time when preventive medicine will play an important part, when community clinics such as the multiphasic testing clinic now operative in Oshawa will help detect illnesses before they happen, and hospitals will exist mainly to take care of curative surgery and accidents. She predicts that proper use of recreation, in its true meaning of re-creating body and mind will be a vital factor in keeping people healthy. Her faith in the future of medicine is constantly reinforced by the young people she sees entering the field.

"They're just fantastic", she says, "deeply concerned for their profession, and yet questioning the old style ways of doing things in a very positive way".

She's proud of the creative young nurses who are carrying on in-service training programs, proud of the hospital and the community it serves, humble only about her own position and enormous responsibilities it entails.

But not intimidated. "It's a joy of a job", says Joyce Stewart.

Smith will never stuff himself - not even in Christmas season

The jolly season that provides 10,000 delectable reasons for gaining weight is just a jingle bell away.

And, as always, hundreds of thousands of Canadians have probably forgotten the tough resolution they made last year as they pushed themselves away from a still laden table, groaning that they had eaten too much. The resolution was that they would never stuff themselves again.

Faced with traditional Christmas goodies, however, and too much time on their hands, they probably will eat themselves to an alarming weight gain and feel uncomfortable over the holidays.

This will be the pattern for most people, but not for Al Smith, of Oshawa, who has lost 104 pounds.

Following the laws of Weight Watchers of Ontario, he gradually lost mountains of ugly fat and he intends to keep it off, even during the season of temptation. Weight Watchers is an organization that helps people shed extra weight by teaching them healthy eating habits.

Here is how Smith will face up to Christmas:

Smith, 29, lives at 375 Holgan Avenue in Oshawa. From January 25, to August 27, 1970, he dropped 104 pounds and his 52 waist became a 34. He is 10 pounds below his desired weight and is on Weight Watchers Maintenance Plan which means he is now allowed to eat formerly forbidden foods in the right quantities.

A soft drink manufacturer, he used to be embarrassed going out to meet his customers. Not any more.

He's looking forward to Christmas and to buying new clothes.

He says: "I'll never let myself get into that condition again. My passion used to be pizza but now I like Weight Watchers Chinese-style food — vegetables cooked in soya sauce and mock potatoes made from whipped cauliflower.

"If I could give everyone a Christmas gift I would wish that they lose weight, too. It means a whole new life."

HOMEMAKER

The city will absorb the $1.50 a day increase for Red Cross Homemaker Services to welfare cases. The city had previously been paying $12 a day and will now begin January 1 to pay $13.50 per day.

LICENCE PLATES

1971 licence plates are now on sale for passenger cars, duel purpose vehicles and motorcycles. Registration fees are the same as last year at $35 for eight-cylinder vehicles; $27.50 for six-cylinder vehicles; four cylinders $20 and motorcycles are $10.

FILM FESTIVAL

Grade 11 and 12 students at Ajax High School who produced a film called "Little Red Riding Hood" won the McLaughlin Gallery and Library film festival. More than 20 films by local amateur film makers were entered in the competition.

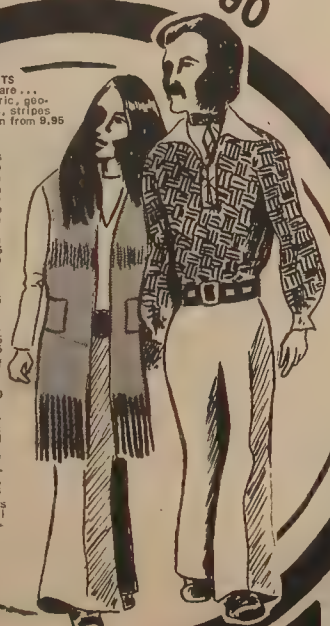
Dentists on staff

Thirty dentists from the Oshawa Whitby area, including one oral surgeon are now fully accredited staff members of the Oshawa General Hospital.

"The addition of dentists to staff is a definite asset", states William Holland, hospital administrator, pointing out as an example, the value of having dental facilities and personnel readily available in cases of face injury.

A patient must be admitted to hospital by a medical doctor and no doctor who is not a staff member will be permitted to use hospital facilities.



Guidance counsellors get together

The Ontario County Guidance Association held its fall dinner meeting at Port Perry High School.

Miss Mary Ann Brazier, Guidance Counsellor of Gateway Public School in Flemingdon Park, Toronto, spoke on the work of her school which is planned with the community in mind, accommodating educational, social, athletic and recreational needs for both the student and the parent, a new concept in education. The parents find involvement in the running of the school and the counsellors themselves become active in community development. The school becomes almost a drop-in centre, open from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

This is art? Of course it is!

By Paul Bennett
Gallery Director

An exhibition entitled "The London Group of Five" has opened at the Robert McLaughlin Gallery. In this show are the works of five young artists from the London, Ontario area, Geoffrey de Groen, painter, Eric Atkinson, painter, Rudolf Bikkers, printmaker, and two sculptors Tom Coulter and Peter Borowsky.

Geoffrey de Groen is an Australian who came from London, England to London, Ontario, where he lectures in Fine Arts at Fanshawe College of Arts and Technology. Eric Atkinson, is the Chairman of the Arts Division at that College. Rudolf Bikkers, is a young printmaker from Hilversum, Holland, who is head of the printmaking department at Fanshawe College. Tom Coulter teaches ceramics at the College and the fifth member of the group is Peter Borowsky, who is 22 and works in his father's market garden by day and by night works on his sculpture.

Miss Kay Kritzwiser, the art critic of the Globe and Mail, Toronto, wrote in June of this year that Geoffrey de Groen's particular drive is directed to exploring the constant spacial ambiguity on canvas which he finds in working with white on black, or black on white. Australian artists have a tremendous amount of explosive energy, he says, but few channels to express it. Canadians have the same kind of energy but more outlets for it. Rudolf Bikkers does deeply incised prints. He gloats over the possibilities of the printmaking department that he heads at Fanshawe College.

Tom Coulter's works have a strange but plausible alliance — the smooth sophistication of porcelain insulators standing tall beside his rough, slabby but beautifully textured ceramic units. He calls these installations "In Hope of Marriage" — "But it could end in divorce", he admits. His shrine-like ceramic pieces actually are much more interesting than the 750 pound industrial units. He would dearly love to design for industry and is convinced that artists will have to find some unifying bridge between art and industry.

Stealers

The artist who may make the biggest impression on the Oshawa public is Peter Borowsky. He makes sculptures that are big and soft, like his "Green Onion" — it is 25 feet long and made of green and white leatherette, stuffed with foam and rubber. The madness of the soft sculptures make them understandable scene-stealers. It is a must that the Oshawa public should come and see his full sized leatherette truck, which is collapsing in its half inflated state.

This is art? Of course it is! It is the young people of to-day exploring in new directions. You may like it, or you may hate it. I suggest that you come and see it, see how the younger professional artist is exploring new materials and new ideas in expressing the world as he sees it around him

Hawkshaw wins men's spiel

By Jim Bishop

There was excitement galore, heartbreak, lots of good fun and plenty of great curling on the weekend as the Oshawa Golf Club hosted their annual Two-day Men's Major Bonspeil.

24 rinks from around the province entered in the event including many famous names in the sport.

There were five major trophies up for grabs in the spiel with the leaders in points going into the major category and as the number of accumulated points decreased the teams were dropped into the next highest competition.

In the two semi-final draws on Saturday the competition was intense. Dick Trumper of the Toronto Cricket Club defeated Allan Bradley of Whitby 5-4, Bob Patte of Oshawa Golf Club over Norm Hall of Annandale 7-4, Ed Desormo from Humber Highland beat Oshawa's Herb Robinson 12-3, Gord Needham of Barrie over Jim Scandrett of Toronto Cricket 10-5, Claire Rich, Whitby, 15-1 over Al Stewart and George Ellis of Westmount defeated Bill Sendal, Oshawa Golf Club, 8-3 in the first of the two draws.

In the second draw, Ed Hill of Oshawa Curling Club beat Jim McClellan of Whitby 7-3, Gord Hawkshaw of Oshawa Golf Club over Don Campbell of Avonlea 8-4 in one of the toughest matches of the weekend, Jack Lloyd of Barrie over Doug Langmaid 8-4 and Perry Laurence of Whitby beat out Al Preston 11-5 to set the stage for the five 10-end finals.

B of M trophy

In the number five event for the Bank of Montreal trophy Claire Rich defeated Don Siemon of Quarterback Club 10-8 in a hard fought match. In the Smith Transport trophy match, Ed Desormo beat Ed Needham 10-7. Bob Patte defeated Dick Trumper 9 to 4 to take the Mitchell's Drugs trophy and Perry Laurence defeated Jack Lloyd 7-6 to win the Cliff Mills Motors trophy in one of the toughest matches of the entire event.

In the premier event for this year's top trophy Gord Hawkshaw of the host club slugged it out all the way with Ed Hill of the Oshawa Curling Club. Hawkshaw, who did not lose a match during the competition was hard put to keep even with Hill in the early ends. Hill was making his shots and receiving some good calls in the house as well as a lot of good shots from his vice, Bob Freeman. The game was tied after five ends but Hawkshaw was able to take a pair on the sixth end to put it at 5-3 and from that point on kept making solid shots to keep Hill under pressure. The winners of the Herb Robinson Automotive Supply trophy besides skip Gord Hawkshaw were Dick Snowden, lead, Jack Rothery, second and John Burch, vice.

Members of the winning rinks were presented with the various trophies as well as steaks and collections of fine wines. The Bank of Montreal trophy winners were Claire Rich, skip, Chris Schmelzle, vice, Brick Evans, second, Bob Warnock, lead. For the Smith Transport Trophy winners were Ed Desormo, Skip, Frank Corcoran, vice, John Williams, Second, and Len Warrington, lead. The Mitchell's Drugs Trophy was presented to skip Bob Patte, vice Hal Butler, second, Dyson Brooks, and lead Norm Weatherup. The second event winners were presented with the Cliff Mills trophy. This went to skip Perry Laurence, vice, Don Sullivan, Doug Brown, second, and Bill Winter.

Probably the most exciting prize of the bonspiel was presented by Chairman Bruce Ross to the runners-up in the main event, Ed Hill's rink. Traditionally, these runners-up were given hams. This year was no exception but there was a slight difference. The hams were on the hoof. The rink was awarded four live pigs.

The host club spared no expense to make the visitors welcome and comfortable during the whole of the competition. On Friday, the home teams each entertained one of the visiting rinks at their homes and the club provided a dance. On Saturday, the club hosted a Bonspiel banquet and a free cocktail party was provided for entrants and visitors by the Angus Graydon Carpet Company.

The Oshawa Golf Club is to be commended for the job it has done in bringing curling of this calibre to Oshawa.

Groob, Bradshaw join in Messiah

The Oshawa Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Jacob Groob presents its second subscription series concert this Sunday evening. The orchestra will accompany the Oshawa Symphony Chorus in their presentation of Handel's "Messiah".

Lloyd Bradshaw, one of Canada's outstanding choral conductors, was appointed as music director of the Oshawa Symphony Chorus in September, this year, following the announcement of his resignation as organist-choirmaster of St. George's United Church, Toronto. The chorus has been rehearsing once a week, since the beginning of October.

For the last 10 years, Mr. Bradshaw developed a progressive system of choirs involving children's choirs for public school age boys and girls, Junior High and Secondary School students in St. George's Youth choir and the adult choir.

His choirs have earned international recognition. In 1964 the Junior Choir was chosen to represent Canada at the Music Educators' National Conference in Philadelphia. The Youth Choir, in addition to its local activities has taken three tours, — 1964, Great Britain, where they sang at the opening of the Edinburgh Festival, and in the major British Cathedrals, including Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's, Coventry and Canterbury. In 1967 they travelled across Canada, concluding with performances at Expo '67, This summer the 137 member choir sang in London again at Westminster Abbey, Westminster Cathedral and St. Paul's Cathedral, the Hague and Amsterdam, Paris, St. Peter's in Rome, Cathedral Mario Fiore in Florence; St. Mark's in Venice and for the Papal Audience.

Mr. Bradshaw continues in his other positions as special lecturer at the Faculty of Music, University of Toronto, where he lectures in choral techniques and conducts three university choirs. He is also choirmaster for the Canadian Opera Company and Music Director of the Canadian Children's Opera Chorus which is presenting a half-hour CBC special of their own December 20th and Christmas Eve entitled "Gift of Music" with the Toronto Symphony on Channel 9.

They were also featured as the Gingerbread children in the recent CBC-tv presentation of Humperdinck's "Hansel and Gretel".

Choral directors of Oshawa and Ontario County will have an opportunity to learn some tips from Mr. Bradshaw in late January at an all day workshop sponsored by MODD.

The featured artists at Sunday's presentation are Irene Carman, Margaret Carmichael, Albert Greer and Gary Relyea.

Christmas plays are hit with women

The University Women's Club of Oshawa and District, held its annual Christmas party at the Genosha Hotel, convened by Mrs. C. M. Elliott.

At the conclusion of the dinner, three plays both written and directed by Mrs. R. A. Crichton, were performed by some of the members. The narrator was Mrs. N. H. Edmondson. The first play starred Mrs. A. M. Dixon, and Mrs. G. K. Drynan, who played the composers of "O Silent Night". After this, the hymn was sung by the "choir" in German and English, there was humorous dialogue between two Christmas trees, Mrs. W. H. Harris, and Mrs. P. F. Smith, who disagreed as to the origin of the Christmas tree.

Industrial hockey

The Whitby Industrial Hockey League played three games on Sunday night and the competition was quite close

In the first game, Duff's Towing, led by Neil Pascoe's four goals defeated Robson Leather 5-2. Bill Van Doloweerd scored the single goal for Duff's and the Robson goals were scored by Joe Kwiatkowski and Norm Bjorndahl

The second game saw Roger Waddell net the hat trick as Whitby Hotel defeated One-Hour Martinizing 5-2. Wayne St. John and Bill Dingman scored the other goals for the Hotelmen. Bill Down and Joe Luciano replied for the losers.

In the final game of the night, Genosha Hotel nipped UAWA 4-3. Gary Gray scored a pair for the winners with singles going to Don Waller and Gary MacDonald. Vic Moore, Charlie Hackney and Kim Shakotko handled the scoring for UAWA.

Generals split weekend games

The Oshawa Generals split a pair of games on the weekend but should have won both of them and picked up four badly-needed points instead of two. In Kitchener Friday night, they met a Ranger team that was ready to be had but the Gens just could not put the puck in the net on the numerous chances that they had.

The Rangers opened the scoring early in the game when Bill Barber tipped in a pass from Mundell at the 1:19 mark of the period. The Rangers made it 2-0 on a goal by Jerry Byers with Mahon off for holding. Don Seiling, who was one of the better Generals on the night, scored the only General goal of the period before McCarthey made it 3-1 for the home team.

In the second, Kudrosov and Cassidy scored for Kitchener and Al Avery, Gerry Methe, Don Seiling with his second tally of the night, and Peter Sullivan replied to give the Generals a 5-5 tie going into the final frame. It was in this third period that it all fell apart for the Generals. They just could not keep any kind of a sustained drive going and allowed two unanswered goals, one into the empty net with just 17 seconds remaining. McCarthey and Byers handled that scoring for the homesters

The loss of Terry O'Reilly early in the final period didn't help the Generals cause in any way. There is, no doubt that O'Reilly is the team leader and is always where the action is on the ice. O'Reilly picked up a Charley horse in his right leg and early indications look like he may miss at least three games. Also in this game, Teddy McComb should have sued his mates for non-support as they continually left men open in front of the net and on at least three goals were guilty of screening him.

Flyers game

On Sunday, at the Civic Auditorium, it was a different story as the Generals outskated, outshot and outhustled the Niagara Falls Flyers. The Oshawa team received solid effort from every member in the lineup and it paid dividends as they defeated the helpless, but not Hapless Flyers 9-2.

Gilles Gratton, in goal for Oshawa had to be very sharp in the first period as Niagara outshot the Gens 14-7 but Oshawa came away with a 2-1 lead. In the second, the Generals scored three times and then added four more in the third. Wayne Crysler scored the only other Niagara goal of the game in the third period with their first period score going to Morris Titanic.

For the Gens, Tom Simpson and Brian Thorne scored two goals each, with singles going to Butch Williams, Jack Lynch, Peter Sullivan, Dean Sheremeta and Gerry Methe.

One break the Generals received this past weekend was the release of big Dennis Howard from the Sudbury JrA. team. While Howard did not figure in the scoring in his first game for the Generals, he did impress with his skating and stickhandling. Once this boy gets a few games under his belt, he could become one of the shining stars for the Gens.

The Generals have three big games this week as they travel to Peterborough on Thursday, entertain the St. Catherines Club Saturday at the Auditorium and then go to Montreal on Sunday. The time of Saturday's game is 7:15 pm.

Hockey school as Christmas present

The Oshawa Recreation Department has come up with a new Christmas present idea for parents to give to their sons.

The Department will be conducting a four-day hockey school at the Civic Auditorium during the Christmas school holidays.

The Recreation people have been conducting a Fall Hockey School at Harman Park and North Oshawa Arena over the last number of weeks and have had a large registration and much success. They will be starting a new program after the holidays and the Christmas school will serve as an introduction to their 10-week course.

The school during the holidays will be instructed by local semi-pro players and will prove very valuable to beginners and advanced players alike. The fee for the four day series is $4 and for this four hours of on-ice instruction will be given.

The clinic will run from December 28 through December 31. Registration for the clinic will take place at the Department's headquarters on Friday December 11 from 1 to 3 p.m. and from 7.30 to 8 p.m. With each registration a Christmas card will be given to the parent so that he may use the clinic as a present for the children.

UAWA hockey league

Bunny's Food Service edged out the Scugog Cleaners entry Sunday morning in UAWA Hockey League play. Phil Solomon scored two goals for the winners and Dave Leaming potted four, including the winner at the 19:40 mark of the third period to give them the 6-5 win. Mike Theobald, Bob Delves and Gary Copeland replied for the losers.

In the second half of the doubleheader, Starr Furniture captured their eighth consecutive win as they dumped Versafood Services 6-3. Ron Myles and Frank Prest led the way for the victors with 5 points each. Myles included two goals. Elmo Gibson, Stan Westfall and Russ Korback contributed singles. For Versafood, it was Newt Woods scoring a pair and Dave Bradley picking up the other tally.

Lords lose basketball, dominate in hockey

The hockey and basketball teams from Loyalist College at Belleville were here Saturday for meetings with the Durham College Lords. The Lords were defeated 71 to 62 in basketball but completely dominated in hockey as they wiped out the visitors 9-1.

The basketball game was close but the Loyalist clubs had too much in the final minutes of the game for the Lords to overcome. Big Rick Webster helped the Loyalist club greatly as he hooped 36 points and Brian Culham scored 19. For Durham, Bob Burley scored 23 points and Ted Harrison potted 14.

The hockey game was a different story as the Durham team completely outclassed their opposition and skated away with an easy 9-1 victory. The durham team jumped into a 4-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Dennis Homeniuk, Mike Rose, Bill Barker and Mike Cawker before Dave Blakely gave Loyalist their only goal of the night.

In the second frame, Mike Cawker scored his second goal of the night and others were added by Ken Dehart, Paul Bligdon and Wayne Hodgson. Paul Bligdon scored the only goal of the third period.

Saturday's games were the windup of the pre-Christmas schedule. Due to exams being held at the school, the teams were now idle until January 15, when they travel to Kingston.

Try for Winter Game

Swimmers from the Synchronized Swimming Section of the Oshawa Aquatic Club had their first major competition of the 1970-71 season when they attended the preliminary competition for the Ontario Games in Toronto.

Laura Douglas placed 4th in the solo event with her routine "La Vie En Rose". A team comprised of Laura Douglas, Jane Phillips, Heather Cooke, Jill Ayre, and Louise Proulx, placed 3rd in the team competitions with their routine "Women of Uzbec".

Both routines will now compete in the Ontario Games to be held in Etobicoke on December 28th & 29th. The winners of this event will go on to the Canada Winter Games.

NASC holds sports appreciation night

By Jim Bishop

The Neighbourhood Association Sports Committee held its annual appreciation night for more than 300 coaches, managers, referees executive members general helpers and members of the press upon the successful completion of their softball and soccer season.

The night kicked off with a dinner at the UAW hall and following speeches and presentations, the guests were treated to a dance and social evening.

The highlight of the affair was the presentation of service certificates and seals to the various volunteers for their efforts throughout the season. Ron Guiltinan handled the presentations. This year saw over 2000 people participate in the soccer and softball programs.

Chuck Pell, sports director of the Oshawa Recreation Department told the gathering that he was proud to be associated with such a dedicated group of workers and that he had to go to university to be able to be paid for the type of job that these people were doing as volunteers.

The NASC is now sponsoring hockey and ringette leagues for just about 5,000 children and adults. Plans are also being formulated to improve playing facilities for next summer's sports programs.

HOUSING

There are 73 senior citizens on the waiting list for Ontario Housing units and the city has recommended to OHC that a minimum of 50 units be built to accommodate the waiting list. Council recommends the site of Deane Ave and Normandy Cres. and stipulates that construction should be done at no capital cost to the city but the city would pick up the annual operating costs.

MAIL

The Post Office has announced full wicket service will be in operation Saturday the 12th and 19th from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. to help with the Christmas rush. Parcel post delivery will also be performed on these two days. Letter delivery will also be made on Dec. 19 also. Mailing deadlines are the 13th for out-of-town and the 17th for local deliveries.

AS SAFE AS THE BANK

A gift of a handsome sweater by Ingo or Wolsey or Peter Scott together with a really wild pair of colourful slaks will win the hearts of many a man this Christmas--especially if they come in a box labelled MURRAY JOHNSTON. Our sweater Bar is recognized as being the very best in Oshawa and we have taken care to co-ordinate slaks, shirts and ties to complete the image of the casually well-dressed young man. It costs nothing to look at.

Cut this out and stick it on your new car.

There. Now your new car is worth more.

It would be worth more because that sticker means your new car is rustproofed by Ziebart. The people that have been protecting new cars from corrosion and rust since 1953.

Ziebart Auto • Truck Rustproofing has inspired a lot of imitators. But we're still the only ones that can keep our promise to protect your entire car from rust. And back up that promise with a written 10 year guarantee.

Understanding rust.

In order to understand why and how Ziebart's rustproofing is the best, you must first understand rust.

Rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. And the most dangerous rust begins on the inside of your car, in the hidden, hollow areas.

It is a popular misconception that salt causes rust. Although salt will accelerate the rusting process, it cannot cause rust by itself.

Many people believe that keeping a car in a heated garage or washing it regularly will help to combat rust. The opposite is true. Melted ice from the outside of your car and the water used in a car wash both seep down into critical hollow areas and cause the car to rust even faster.

Now that you understand the basics, you can see that in order to prevent rust, you must coat every critical area with a chemical barrier that stops the moisture from getting to the metal. It is on an exclusive chemical barrier like this, that the Ziebart process is based.

How Ziebart does it.

In order to get at every critical area, Ziebart first drills small holes at strategic but inconspicuous spots around the car. Then long nozzles are inserted into the holes to spray the entire area with our special sealant, by hydrostatic pressure.

The Ziebart sealant is a special patented formula developed by us. It will not crack or peel, is chemically adhesive to metal, is liquid enough to seep into every seam and crevice, remains pliable for permanent protection, is an insulator, will withstand dirt, water and salt, and will never harm plastic, rubber, glass, paint or upholstery.

Our process is so thorough that we guarantee your car will not rust through for ten years, no matter how many miles you put on it, if you have it Ziebarted before it's driven 3,000 miles.

The benefits.

Having your car Ziebarted means it will be worth more. It's simple to see that a car dealer will be prepared to give a considerable amount more for a car in near new condition than for a rusted out piece of junk at trade in time.

The Ziebart process makes your car safer. Although you can't see it, rust on a three or four year old car has already begun to eat away at vital mechanical parts like the hydraulic brake lines.

If you give your car to your wife when it's three or four years old, it could very well be a deathtrap because of the rust that's been building up over the years.

And lastly, Ziebart can give you the opportunity to drive a new looking car for a lot longer than you thought you would. There's little reason to trade a car in when it's three years old, if it's still looking as new as the day you bought it.

Your car is you.

Your car reflects the kind of person you are. And if you're about to buy a new one, you have a choice.

You can forget what you've just read and let rust start destroying your $3,500 investment the day you bring it home. Or you can call Ziebart.

You'll find a Ziebart dealer in the White pages under "Ziebart".

Contact him.

Our process takes a full day or more, because we do the job properly.

But those extra hours will pay off over the years.

"Total involvement"

The B'nai Brith is the latest Oshawa organization to pledge "total involvement" in the Oshawa-Whitby United Appeal Campaign, it was announced this week by campaign headquarters.

"We're behind this one hundred percent, and we hope it'll go over the top, despite all the difficulties in this campaign," commented a spokesman for the organization.

Presidents of all service clubs and other organizations have been contacted by the United Appeal to help push for "total involvement" (a pledge from every member) the key to success of this year's campaign.

The Oshawa-Whitby United Appeal is still $91,589 short of the 1971 target of $456,589

Executive director Byron Edmondson says the campaign will continue until the strike is settled. "There are still several plants we haven't been able to canvas because of the strike," he said.

The United Appeal campaign's success relies heavily on the contributions of the payroll deductions of employees of General Motors and other industries still on strike.

"We are going to keep this campaign going until next July if we have to, to meet our objectives," says campaign co-chairman William Nurse.

While all companies, industries and organizations received their pledge cards before the middle of September some large companies have yet to return the completed pledge cards.

Last year all the agency budgets had to be reviewed and budgets had tt be iut accordingly because the objective was not met. This year the committee does not want to have to do the same thing.

"Some agencies were severely hampered last year when budgets were cut. We don't want to put them out of business this year," says Mr. Nurse.

The United Appeal is hoping all organizations will follow in the footsteps of the organizations that had 100 per cent participation by their staff.

Under the direction of Irenie Harvey of the Harvey Dance Academy, Eastdale Collegiate was the scene of the annual "Motor City Baton Twirling Competition". Girls and visitors from Quebec, the States and Ontario competed for top honours.

Janice Manning, a senior Harvey Twirler, took the title of "Miss Oshawa Teen Twirler" along with 3rd. in Nov. T. Strutt and 4th. in Flag Solo, a credit to her teacher, Patsy Blake of Bowmanville who had held that title herself a number of years back.

Betty Anne McKnight took the Senior Novice Talent and in the Junior Talent Laurinda Gravelle 3rd., Jill Gannon 4th. and Cindy McCune 5th.

Christmas came early for two cubs of the 8th "A" Oshawa Wolf Cub Pack this year. They had the pleasant task of formally presenting to the Children's Ward of the Oshawa General Hospital, toys worth $28.00. The money was collected last Christmas. Instead of exchanging gifts among Cub pack members, the boys chose to donate the money to purchase toys for the children in hospital instead. Cubs Gary Hutcheon and Jimmy Wingrove made the formal presentation, on behalf of the whole pack, which numbers 25. From left, standing, are Mrs. Carole Zink (Akela), Mrs. Marjorie Young, holding patient Beverley Henderson, Newcastle, Ont. Seated: Gary Hutcheon, patient Jeffrey Abbott of Oshawa, Jimmy Wingrove. In crib behind is Patient Christina Fuoco of Oshawa.

Here and there

PANTY HOSE STAND UP

Maybe panty hose don't always stand up to the roughest wear, comments Style, Canada's women's wear newspaper, but they do come in handy sometimes in a pinch. An enterprising nurse, after witnessing a car accident in which a youngster was badly hurt, applied her panty hose as a tourniquet successfully until an ambulance arrived. Another panty hose came through in an emergency when a carload of tourists was stranded after their fan belt broke. One of the women in the group used hers as a substitute fan belt which worked well enough to get them to the nearest garage six miles away.

TOO PROMPT RESPONSE

Montreal police got a bit curious, when they noticed certain towing trucks were always Johnny-on-the-spot time after time at accident scenes. Even vehicles that shouldn't have been towed away disappeared and their owners were charged thumping fees to get them back. After some sleuthing, police rounded up a gang of two-truck "specialists" who operated trucks with radio transmitters tuned to police frequencies. It wouldn't have been so bad if these bandits had at least bought their own radios; instead, they were using stolen police sets.

FRINGE BENEFITS UP

Employee fringe benefits cost employers an average of $2,000 a year for each employee last year, an increase of $400 in two years, according to a research report in Office Equipment & Methods business magazine. Vacation pay is the biggest cost item but welfare benefits (group life and medical insurance, sick pay) have taken over second place formerly held by pension plans. This switch is attributed to the impact of medicare programs, which almost doubled the average welfare benefit cost per employee in the two-year period of the study.

PRETTY PHONES PAY OFF

City Hall in London, Ont., is getting prettied with colored new touch-tone phones, reports Civic Administration magazine, to replace the old black dial instruments. It's not just a matter of interior decoration but a case of making the taxpayer's dollar go further. City employees can dial a touch-button phone almost ten times faster than the old dial model and it's estimated the time saved will more than pay for the extra $7,000 a year the new colored ones will cost.

Sir:

Right now you're reading this newspaper and then you have a choice of throwing it away into general garbage where it's use is then ended — or — saving it in bundles for the boys scouts and cubs collections.

There's a collection in most areas once a month (sometimes less often but please be patient). Your bundles tied and stored either in the garden shed, or well away from your furnace in the basement really don't take up that much space.

Relax — it's not a candidate celebrating his election to city council ... . . It's Private Stan Dolezal of 146 Albert Street, Oshawa, learning the technique of free-fall from an aircraft. Stationed at Edmonton, Dolezal is a member of the 1st Airborne Field Squadron of the Canadian Airborne Regiment. (Canadian Forces Photo)

See power struggle between 2 bosses

New civic officials will be walking this bare hallway from the council chambers to the cafeteria, come January. Civic Square is in the background.

It doesn't look as if it will be "peace on earth" at city hall for the next few weeks.

Indications are there's a power struggle developing between Bob Richardson, head of the city's new department of planning and development, and his former boss, Fred Crome, works commissioner.

(Before his recent appointment as commissioner of planning and development, Richardson was the deputy works commissioner.)

No members of city council came right out to state the facts of the struggle, but discussions on Richardson's plans to implement his new department showed strong indications of a struggle over "which department will include what" between the two commissioners. "If you're going to hear one, you're going to have to hear the other," commented Controller Christine Thomas.

Ald. Jim Potticary too, appeared to be concerned about more about the implementation of Richardson's plans, than the basics of his ideas for the future.

Council approved in principal, and without any fuss Richardson's "basic philosopy" in regard to the new department. (See also editorial, page 4)

The commissioner said he considered that a big step ahead.

Once more, with feeling does it for city council

By Peter Brouwer
editor

Unless an emergency crops up between now and Dec. 31, the 1969-70 city council has met for the last time.

In yet another long drawn out meeting the council wound up its business Monday night.

For a number of members it was the last time they'd sit at the council desks for a couple of years. For others it was the last time period.

Come January 1, Mayor Bruce Mackey, Controllers Finlay Dafoe and C.E. McIlveen, and aldermen Gord Attersley, Russ McNeil, Gib Murdoch and Norman Down won't be back. Mr. Down says he has retired once and for all. He's been a member of council for 18 years.

It took council til the small hours of the morning to get finished.

Perhaps the dying council's most important decision of the year was approval in principle of the thinking behind the city's new department of planning and development. This is the super department under Bob Richardson, whose prime aim it is to cut city hall red tape and bring about orderly and imaginative development of the city. (See also editorial, page 4)

Council bogged down on the details of Richardson's proposals to integrate a number of city departments, and the 1970 council will have those details on its agenda early in the new year.

Signs or no signs?

Now that the election is well behind us, a number of aldermen got their word in about election signs. Alderman Alice Reardon sees no useful purpose for these things and says "people used to get elected without signs." Other members such as Con McIlveen, Ald. Ross Gibson and Ald. Ed McNeely felt signs added spice to an already dull election campaign.

It was decided the new council will also look into that issue.

A procedural wrangle developed while Con Margaret Shaw was in the chair and an earlier council motion to the planning board was returned by that board, approving a zoning change to allow for gas pumps at the Oshawa Cooperative.

In a 9-7 vote council turned down the planning board's recommendation which had come on the heels of a council decision to "approve (the zoning change to allow gas pumps) subject to the approval of the planning board."

Ald. Bill Werry challenged Con Shaw's ruling that council's vote reversed its earlier decision, and he insisted on a recorded vote to rescind the earlier council decision.

Following advice from city clerk and city solicitor the rescinding motion was put, and lost 8-8. Ald. Ruth Bestwick had changed her mind in favor of the Coop gas outlet.

In other business, council:

- Exchanged a few strips of land with the Ontario County Board of Education. The land is behind E.A. Lovell School.
- Approved a board of control recommendation of equal treatment in the placing of city advertising between This Week and the Oshawa Times.
- Decided to advertise and ask citizens of Oshawa to submit names of those they would like to see appointed to the various city boards and commissions. Council makes these appointments at its "caucus meeting" early in the new year.
- Gave a round of applause to Mayor Mackey's wife Donna and two sons, who attended the last 1970 meeting chaired by daddy Bruce.

Who's talking?

The humorous highlight of the 1970 city council's last meeting this week was the true-to-form exchange between the mayor's chair and Oshawa's two women controllers.

In the aftermath of a heated debate, much talk — the mumbling kind — prevailed in the direction of the Board of Control desk.

Mayor Bruce Mackey leaned over with an "Order, ladies!"

Margaret Shaw replied, loud and clear, "No, your worship, I'm not talking. She (Mrs. Thomas) is talking to herself."

Shot back Mrs. Thomas, "and as usual, she's listening."

Controller Charles McIlveen who has been having his share of wrangles with the two women controllers appeared to enjoy the exchange. He was all smiles.

Typographers reach strike deadline decision

Following is a news release received from David Coutts, president, Local 969, of the Oshawa Typographical Union.

"As of December 17, 1970 local 969 of the International Typographical Union can legally strike the Oshawa Times. This decision was unanimously reached by its members at their regular monthly meeting on Monday, December 7th.

"After two concilliation meetings, a no-board decision was made by the Department of Labor. The members are asking for $1.10 an hour in wages and .13¢ an hour towards an industrial pension plan. At the present time employees of the composing room and the pressroom have no pension plan and no drug plan, only sixty per cent of the OHSIP plan is paid for by the company, as well as a life insurance policy.

"The union feels that their demands are not excessive in view of the fact that considerably smaller newspapers within the Thompson structure have recently settled with the I.T.U. for $34.00 a week increase in pay and .75¢ per shift towards the Industrial Pension Plan. (This was part of the Kingston settlement).

"Local 969 was given the moral and financial support of the Oshawa and District Labor Council."

POST OFFICE

The Post Office has announced full wicket service will be in operation December 19 from 9 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. to cope with the Christmas rush Parcel post deliveries will also be provided that day, along with letter deliveries. Deadline for in-town deliveries is December 17.

ETV

The Ontario County Board of Education has approved, subject to budget limitations, the increased use of television in county schools.

City's booboo on permit drives chicken man 'round the bend'

The error of a city employee in issuing a wrong building permit to Scott's Chicken Villa, Simcoe Street North, has caused a lot of concern and anxiety to the villa's manager, James Constable.

Mr. Constable applied to the city in September for a permit to construct a new take-out building on the land adjacent to the present villa. He was told the land was zoned commercial. Constable proceeded to build.

On November 2, with the new unit almost completed, city inspectors paid a visit to the site and told him all construction must halt because an error had been made by the city.

The land, which he was told was zoned commercial, was in fact residential and as a result no additional commercial building was allowed to be constructed on the land.

"They took out all the construction workers and told us to stop all work. We were only allowed to put in the furnace," says Mr. Constable.

As a result Mr. Constable has had his parking lot chopped by one third. He had counted on tearing down the old building to make room for more parking. He is now faced with two buildings on the one site and an inadequate parking lot to service his customers.

Dump . . .

"It has caused a lot of inconvenience to us. We are now working in a dump when we could be in a brand-new building," says Mr. Constable.

With the biggest two weeks of business approaching him, New Years and Christmas, he is faced with a shortage in parking space and cramped quarters.

He has, however, resigned himself to the fact that an error was made and now waits for the Ontario Municipal Board to hand down its decision on the rezoning of his land.

The OMB, which has not been approving land rezoning until it has approved the official city plan, is expected to meet this week and a decision is expected follow shortly afterwards.

Mr. Constable says he does not blame the city and even gives them credit for "trying to push the rezoning through quickly".

Three other wrong permits were also issued at the same time according to Mr. Constable

This engineer deserves your prayers

If you're in the habit of praying for any of our city hall personnel, next time include one R. F. Richardson, professional engineer, the city's commissioner of planning and development. That's a tall title, you'll say. Well, the man has a tall order to fill.

You'll recall all the shouting over the past couple of years about inefficiencies at city hall, and red tape and developers having difficulty in doing business smoothly with city hall, and the three right hands of the city octopus not knowing what the left ones were doing . . . .

Well, it's up to Richardson to change all that. And that is a tall order.

Richardson was appointed last month to head up the city's new super department. The minute he was appointed there was flak called "municipal nepotism" — council choosing from its own to do a big job. (Some compared his hiring to that of elected representatives R. J. Nicol, now the industrial commissioner, and Bill Paynter, urban renewal coordinator.)

Sofar, Oshawa's man Richardson has come on strong. And the new council, when it takes over in January will be wise to pay close attention to his recommendations.

Just this week, the new commissioner presented to council his basic philosophy on the new department. The way he defines the role of the new department makes a great deal of sense.

Richardson is after "a complete integration of all the activities necessary to achieve orderly development of the community at a minimum time-cost, resulting in the most effective utilization of both public and private development funds."

Recognizing that the plans, policies and programs of the new department shall be in keeping with the basic objectives of the community, Richardson finds development of the community "a partnership between the public and private sectors of the economy."

In his new department, the commissioner wants to see reflected not only the needs of the city as a corporation, but also the needs of commerce and industry. And, he adds, in the background there must always be the recognition that the people of Oshawa are able to enjoy their environment, and that thus his department's programs and policies must reflect the needs of the individual citizen.

Richardson promises his new dpeartment will be bold, imaginative, creative and aggressive. He calls for plans and programs that are practical and within the capability of the city to implement.

It doesn't sound like a typical run-of-the-mill civil servant's approach, does it.

We repeat, if you're in the habit of praying for city hall types, include this man Richardson some time. He's going to need all the support he can get, because in the end, our politicians will have the final say, and some of them have shown approaches that are neither bold, nor imaginative, nor creative, nor aggressive.

Amen.

Let's worry about our pre-occupation

The experiment with prices and wage guidelines, which really never got off the ground, will come to an end in Canada this month. Dependent in turn on goodwill, pressures and threats of compulsory action from high levels, the ill-fated attempt to get industry and labor cooperation in holding the line was doomed from the outset.

Now the Prices and Incomes Commission will continue to study inflationary trends, and possibly make recommendations, while labor and business go their way so long as no arbitrary legislation is imposed by the government.

It is evident that other factors have entered the picture to stem the tide of inflation, which has been a serious problem in the expansionist 1960's. Canada is facing a severe winter in terms of unemployment, particularly in parts of Quebec and the Maritimes, and things in Oshawa look far from rosy at this time. The severity of the unemployment picture was underlined in the Benson budget's multi-million dollar injection of jobless assistance two weeks ago.

Runaway inflation is a prime cause of unemployment. A number of Latin American states have been reduced to terrible conditions of poverty and misery through being unable to control it. There, annual rises in the cost of living of more than 25 per cent are not uncommon — yet even an inflation rate of five per cent can multiply the number of poor very quickly.

Even though the Prices and Incomes Commission has abandoned its efforts to control the economy at a set level, a great responsibility rests with government, labor and private enterprise to keep this country moving on a sound and reasonable course.

What is needed — and let's give this some serious thought, especially in strike-ridden Oshawa — is a new awareness of the national good, in place of pre-occupation with individual desires for exhorbitant wages and prices.

Unless we can work out adjustments within the existing freedom of our society and economic system, we may yet be burdened with government-imposed wage and price controls.

After the H and M John, who?

The Ontario Progressive Conservative Party will not have to look far for a successor to Premier John Robarts — "the High and Mighty John" as he is known to those who read the Chronicles of Osh — who has announced his retirement.

Party supporters will have a roster of energetic fortyish cabinet ministers from which to choose a new leader. As Robarts said in his resignation statement, the party possesses a "rich reservoir of talented, able members" capable of developing the policies necessary for these "fast-moving times."

Two ministers who come immediately to mind as strong contenders are William Davis (Education) and Darcy McKeough (Municipal Affairs). The pressure-packed days of overhauling the school system and placing it on a county-wide elective basis are behind Mr. Davis. He did exhibit great determination, political skill and administrative ability in pursuing the school consolidation program. Faced with a storm of protest across the province, Mr. Davis did not give an inch, but argued his case forcefully, courageously and convincingly.

Mr. McKeough is in a different position, right in the middle of a bigger and more controversial issue — the imposition of regional government in Ontario. Like Mr. Davis, he has debated the case for regionalism up and down the province, but the fight is far from over. Mr. McKeough might be indispensable to his department for several years, unless the government should change or waver in its avowed intent to institute regional government.

There are other candidates, anyone of whom might carry off an upset, such as Mr. Robarts did with his low-key campaign in 1961.

It is important that we hear from the aspirants about their nationalistic philosophies. Premier Robarts capped his nine-year tenure with a goodwill visit to Quebec, where he reiterated and reaffirmed his province's recognition of the French Canadian fact. He offered both

Once upon a time, way back in 1970, in a country that was all white in winter and all green in summer but most beautiful in fall, there was a city of some 87,000 inhabitants. The city was strategically located on a Great Lake, with access to the ports of the world as it was known in those days, and it had connections galore by rails of steel and long strips of asphalt and concrete. So its propaganda said.

And as all 87,000-plus in this city prepared to celebrate the great feast of Christmas, all was not well. Many of the men of the city were not working. "On strike" it was called. And many others there were who were not "on strike" but who had been "laid off", a term not to be confused with a similar one used by morticians.

And there were among the merchants of the city those who were extremely displeased; and there were among the manufacturers of the city those who were even more displeased and there were among the children of the city many who did not understand.

Much of what was spoken in the city was gloom and doom.

Right here and now, I think I had better stop this tale. See what happens when you climb up on a very tall imaginary ladder and look down at us? There are a lot of reasons for thoughts not normally associated with Christmas time.

Still, we're going to celebrate Christmas, and we're going to celebrate it together, all 87,000 of us, plus the 24,000 in Whitby.

If I were a preacher, I think my Christmas message this time around would be that we give all our neighbors an extra little bit of thought this Christmas, especially those of us who are not directly involved in the misery of strikes and lay-offs.

The beauty of Christmas is that even a gloom-and-doom period such as many are experiencing in our city today can turn into something strong and beautiful.

End of sermon, and onto the Christmas greetings.

I've got so many this year, I'm starting in this issue, for fear I might not have enough room next week to give presents to all those deserving people.

First on my Christmas list is John DeHart, who gave me such a resounding pat on the back the other Monday night as the municipal election results were trickling in from the PUC computer. Don't believe everything you hear about election slates, John. Most people do vote from the heart. Anyway, Merry Christmas, John, and if your tree were big enough I would put the Oshawa Airport under it, all neatly wrapped and quiet.

Ruth Hopps, another canidate in the same election, should certainly have another run at it next time around. By showing up on election night and tearing one whole copy of This Week to pieces in front of the mayor's desk, she has shown the necessary spirit of indignation so often missing in a politician. Merry Christmas, Ruth. My gift to you is a peace offering wrapped in a copy of This Week.

To Controller Margaret Shaw who really found favor in the people's eyes by topping the polls, I turn the other cheek. That is — literally. In the other sense of turning cheeks, she knows I'm a sucker for punishment.

End of all those good wishes and gifts for now.

Before I sign off, I'd like to remind any snowplow crews that I do have a long driveway, and coffee will be served free to the first snowplow arriving at the door following the next storm.

Sir:

I am disgusted with you and your paper. As far as I am concerned, newspapers are for reporting the news, not throwing their opinions on the public, some of which are too stupid to think on their own.

I like to form my own opinions at the various forums etc. and I strongly resent anyone or any paper telling me how I should vote. I hope we never see this stupid nonsense in any further election.

As far as I'm concerned, because of your ignorant interference, we have elected some people that should never have been elected.

At the poll where I voted I saw a woman with a page from This Week in her hand. Is that not against the law?

(Mrs.) A. Martin

With all the ballyhoo about the Royal Commission on Status of Women comes the age-old charges that man is the root of all their evils. The new feminists claim that man is the enemy and the oppressor. The $2,000,000 might better have been spent on housing or creating jobs for the unemployed rather than winding up like most Royal Commissions in a pile of dust in an Ottawa cellar.

Commissioner Humphry refused to sign the report as he claimed it was discriminatory to both sexes. Women it is claimed in the report are depicted as elegant, beautiful — and young, with 89 per cent of the women pictured in newspapers and magazines being less than 35 years old. I can see how that would be disturbing to the 62 year-old Chairman of the Commission . . . . a woman with no children. The status chairman went on to say that "Canadian women are treated like children and face a horrifying amount of discrimination". The readers, some 5 million, of Playboy or the girls therein would hardly agree with lady Chairman.

History from Adam and Eve to Samson & Delilah and Anthony & Cleopatra has taught us that it was the woman who subjugated the man.

British Diplomat James Cross after his release from the FLQ kidnappers claimed it was not the 3 men but the one woman who continually harassed him, by taking away his food, turning off the TV in the middle of a movie and telling him he would end up like LaPort. Louise Cossette-Trudel was described by Cross as "a real bitch". Mr. Cross is a mild mannered man.

So, come on girls, if you want to wear the pants and demand "special status" not equality, be prepared to accept the hard knocks and the full responsibility that goes with it. Alimony for husbands, community property, payment for legal and divorce when the woman is at fault, child support and the whole bag.

As Kipling said "The female of the species is more deadly than the male."

moral support and continued cooperation in an economic way, giving the province of Quebec a very much needed lift in the wake of the recent terrorist crisis. More than token support of national unity will be expected from the next Progressive Conservative leader.

In the meantime, Premier Robarts can close out his term of office with the satisfaction of a job well done for the people of Ontario. The firm, fair manner in which he governed, and his understanding of the political, economic and social needs of the province, were appreciated by all citizens.

Re your letter from Eskimo pie. I agree with her that Oshawa is one of the most unfriendly cities I have ever lived in. We have been here for 14 months, and find most people too wrapped up in their own affairs to bother with strangers, luckily unlike E.P. I do have a couple of good neighbours (both from out of town).

I have even offered my services voluntarily to a couple of organizations but both times heard nothing more, so it isn't for lack of trying.

Enclosed is my cheque for sixty-five dollars and fifty-two cents ($65.52) in payment of invoices No. 2202 and 1981

I herewith am registering a strong objection to your publishing a choice of candidates in the recent election, which no doubt had a bearing on my defeat. I do not think any paper should try and influence the voting platform of any election.

I do not intend advertising in your paper again

Reginald Pinder

Sir:

The "Editorials" in This Week make exceptionally good and interesting reading. It is a wonder you don't get your toes stepped on more often, but in your case having a broad back & sloping shoulders it runs off like water off a ducks back. One other thing I notice you don't even bat an eyelash.

I must compliment C.K.L.B. — Cable T.V. Durham College Students and yourself on the excellent coverage of the election, where was your daily opposition?

You do not picture too well on television but you sure know how to keep your cool when necessary, as several interviewed candidates (that's better than gentlemen in my esteem) sure tried hard to get a rise out of you but to no avail. Here is hoping they do not try & run again as poor losers are what we do not need in City Hall. Your Choice or the papers choice of Candidates did by no means influence my way of voting.

The Write ups on the candidates in your last & special edition were well done. Hats off to THIS WEEK.

Keep up your good work in writing about that which is not in good taste, that which should be written about, and those who should be written about. Does this cover it all?

Reader and viewer

Sir:

I don't think much of what you've been doing with your paper during the past election!

I think you were unfair to those running, and I think your being biased has prevented some of them from getting in or else hurt their chances. You seemed to favour a few who in my opinion should never be elected to serve anyone.

You don't seem very interested in running a good newspaper. You seem to run it to suit yourself, as I have noticed before.

Sir

This is in reply to Union Man":

Just who does "Union Man" think he is passing out snide remarks about those he thinks are moonlighting? Probably this high and mighty union man thinks he is just a step higher than his fellow men and hasn't cut his asked for part time hourly renumeration low enough to compete for those few extra hours of work. These are the fellows who are constantly ringing my telephone off the wall just so they can offer their services for an unheard of paltry $1.50 to $2.00 per hour. Hire him NO! he is more to be pitied than laughed at.

Here are a few of the part time jobs our esteemed union men lower themselves to do at cut rate prices. Some are second jobs and in some cases third jobs if he can find time. Then next morning he complains to his legitimate employer the job is too hard or he is too tired therefore he wants more money for less hours. So where does it all end. More part time work? Some drive for light parcel delivery, others pump gas some repair and paint cars.

Also there's the back yard mechanic, who cuts hourly rates and does household moving — appliance delivery & cartage Cab drivers (so slovenly) some are store salesmen bartenders (slow & independent) rural deliveries for circulars or mail, appliance & TV Repairman Landscaping, lawn sprayers (tradesmen only) many do floor scrubbing & janitorial work at many unionized places of employment (some nerve) also Salesmen for unneeded household goods & magazines etc. Along with this about 80% of their wives work. Many work in stores (this is okay but listen to this) Where on Public Declared Holidays these stores stay open, these holidays their husbands & Union worked so hard to get off for themselves.

Our greedy Union man seemingly thinks he has to satisfy his lust & constant hunger for more money so he won't lose that precious ski-doo & cottage, boat or car to his creditors.

These are your Union men. Just look around and see for yourself, they are all the same whether they belong to a large or a small union which takes in most of our general work force — truck & bus drivers. firemen policemen, office workers & factory workers and many more, too numerous to mention. These are the cheap second & third job workers.

Who Am I? —

Just a full time small business man of Oshawa, in business a number of years. I advertise in the yellow pages and local papers, therefore what I have said is enough, and the truth is that the above goes on in our fair union city of Oshawa.

Follow all the directions on your prescription package for they are there for important reasons. The label will tell you how and when to take the medicine and how much to take. Where else can a girl get work with 120 fellows?

Some people, when they meet an off-duty policeman at a social gathering produce strange reactions.

Anne Crawford, an attractive Oshawa policewoman has found it can be downright embarrassing.

"I guess I just don't look like the type to be a policewoman but when some people meet me for the first time and I tell them what I do for a living some people clam right up and refuse to talk to me," she says.

Working with 120 policemen and detectives and being the only woman on the force has its advantages and its disadvantages.

"It's not the easiest thing being the only woman on the force and having to work with all those men. They want to do things their way and I find we have different ideas on how to handle certain cases."

Anne works with three detectives on the Youth Bureau, handling all cases involving juveniles under the age of 16.

Asked if she thought women were inherently better qualified than men to work with youths Anne said she felt being a woman was a definite advantage when dealing with young girls.

"Often I have to ask them embarrassing questions and I find they will tell me more readily than they will a man."

Most of Anne's cases so far have involved juveniles charged with shoplifting, minor consumption or youths termed "unmanageables". When she receives a complaint or report of a juvenile she investigates the cases

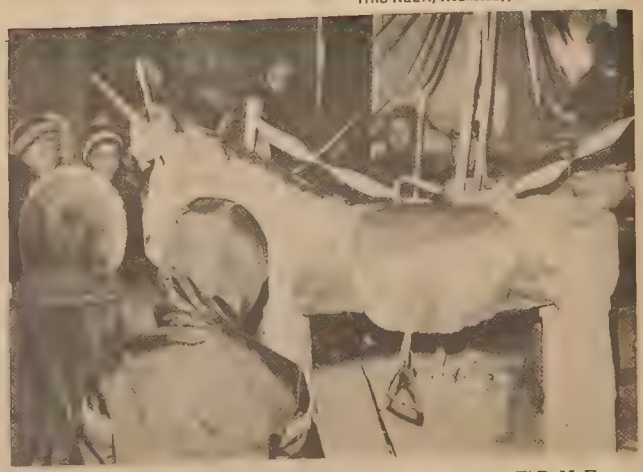
Grade eight students at T. R. McEwen Senior Public School have turned the front entrance of their school into a fairyland

As their Christmas art project, eight grade eight classes constructed life-like sets depicting different fairy tales. A wander through the hallways will introduce you to Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, Peter Pan, Humpty Dumpty, Pinocchio and many others.

In keeping with their theme "Christmas is for little children" the pupils have extended an invitation to all schools in the city to bring their classes from kindergarten to grade three to visit the school

Under the direction of art teacher Mrs. June Smith, the students constructed life-sized papier-mache animals, and characters from fairy-tales The project took three weeks of solid work at lunch time, before and after school and Saturdays.

Each class chose one or two students to take part in the display and made costumes to match the story they represented.



The Home Economics classes made Christmas cookies which they pass out to all visiting classes By December 19 more than 15 classes will have toured the display.

December 21 the children in the neighbourhood of T. R. McEwen school will be invited to visit the display. One class wrote an original Christmas story as their project which they read to the visitors once the tour is completed

The pupils have also decorated the school with mobiles and other Christmas decorations.

The biggest problem the students will be faced with once the holiday season is over, is what to do with their displays. Unfortunately the school does not have storage space and the sets, while sturdy, would not hold up to the wear and tear of young children if donated to a school.

"We are going to have to do some pretty sharp thinking next year to improve on this display," says Mrs Smith.

Meet policewoman Crawford

and files her reports.

When a child is called in for counselling or disciplinary action, the parents must be present at all times. Anne says a knowledge of the parents and their home life helps in deciding whether a charge will be laid against the juvenile.

"Of course, all parents contacted are shocked to learn their child is in trouble and if we know that the parents will take disciplinary action at home it helps in deciding whether or not to lay a charge."

Nightwork

Because Anne is the only woman on the force she is called in the middle of the night invariably when a woman prisoner is brought into the station. Anne is in charge of searching all women prisoners. She also takes part in raids when it is suspected either a juvenile or a woman will be involved.

Anne began work at the police station in 1969 in the communications department. Police Chief Jon Jenkins asked her to think about training for policewoman. Anne decided to try it.

She spent 12 weeks on a training course at the Ontario Police College in Aylmer, and learned all aspects of police work including defensive holds.

"I was immediately assigned to the detective department and missed the opportunity to pound the beat, though I think I would like to try it just for the experience".

Anne has never been in a situation where she has had to physically defend herself but says she must be on the defensive at all times.

Bus job

Working with juveniles entails a variety of assignments. Last week she had to ride on a PUC bus in plain clothes when she received a complaint that juveniles were using obscene language.

She is also involved in a large number of "stakeouts", which means she must watch certain premises looking for example for sex-offenders bothering small children.

More women?

Anne considers all aspects of her job interesting and wouldn't trade it for any other in the world. "It's a wonderful opportunity for any single girl and I think as the Oshawa police force grows that more and more women will be employed as policewomen."

Some of the qualities necessary for the job appear to be even-temperedness, and the ability not to overreact.

"I think all girls should consider entering this profession", says Anne.

Besides where else would a girl get a chance to work with 120 men!

Who says there is no Santa ? Who says he doesn't come down the chimney ? Here's a picture to prove there is a Santa Claus and that he does come down the chimney. Santa was caught in the act on Sunday at the Knights of Columbus Hall, when he paid a visit to the Children of the Knights of Columbus and their guests from the Glenholme School.

Ralph is home from another tour

Cedardale's world traveller, Ralph Burton is home again after a globe-trotting year. Says he: "During January, February and March the lovely spots of Florida, the Bahamas California and Hawaii were my home. For 30 days in June 1 toured Great Britain. The friendliness, beauty and history made this trip most rewarding.

"Arrived home early in July in time to take a West Coast coach tour of USA and Canada which was excellent. Left in mid-September for New York City to board the mighty Queen Elizabeth II bound for Europe. Cruising on this great ship is a holiday in itself.

"I made a coach tour of Holland, Germany, Austria, Italy, Switzerland and France, then crossed the Channel to spend a grand finale of five days in London."

The traveller, who has taken three world cruises and is quite familiar with the Orient and southern hemisphere, commented that Canadians were quite welcome in Europe and "nothing beats travel by sea".

MEALS ON WHEELS

A treat for seniors

There are over two dozen Oshawa senior citizens who eagerly await lunch time Monday, Wednesday and Fridays when they are visited by the Meals-on-Wheels volunteers who bring them a hot meal. For many of these shut-ins it is the only balanced hot meal they eat

The Red Cross, in co-operation with Hillsdale Manor operates Meal-on-Wheels. The objective is to bring a nutritionally valuable meal to shut-ins in the area who cannot cook for themselves.

"Some of the senior citizens suffer from malnutrition, some are blind and some have just lost interest in cooking for themselves," says Meals-on-Wheels chairman Marg Baxter

Three times a week these people get a meal of soup, crackers, meat, potatoes, two vegetables hot roll and dessert. Hillsdale Manor Chef Joe Franssen handles all diet problems with ease

"For many of the older people, this meal is a real treat. It is served on a porcelain plate piping hot. Often times we find they will save some of their meal to eat at dinner," says Mrs. Baxter

The meals arrive hot because special insulated plate covers with thermos containers for soup and dessert are used Each place setting costs $20 to purchase, however. Mrs. Baxter is quick to point out that it would cost $25 per person per year to wrap the food in tin foil Insulated food boxes are used to carry the food to the homes. The meals cost 60 cents but Mrs Baxter says anyone who can't afford the money will receive the meals.

Hillsdale Manor administrator Doug Johns has nothing but praise for the operation. "If we keep the senior citizens happy and healthy outside the home it will mean less will have to be admitted to Hillsdale," he said.

Mr. Johns also said that for most of these people it is the only time someone comes to visit them. Left alone, many of the older people neglect their welfare and soon become sick.

Volunteers are recruited from church groups, service organizations and some personal friends. Each day four women and their assistants drive the meals around to the senior citizens. This week they will check to see if anyone will be alone at Christmas and if they would like to receive a Christmas dinner.

However, they could use some donations to purchase more place settings. Meals-on-Wheels now has 36 complete sets.

Anyone knowing of a senior citizen or couple who could use the services of Meals-on-Wheels are asked to call the Red Cross

BIG BROTHER WEEK

January 4 to 10 is Big Brother Week in Oshawa. The objective is to get men to volunteer as big brothers to boys needing companionship and leadership. Volunteers should be calling 576-2597.

Hillsdale Chef Joe Franssen prepares a hot meal to be delivered by Red Cross volunteers to shut-in senior citizens for Meals on Wheels.

There's a job for you, girl, at the hospital

If you're the sort of person who really wants to share in community responsibility, if you find satisfaction in helping out where you're needed, the Oshawa General Hospital is looking for you.

For the past few weeks, surveys have been made and suggestions solicited from nurses to find out where volunteer workers could be used to ease the burden of the hospital staff. A long and impressive list of tasks resulted, all of them important to the smooth operation of the hospital. These include making up operating room charts, bringing supplies from the store room to nurses, walking with ambulant patients, taking patients to x-ray, assisting in feeding convalescents and many more.

Joyce Stewart, Director of Nursing Service estimates that 600 to 700 volunteer hours per week are needed. Volunteers would in no way replace hospital staff, she emphasizes. They will assist patients and staff by providing additional services.

When working in ward areas a volunteer is expected to give a minimum of three hours per week. A volunteer who comes in less frequently loses the continuity of the job and isn't as useful as if she works on a regular basis.

Women of Oshawa have played an important role in the life of the hospital from its beginning. When the campaign for funds for the present expansion was under way, the Auxiliary pledged $100,000 and the money has been raised, through bake sales, revenue from the Gift Shop, the fall house tour and other activities. During the past two years an exciting new facet has been added to Auxiliary work and new areas of service have opened. Volunteers are on hand each morning, Monday through Friday, to be with children waiting to have tonsillectomies. They sit with the children, entertain them with games and books, soothe them if they are frightened and explain the experience they are about to undergo.

Similarly in the admitting department, volunteers have been proving their value, taking newly admitted patients to their assigned floors and in every way possible lessening the tensions of a hospital admission. These volunteers may also be called upon to help out in emergency, bringing a needed stretcher or carrying messages. This department has proved very popular with volunteers who enjoy meeting the public. They perform a very useful service in putting the incoming patient at ease and co-ordinate well with the nursing and Admitting staffs.

With volunteer Mrs. Nancy Williams to assist Timmy Greening goes happily to work. W. A. Volunteers for hospital duties are asked to phone the Oshawa General. (Photo by Mao Oyuang) toys, play games or work at crafts.

The children made decorations for Hallowe'en, and some are involved in Christmas preparations. Two volunteers are on hand each morning to oversee playroom activities and give help where it is needed. Another volunteer goes on the wards with crafts and games, library supplies and books from the McLaughlin Library for those who aren't allowed out of bed

Noting the success of the volunteers already employed, Mrs. Frank O'Neill, president of the W.A. has been consulting with hospital people to find ways that women can fill more needs in the work of the hospital. The suggestions from the nurses have indicated the wide number of tasks that could be performed by volunteers right on the wards and reflect too, the enthusiasm of nurses and supervisors for the new scheme

But if the goal of 600 to 700 volunteer hours per week is to be reached it will be necessary to recruit more people. Mrs. O'Neill points out that the Auxiliary welcomes anyone who wishes to join and that service in the hospital is really what the W.A. is all about. A member doesn't need to attend meetings unless she wants to.

If the idea of giving service appeals to you, simply call the hospital — 723-1541 — leave your name and address and you will be contacted shortly.

Mrs. O'Neill stresses the fact that there is real need for help at the hospital. A busy homemaker and mother herself, she knows time is valuable and no woman wants to volunteer unless she can truly be of use

At the Oshawa General Hospital, the need is real and urgent. There's a job waiting to be done. Is it waiting for you?

AFTER HOURS

Symphony and chorus present Messiah

The Oshawa Symphony Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Jacob Groob, gave a noble performance of Handel's Messiah in Eastdale Collegiate on Sunday night. The polished production by the 90-voice choir must be largely attributed to the choral director, Lloyd Bradshaw, whose choirs have won acclaim in London, Paris and Rome.

The guest soloists Irene Carman, soprano; Margaret Carmichael, contralto; Gary Relyea, bass-baritone and Albert Greer, tenor, added immeasurably to the high calibre of the performance.

Miss Carman sang "Rejoice Greatly, O Daughter of Zion" and "I know that my Redeemer Liveth" with particular clarity and elation.

Miss Carmichael's contralto was not powerful but most eloquent in "He was despised and rejected of men"

Mr. Greer's opening recitative "Comfort Ye My People" demonstrated his facility in the tenor range with sustained passages. He introduced much tenderness in "Thy Rebuke hath broken His Heart"

The reflective solos by bass-baritone Gary Relyea were rich in tonal quality, strength and interpretation

The orchestra and Mrs. Jean Piercy at the organ gave full support to the chorus and came into its own in the Pastoral Symphony interlude. Chorus and orchestra rose to a great crescendo in the Hallelujah Chorus and a majestic finale in the last Amen.

Solo trumpeter John Cowell, Leonard Taylor principal clarinet and Norman Zacour principal oboe, played with distinction and the orchestra and chorus was accorded a standing ovation by a full house.

On Sunday December 27 the Oshawa Symphony Orchestra will give two performances of Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf", at 3 p.m. and 7.30 p.m. in Eastdale Collegiate.

The dramatic fairytale with musical score will be narrated by Bruno Gerussi, actor and commentator, of the Stratford Festival and the CBC.

Tickets and further information available from Mrs. C. O. Sproule, 725-8961.

Two film series

By Paul Bennett, Director

The Robert McLaughlin Gallery will be presenting a series of nine Wednesday evenings on films of the history of art during the winter months. This series will start on Wednesday evening, 8 p.m., January 13, and will run every second Wednesday until May 5th.

It has been arranged so that it will alternate with the Wednesday-Open-Night Lecture Series, and consequently the public will know that every Wednesday evening during the winter, there will be an educational programme at the Gallery, either a lecture or the film series.

On January 13, the series will start off with films on prehistoric art and Egyptian Art, January 27th it will move on to Greek and Roman Art.

This will continue into February with an evening on the Middle Ages, Romanesque and Gothic, to be followed by Pre Renaissance and Renaissance Art, Northern Renaissance, Baroque and Rococco, English Romantic 19th Century, Impressionism and Art Nouveau, Cubism, DAda, Surrealism and finally the ninth evening will present films on Post World War II, that is abstract expressionism, action, pop and hard edge.

The films are all being booked through the Canadian Film Institute, in Ottawa. There will be no charge for this series. It is hoped that high school students, especially interested in the history of art, will be able to take advantage of these evening presentations.

The very successful Oshawa Film Society is also continuing on into the winter season. It is being co-sponsored between the McLaughlin Library and the Robert McLaughlin Gallery.

An information sheet on each film is sent out one week ahead of the showing of the particular film.

This is Beethoven's birthday

By Jo Aldwinckle

Tomorrow, December 17, 1970, marks the 200th anniversary of the birth of Ludwig von Beethoven, revered as the greatest composer of all time. Last September, I stood in the small, attic room of the house in Bonn, Germany, where this event took place.

Lighted by two deep-set dormer windows, one overlooking the back garden, the room is bare except for the famous bust of the composer by Wolff Voss, on a plain pedestal with a large, laurel wreath resting at its base.

To music lovers the world over, it is a shrine.

In 1767, Beethoven's father, Johann von Beethoven, tenor of the Electoral Orchestra and his Maria Magdalena Kevernich of Ehrenbreitstein, near Koblenz, moved into this house at 515 Bongasse.

The couple made their home in the comfortable rear section of the L-shaped building. The front part was occupied by other members of the orchestra.

In 1889, the building having become derelict and ugly after its use as a tavern and students' inn was to be demolished, but a small group of Bonn citizens, founders of the Beethoven House Society, saved it from destruction by raising the necessary funds for its purchase.

Mercifully, the house escaped the bombings of World War II. It is gracefully furnished in 18th tains Beethoven's personal effects, family portraits and paintings of those who played an important role in his life.

One room illustrates the background of the Beethoven family and contains his birth certificate. Another room is devoted to his early years, with pictures of his friends and his mentors, Franz Ries, Mozart and Haydn.

In the organ room is the keyboard of the Minorite Church organ on which Beethoven was playing preludes at ten years of age. He also accompanied during morning mass. On one such occasion he is said to have confused a vocalist with his exuberant modulations.

At this time Beethoven was a pupil of Christian Gottlob Neefe who had come to Bonn as musical director for a group of actors. He soon became court organist and under his tutelage, Beethoven became deputy organist at 13.

A silhouette portrait shows Beethoven at 16 dressed in court attire with pigtail and jabots. His friend Fischer described him as "short, squat, broad shoulders, short neck, thick head, round nose, black-brown face color; when walking he always bent forward, he was called, at home, the Spaniard, because of his dark complexion."

In the Bodmer room is his writing desk, a simple table of dark polished wood. On it lie his round steel-rimmed spectacles and their leather case; a pen and inkstand, a seal monogram for wax and a handbell.

A framed certificate announces his enrollment in Bonn University May 14, 1789 and in a glass case are pages of his manuscripts, almost untranslatable with ink blots, scratches and scribbles.

Overlooking the street and the courtyard the Viennese Room contains Beethoven's last piano, built especially for him by the Viennese pianomaker Konrad Graf, also the stringed instruments (Beethoven played the viola as well as the piano and organ) presented to him by Prince Lichnowsky.

A cabinet set apart, contains a number of clumsy ear-trumpets.

Documents, under glass refer to his years of suffering. Others record his death and burial in Vienna. Here, too, is the portrait by Schimon.

Beethoven did not like to sit for artists. In 1818/19 he granted an exception, permitting Friedrich Schimon, a young painter and singer, to observe him at work, composing the Missa Solemnis. Subsequently, the composer allowed Schimon to visit him in his leisure hours to complete the painting, the eyes in particular, as Schimon

Chamber singers perform next week

The Chamber Singers of Roberts Wesleyan College, Rochester, New York will present a Festival of Christmas Music at Erie St. Free Methodist Church, Oshawa on December 18 at 8:00 p.m.

The meaning of Christmas — its good-will and special spirit — will be stressed in the Chamber Singers' presentation of traditional and contemporary Christmas music. The concert, part of a five-day Christmas tour of New York and Ontario, will feature "A Ceremony of Carols."

The members of the Chamber Singers come from three states and one province, from various backgrounds, and diversified goals for the future; they care about one common goal — a desire for presenting through music the certainty that youth today is still a sound generation.

The public is invited to attend the concert.

What's the problem with the Generals?

What is the problem with the Generals?

This is the question being most asked around Oshawa as we head for a new year. The question in many minds is taking precedence over the disastrous strike situation

Well, we haven't got the answer and it would appear that the coach and the executive of the club don't have it either

The Generals are rapidly becoming the Argonauts of the Jr. A hockey world and this is a fate the long-suffering fans hardly deserve. For the fifth season in a row, the Generals are getting nowhere This time they have pace; they're getting nowhere fast.

Let's face it, the Orrs and Cashmans and the O'Sheas do not come out of the woods very often. In fact, since the CAHA decided to put the screws to Junior hockey, they rarely come out at all. So, what the teams must do is form an efficient scouting organisation, draft well and instill some basic hockey knowledge in their players, build a team pride and get the boys off their south ends to work for whatever money and hockey opportunity they may get.

It would appear that the Generlas have done none of these things. Still, the team does have a number of good horses though they are sure having trouble getting them to work.

The whole problem, even after 23 games must boil down to leadership. Whether this lack is due to the coaching or an executive breakdown is difficult to say. We were all sold on the idea of a Moses coming to town and leading the team out of the hockey wilderness in which they have been wandering for the last five long seasons.

But here we are, looking like the Maple Leafs and trying our damnedest to be even more inept than even the Niagara Falls Flyers.

One thing is well known around the league. That is that our fans do not sit on their hands. They are good supporters and have had more than their share of living off the hock of the hog and should soon be eating higher up where the ham is.

As mentioned in this article earlier, we have had five tough years, but there was always one thing we could count on! — consistent effort!

This year, we have seen too many games where the players are just going through the motions. This is not what people pay good money to see. It is not that bad to lose. It is bad to not try.

Somebody is not trying. Who?

Crushmen lose in third period

The Oshawa Crushmen did not have quite enough to stay with their opponents from Peterborough for a full three periods and lost their bid for a share of first place in the Lakeshore Jr. B. league 5-3.

The Crushmen certainly held their own for the first two-thirds of the game as they took a 3-2 lead going into the final frame.

In the first period, the Crushmen opened the scoring at the 1:38 mark on a picture goal by Luke Charbonneau. Scott Willson threw a perfect pass to Larry Hopkins at the Oshawa blueline and Hopkins hit Charbonneau perfectly to give the big rookie a breakaway. 10 minutes later, Dave Cooper converted a sloppy clearing attempt by the Oshawa defense to tie the score. Don Hudgin put the Crushmen in front again on an unassisted goal but Len Powers showed some great stickhandling ability and beat the entire Oshawa team to tie the score again.

Scott Willson scored the only goal of the middle period on a power play with a hard shot from the point.

In the third, the bigger, more poised club from Peterborough outhustled the Oshawa crew and D'Arcy Jenish tied the score early in the period. Jim Johnson put them ahead to stay in the game and Lee Palmer got the insurance tally at the 19:24 mark into the open net

There were a number of outstanding performances in the game including that by Dennis Higgins, in goal for Oshawa, who faced 39 shots. Garry Armstrong held his own with Len Powers in a first-period battle. Dave Cooper was impressive for the visitors.

This Friday, the Crushmen host the Cobourg Cougars at the Auditorium at 8:00 p.m.

Cliff Maddock, Crushmen president has announced the Crushmen would play an exhibition game on Sunday, December 27, at the Civic Auditorium against former Generals.

Booster Club holds party for Generals

The Oshawa Generals Booster Club is soliciting support for its annual Generals Christmas party to be held at the Centre Street Masonic Temple this Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

This is the second year for the party and last year it was well accepted by the players and the fans. There are quite a number of boys on the club from homes scattered throughout the province and playing commitments usually prevent them from spending the holiday season with their families.

The party will begin with a dinner and will be followed by dancing and presents from a special Santa Claus. The club is now selling tickets for the affair and anyone wishing these tickets or information may get both by contacting Madeleine Ashmore at 725-8894

Generals head for league basement

The Oshawa Generals are working hard at getting themselves in to the league basement. The weekend saw them take two beatings, 5-0 to the St. Catherines Black Hawks and 6-2 to the Jr. Canadiens.

Saturday, at the Auditorium, they ran into a weakened St. Catherines team. Still Generals were so flat the Hawks ran all over them. Despite a brilliant effort by Ted McComb in the Oshawa net, the club was unable to muster any firepower and made backup goalie Keith Pallett look good with his shutout. The St. Catherines goals were scored by former General Bob Peppler, with two, and singles going to Dave Pay, Bob MacMillan and Mike Bloom.

On Sunday night, the Gens invaded the hostile confines of the Montreal Forum and came away on the bottom half of a 6-2 count. The game was marked by a number of fights and from all reports, the Generals came up with one of their more spirited outings.

Pete Sullivan and Gary Mahon were the marksmen for the Gens and for the Baby Habs, Richard Martin led the way with two goals and the others went to Robert Lalonde, Jocelyn Guevremont, Ian Turnbull and Camile Lapierre.

The Generals are now only five points ahead of the Niagara Falls Flyers and five behind Kitchener and Hamilton for the last playoff position. The club has back to back games with Kitchener Rangers this weekend a perfect chance to gain some valuable ground.

Believe it or not, but Peter Sullivan is buried somewhere in this pile in a vain Oshawa Generals attempt to score against the Flyers. The Generals went on to win this one (for a change) 9-2.

You know, even a dumb sportswriter can learn something from a City election. For instance, I've learned that the paper I work for has so much utter power that the editorials can sway thousands of votes and singlehandedly elect 40 people to positions on council, PUC, and the various boards of education. I've learned also, that some politicians are such poor sports, the losers from Oshawa could qualify for positions with the Toronto Maple Leaf organizations.

Too, if I thought that this paper could sway people's opinion so easily through its "dictatorial" policies, I would not hesitate a second to predict that the Oshawa Generals will win their next 25 games, each by at least nine goals, and I would send a copy to every coach and player in the league and tell them they need not show up for the games since the Generals are going to win just because THIS WEEK said so.

However, there's about as much chance of the Generals winning their next 25 games, each by nine goals, as there is of John Dehart inviting our entire staff to Florida or Mexico for a couple of weeks to get away from the snow and ice and salt of Oshawa's streets.

Really, the idea behind this masterpiece of journalistic tomfoolery is to draw a parallel between our local election and most athletic contests. There is comedy, and tragedy, excuses and braggadoccio, good winners and bad winners, good losers, and above all, bad losers.

Herb Robinson is shown presenting the Herb Robinson Automotive Ltd. trophy to Gord Hawkshaw of the Oshawa Golf Club. North Plant hockey league

The Central Sleighriders and Nurse Chev played to a two all tie this week at the North Oshawa Arena but due to a game protest by Nurse Chev they were awarded the game.

Neil Ingram scored the first goal of the game unassisted in the second period for Nurse Chev. The Central Sleighriders tied the score as Junior Munroe on a passing play with Charlie Burgess and Don Cockerton scored. Fred Cambers on a power play with Dave Moiser and Bill Kenney scored to put Nurse Chev back in lead. At the 18:45 mark of the second period Mike Kimble scored the tieing goal and last goal of the game for Central

In the second game of the day Clint's Texaco were defeated for the first time this season as Larry's Sports and Cycle downed them five to two.

Keeping a new car new is more than just a Saturday wash job.

The ice that begins to eat away the hidden metal areas of your car. This diagram shows cross section of a door and rocker panel being attacked by rust

Some people are under the impression that keeping a car clean is the best way to keep it looking new and rust free.

How rust begins.

In order to appreciate the Ziebart process, there are a few misconceptions about rust that must be cleared up.

1. All rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. These are two things impossible to avoid.

2. The most dangerous rust starts on the inside of your car, in hidden seams, crevices and hollow areas.

3. Most people believe that salt is the major cause of rust. This is not so. Salt will not cause rust by itself, but it accelerates rust and will quicken the damage.

4. Keeping a car in a heated garage during the winter causes the car to rust even faster. This is because the ice that would normally remain frozen outside melts and the water seeps down into critical hollow areas.

Washing your new car has the same seeping effect.

Since rust starts from the inside of your car, it follows that in order to prevent rust, you must protect every critical hollow area with a chemical barrier that stops the moisture from getting to the metal. It's this exclusive chemical barrier that makes Ziebart the finest rustproofing anywhere.

How Ziebart does it.

Rather than to spray just the bottom of your car, or to protect the areas easiest to get at, Ziebart coats every critical area of your car with our special rustproofing sealant that will not crack or peel.

This is done with long nozzles that force the compound into every crack and seam by hydrostatic pressure.

In order to get at every critical area, Ziebart first drills small holes at strategic but inconspicuous spots around the car. Then the long pressure nozzles are inserted into the holes to spray every crack and seam.

The Ziebart sealant is a special patented formula developed by us. It is chemically adhesive to metal, liquid enough to seep into the seams and crevices, remains pliable for permanent protection, is an insulator, will withstand dirt, water and salt and will never harm plastic, rubber, glass, paint or upholstery.

Ziebart keeps abreast of the new styling changes in every model, every year. We do this so we'll know exactly where to protect on each car and so that we'll be able to effectively service every type and model of car, no matter what the make

All this care and concern with the quality of the rustproofing job we do makes it possible for Ziebart to guarantee that your car will not rust through for 10 years, no matter how many miles you put on it, if you have it Ziebarted before it is driven 3,000 miles.

It's dog-eat-dog in the toy business

Sizzlers for young boys

Anyone who has a child between age two and 12 knows what sizzlers and Baby Tender Love are. They're the hottest selling toys on the Christmas market this year and children are clammoring for them.

Nothing would please a child more than to find one of these items under his Christmas tree but to parents and managers of toy departments of these are becoming a headache.

Toy stores just cannot keep their shelves stocked with these popular items and angry parents, frustrated at running around the city in search of the elusive items, are creating headaches for store managers.

Roger Peirson, manager of the toy department at Simpson Sears, says that most of the Christmas toys are manufactured in Hong Kong and manufacturers often have to commit themselves 18 months in advance for quantities.

"They are always sold out before Christmas and each store is alloted only a certain percentage of the stock," he said.

Commercials on American television stations provide much confusion at Christmas time. Many of the advertisements offer attractive toys to children that can only be purchased in the United States. "How do you explain to a child that there is an American Santa Claus and a Canadian Santa Claus?", asks Zellers toy manager Linda Large.

Mrs. Large said it is "dog eat dog" in the toy business now and the fun and games aspect previously associated with Christmas and toys has become a vicious circle.

"I have actually had parents fighting over the last item on the shelf and in most cases they really don't know what the toy is. All they know is that their child wants it and they are determined to get it for their child." she said.

Almost all of the toy department managers in Oshawa agree that parents are not taking a close look at the toys their children want. They agree that pre-school children really don't know what they want and that parents should be buying sturdier toys for them.

While educational toys are popular all year round parents are buying more at Christmas. Fisher-Price toys are well-thought of in the toy business because they are sturdy, well-made and encourage the learning processes of a child.

Toy store managers say they are not stocking cheaper toys this year. Certain toys are sold only at Christmas time and if the toy breaks or needs replacement parts during the year the parent cannot find them. This problem creates a headache store managers are not prepared to bear any longer

The strike has had its obvious effects on toy sales. Mr. Peirson says

Gift ideas

About a pair of love birds, nude women and a desk-size sandbox

By Elaine Hallam
Staff reporter

Perplexed about what Christmas gift to get people who have everything?

Take heed, there are several stores in Oshawa that carry a line of items tailor-made for the frenzied gift-giver.

If you have a businessman on your list, Bowrings at the Oshawa Centre carries several "adult toys" including an executive sandbox. It sells for $10 complete with sand and is small enough to fit on a desk. Executives can use these in place of a pen or pencil or simply as a tension relaxer.

Other best sellers for adults are plexi-glass puzzles, magnetic concentrics and ring toss games all priced at about $10.

Montreal Draperies offers a complete set of bathroom accessories in a black and white "nudes" pattern, perfect for the woman who has everything for her home but whose bathroom needs a brightener.

Nude women from the ancient Greek period decorate toilet seats, shower curtains, waste baskets, kleenex boxes and soap dishes. The store manager said these items were a big seller.

Jogging has become the "in thing" for weight and health conscious people. Birks sells a pedometer which is a compact new device that accurately measures your walking distance at any speed. It straps securely to your ankle, waist or boot top and records up to 12 miles, measuring in quarter and half miles. It sells for $7.95.

The Grey House, at the corner of Celina and Bruce Streets, is a haven for people looking for unusual gifts. They sell everything in candles from birthday candles right up to eight-pound candles in the shape of a mushroom selling for $15.00.

"Fingermajigs", a new item sold at the Grey House are classified as "completely useless adult passifiers". They cost $1.50 and come in a variety of colors. The idea behind the use of a fingermajig is to squeeze the plastic item in the hand to relieve nervous tension.

And for the person who treats his dog better than his wife, there's a trip to the Pink Poodle Pet Shop where among other items you can purchase dog perfume, boots, coats and sweaters. Collars are also available in an assortment of shapes and sizes in velvet, leather and simulated diamonds.

Also available at the Pink Poodle for all mother-in-law haters are an array of man-eating pirahna.

The ultimate in furniture this Christmas is the bean-bag chair. They are being sold at Simpson Sears for $39.95 and are soft viny bags filled with beans that take the shape of a chair when sat upon.

For those who have absolutely everything I would suggest a pair of love birds in cages from the Pink Poodle for $62.50.

One of the most unusual gifts to be found in Oshawa is a complete bathroom accessory set in the black and white "nudes" pattern.

Seniors to tour Christmas scenery

One of the most popular and exciting programs planned for the festive season this year is the Annual Senior Citizens Tour of the Christmas Lights being sponsored by the Oshawa Recreation Department, the Oshawa Senior Citizens Club, the Rotaract Club of Oshawa and the Kiwanis Club of Oshawa.

As in past years, many Oshawa senior citizens look forward to this program each year because it provides them with an opportunity to once again enjoy the colourful lights that Oshawa residents have displayed on their homes and place of business. This year the tour is slated to get under way at 7 p.m. on Monday, December 21, 1970.

This tour is being offered to all residents of the City of Oshawa who are 65 years of age or are a member in good standing of a Senior Citizens Club in the city on a "first come — first served" basis with a tour capacity of 400 people. An added feature to the bus tour this year is the provision of a special bus by the Oshawa P.U.C. to hold wheel-chair patients so that these normally "shut in" people might get out in the community and enjoy the sights and sounds of Christmas.

Any senior citizen who is interested in participating in this tour is asked to fill out a registration form as early as possible so that they will not be disappointed. The deadline for registration forms to be handed in is Monday, December 14, 1970. Registration forms are available at the Senior Citizens Drop-In Club, at Hillsdale Manor, at Halliday Manor, at Owen Friend Apartments, at the Simcoe Hall Golden Age Club, at the Woodview Park Senior Citizens Club, at the Westmount Manor and at the Oshawa Recreation Department.

TOUR SCHEDULE:

The tour is scheduled to leave the marshalling area at Hillsdale Manor at 7 p.m. on Monday, December 21, 1970 and tour the city for an hour and a half arriving at the General Vanier Secondary School at 8:30 p.m. for light refreshments and lively entertainment provided by the senior citizens themselves. Members of the Rotaract Club of Oshawa are acting as bus hosts again this year and will be staffing the buses to assist the seniors on and off the bus to ensure that no one falls and injures themselves The Gama Epsilon Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi have volunteered their services to serve the light refreshments that more people are visiting his shop than last year but they are buying fewer toys.

While Christmas toy sales generally begin in early November the fever doesn't really hit the buyers until a good snowfall covers the city.

"Things were looking pretty slow until two weeks ago when we got our first snowfall," says Jerry White, owner of the Nursery Room.

Better Line

Mr. White says he finds it most profitable to stock the "better line of toys". He says dolls that are cheaply made are often dangerous. Canadian made dolls, he says, are the safest and sturdiest.

One of the newest and most expensive items toy departments are now stocking for Christmas are battery operated child-size cars that cost approximately $37.99. Managers are quick to add they don't expect to sell many of these items once Christmas is over.

Also popular this year are craft kits ranging in price from 50 cents to $40. A child can make anything from a beaded neck choker to an authentic replica of a Spanish Galleon ship.

A constant problem to salesmen in toy departments at Christmas is the damage done to toys on display.

"It seems parents just let their children run loose at Christmas in the toy department and they break everything in sight," says Mr. Peirson.

Once Christmas is over, these damaged items along with surplus toys that didn't sell before Christmas are put on sale and the toy department is reduced to half its size again until the Christmas fever strikes next year.

told friends.

The plan to erect a Beethoven statue in Bonn was carried out in 1845 with funds provided by Franz Liszt and others. The unveiling of the statue on Munsterplatz was watched by Queen Victoria and Albert, the Prince Consort, sitting with other royalty on the balcony of Count von Furstenberg's mansion, which is now the city's central post office.

A somewhat tipsy Liszt delivered a brilliant eulogy and when the wraps fell, the distinguished guests were confronted with the back of the statue. There ensued an awkward silence until someone said "That's not surprising, Your Majesty, when he was alive he was a rude fellow, too."

EATON'S

editorial

It's This Week's camera man's way of saying "Merry Christmas, Oshawa." Mao Ouyang snapped this sparkling beauty in the creek valley.

Tell someone, somewhere about it

Somewhere in a warm corner of everybody's mind there is a country Christmas.

You can see it. A sleigh squeaking down the farm house road through the windbreak of cedars with bells ringing. People stamping snow off their feet in the doorway and unwinding mufflers as they shout and laugh greetings to each other. A plump lady, her face pink from her labors at the wood stove, drying her hands on her apron, kissing her grown children one by one as they come home for the holidays.

The whole family squeezed together around the table on a collection of mismatched chairs, assembled for the occasion from parlour, kitchen, attic and barn. All the rich, steaming, tasty, home-grown, home-cooked food. Everybody leaning back in his chair, loudly resisting repeated offers of another helping.

Finally, lying in bed, on crisp, cool linen, covered with a patchwork quilt, a mosaic of cast-off dresses, bits of curtain, old shirts, scraps of memory. Through the frost-etched window a million brilliant stars light the silent, holy night.

It's a dream. An illusion. Most of us have never lived such a Christmas but it haunts us like a racial memory, a recollection of another life. It has a compelling fascination in its simplicity, warmth, it's embracing security.

It's a shame that we can't go back to that time, that place — if it ever existed. The world is crushing in about us. The dying Vietnamese are neighbors. Thousands of starving refugees are just up the road, in the modern perspective of time and space. Half the global neighborhood is hungry and ill. Their need intrudes upon our conscience.

We can escape their disturbing faces in our jingle-bell dreams. Or we can reach out to them with compassion and concern. We can celebrate this Christmas with the family of mankind. There are many ways to do it. Think about it. Tell someone, somewhere in the world, what is in your heart.

What kind of tree are you?

Christmas messages this time of year are easier to come by than even a common cold. Many of them are nothing but cheap talk. But out of every 100 or so there's an outstanding one.

We would like to present a message from President Jim Vessey of the Rotary Club of Oshawa in this week's club bulletin:

"Let us not forget that Christmas is a religious holiday. To those of us who profess the Christian faith, this is the celebration of the birth of the most unselfish man to ever walk this earth. We read that God is dead, that the Bible has no place in modern society. We submit to you that it is the minds of men that are dead, their eyes blind to the needs of the world and their ears deaf to the screams of suffering.

"Locally we've had a crippling strike on

Since this is Christmas week, this is a column of wishful thinking, good wishes and New Year's resolutions. Here's what we're wishing (some of it wishfully?) for and from the following Oshawa and area leaders:

Ed Broadbent, MP — "When I win the NDP leadership and the subsequent federal election, I will make Oshawa the capital of Canada and I will cause Parliament Hill to be moved to the Four Corners as a start on Oshawa's urban renewal project which will be financed totally through federal funds."

Cliff Pilkey, MPP — "I will cause to be passed in the legislature a private bill providing for the provincial government to build in downtown Oshawa its next six skyscrapers which same skyscrapers will be required to house the staff to administer the new labor legislation I intend to have approved."

Mayor Bruce Mackey — "I will have supper and lunch at home with my wife Donna for 31 days in a row, starting Jan. 1, and I promise not to break my legs at the Oshawa Ski Club."

Mayor-elect Ed McNeely — "I will appoint John DeHart chairman of a special committee in charge of press relations. Also, I will take the press on an urban renewal tour once a month, starting at the Tally-Ho room and ending at Harry's Hideaway — on my expense account."

The "remaining" aldermen — "We promise to deliver more foresight, less hindsight and fewer arguments about insignificances."

The "leaving" aldermen — "We promise to keep an eye on the new boys and girls."

Dr. C. E. McIlveen — "I will keep lobbying, the essence of politics, and I will keep buying up land for recreational purposes."

New council members — "We promise to do our homework and we won't claim we've been misquoted the first time we see one of our outlandish statements in black and white."

Ross Gibson — "I promise to take up a position on the Rundle Tower regularly, from where to contemplate the horizon which contemplating will prevent Oshawa from ending up the proverbial creek."

Board of education trustees — "For the next neighborhood association banquet at one of our schools, we will allow wine to be served as an experiment only; one glass per member. And we will have the school fumigated at the taxpayer's expense afterwards."

Public Utilities Commission — "For slow daytime periods we will hire ricksha's for public transportation, to be powered by those city busdrivers who are overweight."

Police Chief Jon Jenkins — "Mini-skirted meter maids will take over the present officer on the beat, come the first day of spring."

Mayor Desmond Newman of Whitby — "I will become the best friend the mayor of Oshawa ever had."

John Robarts — "I will be a candidate in the leadership convention after all."

Pierre Trudeau — "I promise to appear as a guest actor on Monty Python's Flying Circus. (Thursdays, 10 p.m. Channel 6, great stuff).

Robert Stanfield — I promise to appear with Pierre just to show anything he can do I can do better.

Tommy Douglas — "I promise, if defeated in my own riding, I won't lobby for a chance at a vacant seat in the following by-election."

UAW officials — "We will keep looking for ways and means to settle the next 100 contract disputes without a strike."

GM officials — "Same promise. And we also promise not to make the new Vega longer, lower, and wider."

Autoworkers — "We'll keep after both to accomplish their foregoing promises."

Staff of This Week — "We promise to have the coffee on and his desk clean and tidy when the editor arrives for work at about 10.30 to 11 a.m. or whatever time he finally does appear."

our hands — a classic example of man's inability to understand man.

"Nationally we have been racked by revolutionary forces. We have seen an innocent man murdered and another kidnapped and released. Desperate men are ready to tear our country apart because we lack the ability to understand each other.

"Internationally man is still set against his fellow man in Viet Nam, and Jew and Arab face each other in hostility.

"Let us not despair, for despondency at this time can be our greatest enemy. A recent editorial on the Quebec situation stated in part: — the crises has taught us that long decades of suppression, mismanagement, corrupt government, padlock laws and backward religion will continue to bear fruit. All over the world angry frustrated people are lashing out to end oppression. We have been bequeathed a situation which must not go mismanaged longer.

"During this Christmas season we will be surrounded by our families and loved ones, warm in the feeling of family love and well being. As Canadians, as Jews, as Christians, as agnostics or whatever faith we may profess, let us re-dedicate ourselves to world understanding and world peace and harmony.

"For no good tree bears bad fruit, nor again does a bad tree bear good fruit; for each tree is known by its own fruit. For figs are not gathered from thorns, nor are grapes picked from a bramble bush. The good man out of the good treasure of his heart produces good, and the evil man out of his evil treasure produces evil; for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaks." Luke 6: 43-45.

When you say 'Merry Christmas' you are merely quoting Dickens

As always, this Christmas season is going to prove to be yet another strain on an already staggering family budget.

In the wake of the strike, many Oshawa families really have to watch the pennies.

Yet, it seems to be that in most cases, families do manage to celebrate the festive season and to give and receive gifts, and generally have a "Merry Christmas".

The man who coined the phrase "Merry Christmas" found himself in very similar circumstances shortly before the Christmas of 1843.

Charles Dickens, after a meteoric rise to success with his David Copperfield, Pickwick, The Old Curiosity Shop, and Barnaby Rudge, had been to America, started a novel called The Life and Adventures of Martin Chuzzlewit, and returned to find himself very deeply in debt.

This was due to many factors. As with most financially successful men, his relatives were quietly leeching him. His large London house in Devonshire Terrace seemed to produce bills faster than his wife Catherine Dickens produced babies.

Sales of his later books were not reaching the high level of Pickwick, and Copperfield. Then, to make matters worse, his publisher was "Graspingly, shortsightedly tough enough to threaten to cut down the authors monthly allowance by one third."

Dickens was furious . . . trapped and desperate for money. He had to have another story fast, and, as it had to be a certain quick seller, he decided on a Christmas Story, and, out of the very need and greed it decried, A Christmas Carol was born.

Time was of the essence to stave off sundry creditors, so he lifted the plot for the story including "Tiny Tim" out of Mr. Wardle's tale in Pickwick.

The book was started in October, and what started out as a cold-blooded money maker was finished in a white heat of emotion that left Dickens ready to laugh or weep "With a moist and oystery twinkle" at the mere mention of the word Cratchit.

Because of the dispute with his publishers, they ended their business relationship. Dickens was to pay all the expenses himself and was to get all the profits. However, the entire profits a year later amounted to only $2,976.

"I am not only on my beam ends" he wrote "but tilted over on the other side. Nothing so utterly unexpected and utterly disappointing has ever befallen me".

As a solution to his money problems, the book was a failure . . . as a book which involved, and continues to emotionally involve the reader the "Carol" was a triumph.

Remember this when the television presentations bring a tear to your eye this Christmas. For with this little book he changed the World's attitude towards Christmas (for better or for worse).

For, when you say "Merry Christmas" you are merely quoting Charles Dickens.

Was there a Christmas Star?

By Jo Aldwinckle

What was the Star of Bethlehem?

The question is as old as the story of the Nativity. Some believe that it was as described in the gospel according to St. Matthew, "a bright star that suddenly shone forth for only the Wise Men to see".

Others suggest that it could have been the planet Venus; the close grouping of two or more planets; a shower of shooting stars; a bright comet; a brilliant meteor or fireball or even an Unidentified Flying Object from some other world.

Skeptics regard it as a myth, the direct result of the desire to seek religious signs and symbols in the sky.

Still others prefer to think that it was willed by God as part of the miracle of the Divine Birth. To many, it was an event that neither needs nor permits a scientific explanation.

Through the ages, by primitive means, astronomers and astrologers have searched for the explanation.

The riddle has not been solved but, thanks to the generosity of one man, Oshawa's Colonel R. S. McLaughlin, all of us in this area can see unfolded the majestic mystery of the heavens on the dome of the McLaughlin Planetarium.

The best scientific data on the Christmas Star has been correlated by Dr. H. C. King and with dramatic narration and music is being presented as a Christmas feature in the Theatre of the Stars until January 3, 1971.

On the theatre's huge dome, the Zeiss instrument, a science-fiction monster with 150 eyes, can project thousands of stars, the moon, the sun, the planets and swing us backward through space to the time of the Nativity.

In his guided tour of the heavens, Dr. King explains that the actual date of the Birth of the Christ Child is a matter of conjecture.

Historians have discovered errors in reckoning by early scholars. From old manuscripts little known facts have been established.

Just when?

"From St. Matthew's Gospel," says Dr. King, "we know that Christ was at least two years old in 4 B.C., so once again, the Nativity is narrowed to 7 or 6 B.C.

"Sometimes a star appears in the sky as if it had come from nowhere. It rapidly increases in brightness to rival the brightest of planets. This is called a Supernova, but there is no record of one occurring about the time of Christ's birth.

"So spectacular an object would have attracted great attention in many lands and would certainly have been recorded by the ancient Chinese who kept careful records of all major celestial events.

"The Chinese, however, did record a nova in 5 B.C. This is much less conspicuous than a supernova and would have been hardly arresting enough to pass as the long-awaited sign of the birth of the Messiah."

Dr. King then explained the recurring conjunction of the planets Jupiter, Saturn and Mercury, a phenomenon discovered by Johannes Kepler in December 1603. In October, 1604 near the triangle of planets, a new star shone forth with arresting brilliance.

The startling appearance of the star was sufficient to set many theologians, astrologers and others on a course of wild speculation. The star was likened to the Star of Bethlehem, which this time indicated Christ's second coming and the terrors of the Apocalypse.

This encouraged Kepler to follow up an idea that a celestial event, similar to that of 1604 had heralded the birth of Christ. The importance of planetary conjunctions in that connection had already been stressed by Isaac Abrabanel, a Portuguese Jew, born in 1437.

Saw three

Further reference to the triple conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn in 7 B.C. was made by the German chronologist C. L. Ideler, over a century ago. According to him, the first conjunction was the sign for which the Wise Men had been waiting and which started them on their journey to Jerusalem. They saw the second conjunction during the journey and the last as they travelled the five miles from Jerusalem to Bethlehem.

The astrologers, perhaps Jews associated with the famous school of astrology as Sippar, near Babylon, were greatly moved by the sight.

According to old Jewish traditions, Jupiter was a star associated with royalty; Saturn the protective star of Israel and the Sign of Pisces, a sign associated with the Messiah. They knew also that this was just the first of three closely-spaced conjunctions.

Here was a momentous celestial sign; one so compelling as to cause the astrologers, or Wise Men, to undertake the long journey to Judea, during which as they travelled south on the Hebron road to Bethle-

Christmas Cheer venture brings happiness to 500 families

Christmas will be made a lot happier this year for close to 500 needy Oshawa families thanks to the generous and hard work of the Christmas Cheer Committee.

Already more than 350 cheques are in the hands of people needing help during the holiday season. This week the committee is packing close to 300 food baskets containing everything a family needs for a Christmas feast.

Baskets contain everything from raisins to canned vegetables to candy for the children. A meat voucher is also included in the basket, redeemable for a turkey at any one of four locations.

Persons requesting help have been calling the Christmas Cheer Committee for the past few weeks. Requests will be taken care of until December 23 by calling 728-5881.

Mrs. R. Thomas, secretary of the committee, says that all persons asking for help will be taken care of. "We've never run out of supplies yet but sometimes we have to go out at the last minute and purchase more toys," she said.

The committee purchases its toy supplies in the spring. Each child is given a toy, perhaps, the only one they will receive at Christmas.

The help given at Christmas is dependent on the amount of money the Christmas Cheer Committee receives from the United Appeal. Volunteer assistance from the Salvation Army, church groups and home and school associations is a big help to the committee as well.

Partly responsible for the enormous success of the venture is the student body of McLaughlin Collegiate. Each of the 43 classes at the school is preparing a food basket. In addition the students will also be digging deep into their pockets to give a little of their Christmas money to the cause.

Last year the school donated close to $400.

"I think these young deserve a lot of credit for all the help they have given us. Their support has been tremendous," says Mrs. Thomas.

The Westmount Kiwanis Club will begin delivering the hampers tonight and will have reached all the homes by Christmas Eve.

PETITION

Residents of Grandview Street South presented the public works committee with a recommendation that sidewalk costs come from the current budget. Residents living on the west side of the street are objecting to paying for any of the construction costs for the pavement recently laid on their side of the street.

hem, they had the two planets almost directly ahead of them in the early evening sky.

This ingenious interpretation overlooks several important points. St. Matthew refers specifically to a star and not to two stars or a sign. Was the star seen only by the Wise Men? Why did nobody else mention the star?

It is small wonder that most believers are content to regard the Star as a miracle. Even so, an increasing number are of the opinion that St. Matthew introduced the star to heighten the sense of drama in the narrative he was unfolding.

The Christmas Star presentation at the McLaughlin Planetarium is directed by the curator Dr. King. Allan Small read excerpts from the scriptures; Robert Ballantyne arranged the curatorial sequence and the art work is by Bill Ireland.

Holiday hours

When to bank, take a bus, put out the garbage

The holiday season is here and with it the annual mixup in holiday deliveries, garbage collections and other necessary services.

To avoid confusion in the household This Week has compiled a list of holiday schedules for various services.

BANKS

Anyone thinking of doing last minute shopping on Christmas Eve had better get to the banks early. City banks will operate on normal schedules throughout the holiday season but will close at 3 p.m. on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. Trust companies will be closed the Saturdays after Christmas and New Years and will close at 3 on both Thursdays.

BREAD AND MILK

Ideal Dairy will not be making house deliveries on Christmas Day or Boxing Day or New Years. Oshawa Baker will halt deliveries on Dec. 25, 26, 28 and January 1. College Bakery will not be delivering on the 25th and 26th and January 1.

If you run out of milk or bread or party necessities the jug milk stores and some "corner stores" throughout the city will be open with regular hours seven days a week including Christmas Day

The PUC has announced holiday and Sunday scheduling will go into effect on Christmas and New Years day with only one bus route on Simcoe Street being serviced.

POST OFFICE

The Post Office is offering full service until December 24. There will be no service on Christmas Day and Boxing Day and limited service will be offered on Sunday and Monday. However, there will be no wicket service, no letter deliveries or postal deliveries on these two days. There will be one collection on Sunday and Monday.

LIBRARY

The Library will be open until 5 p.m. on Christmas Eve and will be closed on Friday and Saturday and open again on Monday with normal hours. New Year's Eve it will close at 5 p.m. It is closed on Wednesdays as usual.

ART GALLERY

Until Christmas Eve the McLaughlin Art Gallery will be open from 12 noon until 5 p.m. and will close on the 25th and 26th and New Year's Day. A special showing of wall hangings from the Art Gallery of Ontario will be featured during the holiday season.

GARBAGE

There will be no garbage collection after 12 noon on the 24th until Tuesday the 29th. If your garbage is usually collected on Thursday and Friday you may expect the garbagemen on Wednesday the 23rd. Garbage usually collected on Monday the 28th will be collected the next day, the 29th.

Garbage must be out by 7 a.m. during this time because the department hopes to get an early start during the holidays.

The city dump on Ritson Rd. North will close on the 24th at noon and reopen at 8 a.m. on the 26th.

TREE COLLECTION

Persons are asked to put out their Christmas trees along with their regular garbage during the week of January 11 to 15. Trees will be collected on the usual garbage days.

Spotchecks planned; when in doubt, take a taxi

Police are issuing the usual holiday warnings to motorists to drive with caution and respect for the other drivers.

Oshawa Police are carrying on spot checks during the next two weeks but Insp. Norman Smyth says he does not have enough manpower to carry out the type of spot checking the Metro Toronto police are doing

"We just don't have the manpower reserve the Toronto forces have and it is becoming more and more difficult every year to take men off their other duties and switch them to spot checking," says Insp. Smyth.

He says the policeman's job has been made easier by the 1970 breathalizer legislation which allows a policeman to pick up anyone suspected of consuming "too much alcohol".

"Before this law we could only pick up people who were falling down drunk. Now, of course, we can apprehend anyone suspected of overconsumption with reasonable evidence"

OPP

The Whitby detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police maintain continuous patrols of the 401 but do not do spot checks.

"It would be fairly difficult to carry out spot checks along the 401," says Constable Ed Laas.

He says the number of arrests for impaired driving is down considerably but that the officers will be "keeping a sharp eye out for impaired drivers".

He passes on the warning to motorists to drive as considerately as they would like others to drive.

The penalty for being charged and convicted of impaired driving ranges from a suspension of licence and fine to a jail term. To cautious drivers it is not worth taking the chance.

Careful motorists are advised to take taxis when in doubt. Oshawa taxi owners are expecting a sharp increase in business during the holiday season and warn people to allow themselves between a half an hour and 45 minute wait during peak times as New Years.

They will not take reservations for New Year's Eve and are advising customers to call in plenty of time.

Harry, 5, wants alarm clock

When five-year-old Harry Whally wakes up Christmas morning all he wants to find under his tree from Santa is a clock.

It seems Harry is perpetually late for his kindergarten class at Mary St. Public School every morning and as hard as he tries he just can't get up in time. His solution — an alarm clock!

Kindergarten teacher Hazel Gardiner took her class to see Santa Claus last week and the children kept their requests simple and few. Most of them asked for only one item they have been wishing for all year.

Take Tony Gordon for example. All he wants is a two-wheeler and he told Santa he expected to find it in a large paper bag under his tree. Tony has a birthday just six days before Christmas so he is certain he'll get his wish one way or another.

Christopher Hubbard wants a "big funny truck". He doesn't care what color or size it is as long as it is "funny".

Mandy Lewis wants a barbie doll. She has three of them already but she wants a "talking" barbie doll for Christmas this year.

Along with the usual Christmas stocking Jackie LeFriend would like Santa to bring her an "easy-bake oven" so she can make gum and cake. Gum and cake? "Those are my very favorite things," she replied.

Just to make sure that Santa remembers what they ordered the children drew pictures of their wishes.

Leslie Parsons (left) and Stephen Sykes starred in an original production written by J. C. McKee, a teacher at Ritson Public School. The 70-member cast was composed of grade six children from the school. The play entitled "The Christmas Masterpiece" was performed for parents last night.

42 girls will work Christmas Day for 'next best thing to being there'

If you can't be with your relatives on Christmas Day Bell Telephone reminds you that the "next best thing to being there" is a long distance phone call.

Approximately 42 Oshawa telephone operators will be on duty Christmas Day to help you wish your loved ones a Merry Christmas.

Ken Witherden, Oshawa area manager, anticipates the operators will handle approximately 4300 long distance calls and that over 16,000 direct dial calls will originate from Oshawa.

In previous years it was necessary to reserve a time slot to make a European call, but, for the first time this year no such booking is necessary.

Mr. Witherden reminds people that Christmas Day falls into the holiday category with low rate calling put into effect. He encourages people to direct dial, thus saving operator charges.

Because of changes made in the past year, it is now possible for some people to call certain communist countries this Christmas that they were unable to reach last year.

"Our operators will be able to reach pretty well any country in the world this Christmas," said Mr. Witherden.

He attributes this to technological changes such as the satellite system. In two years time he foresees direct dialing will be introduced for European calls.

Over the three-day holiday period he anticipates 26,000 overseas calls will be placed with approximately 65 per cent of the calls going to the United Kingdom.

All long distance calls placed in Oshawa are switched over to a Montreal overseas operator and handled from there.

The only flood of phone calls expected at New Year's is the annual barage that hits the switchboard at midnight from drunks wishing the operator a Happy New Year.

"In this case," quips Mr. Witherden," the only ting that is loaded is the caller."

LIGHTING

Residents on Cadillac Ave. North have sent a letter to city council requesting action from city hall in improving what they say is inadequate lighting on their street between King and Colborne Streets. The request was passed on to the Public Utilities Commission for consideration.

FURNITURE

The Oshawa Citadel Corps of the Salvation Army has asked the city for its used furniture for its two offices at 77 Celina St. Due to a shortage of funds has prompted this request for a filing and storage cabinet, two chairs and a desk.

All like this gift

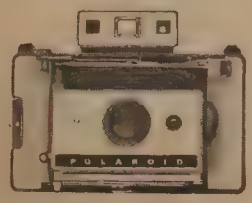
Settlement of the GM strike was probably Oshawa's biggest Christmas present in many years.

Here are some reactions from the man-in-the-street:

Charles Ritchie. Mr. Ritchie, shown with his four-year-old son Scott, says he is happy to be going back to work and is pleased with the contract. He says he thinks he has lost more than he will gain but at least will be able to give his four children a much happier Christmas. "I think it was a joint effort between management and union to get us back to work in time to enjoy our Christmas privileges."

"All I can say is I'm glad it's over," says

"Well I'm glad the strike is over. I've been waiting several months now to buy myself a new car," said J. C. Thompson. Mr. Thompson figures he will have to wait an additional five or six weeks before he will get his car. "I think the strike has had an effect on almost everyone in the city and I'm sure everyone is relieved it is over."



A. C. Phillips, an insurance agent, says the strike has affected the insurance business and is happy to see it over. "I have no doubt the strikers will have other obligations to meet when they get their first pay check, so we have extended credit to our good customers." He says he thinks it will be another two weeks before things are back to normal in his business.

Alex McDonald says he is happy to see the end of the strike but feels it could have ended several weeks sooner. "The union didn't get what they were after — parity with the States — so why didn't they settle sooner?"

"I believe in the right to strike, but I don't think the strikers got what they wanted."

TO READ TO THE CHILDREN

Shepherds see the light

Just outside Bethelehem in the field of Efratha are the shepherds and their sheep

The shepherds take turns staying awake — to keep the fire burning and to make sure no wild animals will come to kill and take away some of the sheep.

It's dark around them — and it's dark in their hearts too.

They're sad about the people of Israel, who are now being ruled by a foreign caesar. No longer is there a Jewish King on David's throne. There is no more glory, no national pride.

But that isn't the worst of it.

They're even more sad because it looks as if God has forgotten his people There are no more prophets to tell the people of better times ahead

There are the pharisees, yes, and they are the teachers of the day — but they themselves don't believe God's word.

When will the promised Messiah come?

It's no wonder the shepherds are sad.

But God knows these simple fellows. They are his children and he has heard their prayers.

He will bring them happiness.

Suddenly, the shepherds are jolted out of their dreamy half-asleep, half-awake world.

Look at that light. Where's it coming from?

No, it isn't the campfire, and it isn't even the sun in the sky, suddenly. It's much brighter.

The shepherds squint their eyes half closed, they cover their faces with their big rough hands.

And when the first one takes a careful peek, there in all his brilliance stands an angel.

Now they know where the light has come from. It's from heaven.

Are those shepherds afraid now . . .

Is God's messenger from heaven going to punish them because they're not able to keep all God's commandments?

But no, his voice is a happy voice.

"Don't be afraid," he says. "I bring good news for you and all your people. The long promised savior was born tonight. He was born in the city of David."

And before the shepherds can ask for direction, the angel continues, "you'll be able to find the baby by looking for it in a manger."

The shepherds have regained their nerve. They're no longer afraid. The words of the angel have disspelled all their fears.

God is good. For them there's no punishment, but mercy.

The savior is born. There is new hope for them and for their people. He is going to bring peace between them and God.

Are these shepherds ever happy!

But Listen — not only are the shepherds happy, the angels are happy too. Now that the savior has been born and there is going to be peace between God and the people, they can sing together before God.

Listen: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will to all men."

How many are there? Too many to count them The whole skyline is full of angels.

And they sing their hearts out. The sweetest music ever heard in Bethlehem's fields or anywhere in the world. The angels are singing God's glory, because God makes peace between himself and anyone saved by the babe of Bethlehem.

Never before has the birth of a royal child been announced in this fashion.

But then, never before has a child been able to bring peace into the heart of man.

Do the shepherds enjoy it all?

Oh, they wish it would always stay this way. They're so close to the angels now, so close to heaven.

But they can't. There's so much to be done yet.

This great concert is going to end.

Still singing, the angels disappear, higher and higher, until the shepherds cannot see them anymore, and then until they can't hear them anymore.

Then they have gone, and once more it's dark around the Bethlehem countryside.

But the shepherds won't ever forget it. Let no one ever tell them there isn't a heaven and there aren't any such things as angels. They have seen them and heard them, and nobody will ever be able to take that away from them.

Even though the earth is now dark once more, and even though the people of Israel have nothing to be proud of, and even though the foreign caesar rules the land, everything has changed, really.

For in the manger in Bethlehem, there's a child. This child is going to save his people. That's what the angel said.

"Let's go to Bethlehem," say the shepherds. "Let's go and see what has happened."

And they walk, then they run, then they're running as fast as they possibly can.

And what about the sheep? Who's going to care for the sheep?

They don't even worry about the sheep.

In Bethlehem they soon find the baby in the manger.

Christmas begins early in this village

By Jo Aldwinckle

Preparations for the yuletide season began early in November in Upper Canada's pre-Confederation era. The kitchen hearth was the heart of the pre-Christmas activities. The extra baking and roasting on a spit was done on an open log fire. The fireside was the one warm place in the house and in the firelight, the settlers made decorations and gifts from what Nature provided, wood and homespun yarn.

A visit to Black Creek Pioneer Village brings to life the arduous daily round of the early settlers.

When Elizabeth Fisher became the bride of Daniel Stong in 1816, her parents gave the young couple a tract of land. In a clearing, near Black Creek, Daniel built their first house of hand-hewn timbers.

Daniel's parents were Pennsylvania German settlers who had emigrated to Upper Canada when Daniel was eight years of age. Elizabeth's parents were the pioneers of nearby Fisherville.

The newlyweds' first home consisted of three rooms. The largest was the centre for family activities including food preparation, cooking (at the open hearth), eating and spinning.

Hanging from the beams, hams smoked; apple rings and plants from the herb garden dried, to be used for food, medicine, scent and flavor.

Daniel cleared the land and other settlers came. In the village today five of the Stong Farm buildings, constructed between 1816 and 1832, are still standing on the origianl site. The 15 others have been moved from their original, nearby sites, restored and furnished to show the progress of a village to 1867.

Salt pork was one of the settlers' main sources of meat. Daniel built a piggery to serve as a shelter for the hogs.

Then he built a smoke house in which to cure the meat. This was soaked in brine for several weeks, then hung on hooks in the

A special notice to Tenants and Landlords

Tenants in apartment buildings should receive a cash payment from their landlords this month under the terms of the Government of Ontario's Residential Property Tax Reduction Program.

The payments are designed to ease the burden of municipal and education taxes on tenants and homeowners. In effect, the Province is paying part of the property taxes for each eligible house and apartment.

If you are a tenant, you should receive your tax rebate from your present landlord on or before December 31, 1970. Tenants who have occupied their present premises for less than a full year should receive a pro-rated rebate equal to one-twelfth of the total reduction for each month's tenancy.

Tenants who moved out of their premises earlier in the year should have also received a pro-rated payment within 30 days of moving. If you have not received this rebate, contact your previous landlord.

Tenants of flats or basement apartments in houses may not qualify because the premises they rent are not separately assessed. For example, roomers are not eligible. If you are unsure of your status or eligibility, contact your municipal tax office.

Elderly people eligible for the Residential Property Tax Reduction payment as tenants of separately assessed dwellings may also have received benefits under the Government of Ontario's 1970 program of Tax Assistance for the Elderly. (Those entitled to the Federal Guaranteed Income Supplement).

The Municipal Subsidies Branch is available to help landlords and tenants with any problems concerning the program, including those pertaining to the payment of the rebate. Telephone Toronto (416) 363-7501 or write:

rafters while a slow-burning fire of green maple, hickory or dry corn cobs burned in a huge iron kettle.

In 1825 Daniel built a grain barn with a double threshing floor and two large hay or grain mows. Here he kept his agricultural implements, including flail, grain cradle, scythe, harrow and ploughs. The granary provided storage for wheat, flax and peas.

By 1832 Daniel and Elixabeth had six children. The family had outgrown the three-room cabin so Daniel built a fine two-storey home of hewn timbers covered with clapboard siding. It had front and back stairs and the focal point of the kitchen was the large brick fireplace with built-in bake oven.

Now, through the offices of the Metropolitan Toronto and Region Conservation Foundation, Black Creek Village is almost complete.

It contains Fisherville Church, Presbyterian, built in 1856, simply furnished with box pews. The exterior is a fine Ontario example of Greek Revival architecture and the building was given to the village by the United Church of Canada.

Flour mill

Roblin's Mill is in operation, powered by a water wheel and capable of producing 100 barrels of flour daily.

Boasting a modern dining room downstairs, the Half-Way House was a stage coach stop on the Toronto to Kingston Road and provided accommodation for travellers and boarders. It was a busy centre where excellent food and drink were served to the villager or farmer as he waited to meet a friend, have a horse shod or grain ground at the nearby mill.

On the wall of the tap-room were these Rules of This Tavern: four pence a night; six pence with pot luck; no more than five to sleep in one bed (when the inn was crowded, strangers often had to share a bed); no boots to be worn in bed; no peddlers or tinkers taken in; no dogs allowed in the kitchen; organ grinders to sleep in the wash house.

The dining room is open every day during the summer. A typical menu: spiced apple cider, crusty loaf bread with homemade butter, Upper Canada pea soup with bacon, pioneer chicken stew, tossed salad greens with dressing, deep-dish apple pie with Canadian Cheddar cheese, tea, coffee or milk, $2.95. Or, smoked ham on a crusty roll with dill pickle, 95 cents; children's peanut butter and jam sandwich, 40 cents; afternoon tea with cookies or crusty bread with butter, jam and tea, 75 cents.

Closed for the winter, Black Creek Village will be re-opened around April 20. It's certainly worth a visit, as a number of Oshawa students have found on class tours.

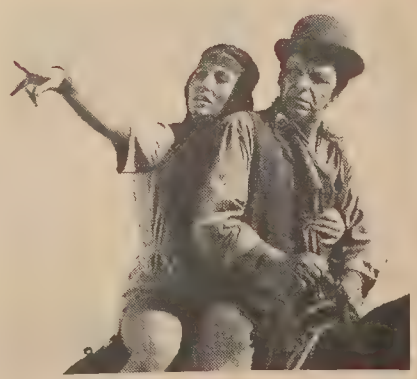
Traditional and experimental wall hangings now at gallery

By Paul Bennett, Director



For the Christmas season the Robert McLaughlin Gallery is displaying a Wall Hangings Exhibition that was organized by the Art Gallery of Ontario. There are thirty of these hangings, in both traditional and experimental styles, their average size is 6 feet by 9 feet, and the exhibition will be open to the public from the evening of December 15th until January 3rd, 1971.

The accompanying information on this exhibition states — "Art and craft of this century, particularly in the last twenty years, have gone through a startling and challenging metamorphosis. New evaluations between artists and craftsmen have resulted in lines being crossed between hitherto sacred territories. Breaking with accepted tradition, both artisans and artists have become creative designers. The ancient craft of textiles — cloth and fibre — is no exception in the hands of contemporary artists.

This exhibition comprises over 30 wall hangings by contemporary Canadian artists, varying in technique from traditional to experimental, with three dimensional as well as two dimensional hangings' capturing forms and images in a veritable metaphor of thread.

The Gallery thought that this exhibition of wall hangings, with the warmth and brilliance of colour and texture, would be a suitable display over the Christmas season.

Generals wallop 'em on Christmas Eve

By Jim Bishop
sports editor

The parking lot lights were just a blur through the whirling snow as some three thousand hockey fans jammed the tiny ticket office and lobby area of the Civic Auditorium. The air of excitement was as evident as the storm that was howling. But nobody complained. This was the night before Christmas and the Generals were to do combat with the mighty Canadiens

What a present it would be for the fans to have their hometown Gens knock off the big red machine from Montreal

Inside the rink, all was ablaze with light as one of the more highspirited, (in more ways than one), hockey afficionados greeted the patrons in his Santa suit. The rate at which the concession girls were dispensing hot dogs and coffee made one wonder what would become of all tomorrow's Christmas turkey and other seasonal gastronomical delights that abound this time of year

Suddenly, the resonant voice of Don Allman, the Oshawa wizard of public address pealed out, "Good evening, ladies and gentlemen. Welcome to OHA Jr. A. hockey from the Civic Auditorium. Tonight's visitors are the Montreal Junior Canadiens. There are no lineup changes and if you will kindly stand, the National Anthem will be sung by that well-known Oshawa duet, William Kurelo and Harold Woodcock."

As the last strains of 'O Canada', (which incidentally, sounded more like a cross between 'O Come All Ye Faithful' and 'She Taught Me To Yodel'), died, the fans let out a tremendous cheer. Referee Frank Sloda headed for the centre ice face-off spot while linesmen Bob Nadin, and Blair Graham neither of whom are as spry as they used to be), hobbled and creaked to their respective blue-lines. The centres came to the circle, the puck was dropped and the game was under way

I think we'll let the opening minute be described in the words of Oshawa hockey broadcaster, 'Silverthroat.'

"Thank you, Bob, and hello again, hockey fans. With 59 minutes and 58 seconds remaining in the hockey game, the puck is cleared into the Generals end, direct to Ted McComb in the Oshawa net A wave of Montreal players break in after the puck. McComb looks up and fires the puck to the other end of the rink and the Montreal goaltender is not looking. He scores! McComb! Right from his own goal crease and the other goalie was caught napping. Is that the way you saw it, Bob?"

"Thank you, Silverthroat, but I don't think he was napping and Christmas Eve or o Christmas Eve, don't try to tell me that you didn't see that extra-super maximum mini-skirt right behind the Montreal net".

Thank you Bob, but no I didn't see that perfect 38-22-36 in Section 1, Row C, Seat 4, wearing her nine-year-old sister's sweater".

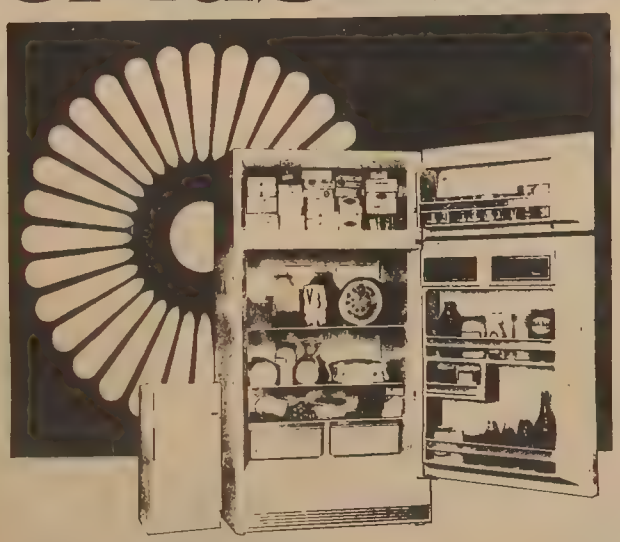
"Thank you, Silverthroat, I guess you didn't see her after all. But it would appear that the young goaler from Montreal did as he had his back to the play".

Well, that's pretty much how the greatest rout in the history of junior hockey in this province started and from there the flood gates just came wide open.

14-1

At the end of the first period, the count stood at 14-1 in Oshawa's favor. One of coach Reigle's key moves had to be the insertion of the team's other goaltender, Gilles Gratton, at centre ice. Gratton, even though he was encumbered by all that bulky goalie equipment, and wearing a touque from the Quebec Winter Carnival, scored three goals and assisted on seven others. Wayne Newton, recently returned from the Whitby Jr B.'s picked up a pair of goals and when Jumpin' Jack Lynch scored his fourth of the period, it required the referee, two linesmen, the entire arena staff, the snorkel truck from the Oshawa Fire Department, the entire cheerleading staff of Durham College and three sticks of peppermint candy to get him down from the rafters of the rink. The other four goals were scored by two new recruits to the team, Harold Fitsnarus and Peter McMaumau, in a variety of ways. Two were such violent shots that they went right through the goalie's glove, one caromed off a sportswriter's head as he was staring at a bevy of 'teeny boppers' directly below the press box and the other was a bad call by the ref. It seems that when he tripped over his own skatelace and fell into the net, the extra puck fell out of his pocket and since the guy can't see too well anyhow, he didn't realize that the visitors had scored at the other end of the rink.

Back to the broadcast booth:



"Well, thank you Bob. It certainly was an interesting first period. Let's hope that the Junior G-men can hang onto this slim lead. It certainly looks like Ed Reigle's strategy is going to pay off."

Thank you, Silverthroat. It certainly was a great move, spiking the water bottles. Although I think that the thing has been passed around the arena a few times. However, the boys are off to a great start and if they can continue this type of play should be a shoo-in for the playoffs and a shot at the Memorial Cup. Well, we're ready for the start of the second period, so over to you, Silverthroat."

And so it went for the rest of the game. The Generals could not do a thing wrong and the visitors could do nothing right. The crowd was so excited that there was only one cry of "Dummy" from the Booster Club section during the Well maybe, if you had as much Christmas spirit as I have, (both kinds, that is), you could have written something as fanciful as this.

But, I tell you one thing. If I had the money and the power to give really exciting presents, this would be my gift to the coach and team of our beloved Generals. Let's hope Santa thinks the same way.

How many wise men? Answers many

Three wise men?

In New Testament stories of the Nativity, only St. Matthew tells of "wise men from the east" — and how many wise men followed the star to the manger is not stated. The tradition that there were three probably comes from St. Matthew's description of three gifts — gold, frankincense and myrrh.

Another explanation for the number three is the legend that the wise men symbolized all humanity, in turn represented by the races of Shem, Ham and Japhet, according to the editors of The New Book of Knowledge.

Early traditions mention varying numbers of wise men. Twelve was the number traditional in the Eastern church, while in the West, mosaics and paintings showed sometimes two, sometimes three, four or more wise men.

During the sixth century, the idea that there were three came to be generally accepted. In legends, the wise men were given names: Melhior, Gasper, Baltasar.

Although St. Matthew did not use the name "Magi", he implied it when he wrote of "wise men" for "magi" was commonly used in Palestine to mean "great, illustrious."

Today, Nativity scenes show three wise men or magi present at the manger along with the shepherds, who hastened to Bethlehem on the night Christ was born. Some historians, however, believe that the visit of the Magi didn't take place until much later — perhaps a year or even two years after the birth of Christ.

Try these

For children, much of the fun of any holiday is the anticipation.

One of the gayest and newest ideas for Christmas is an enchanting candy and cooky carousel surrounded by sugar plum goodies.

Fit a piece of aluminum foil into each of 2 (9-inch) layer cake pans, covering bottom and sides and extending beyond rim of pan. Prepare lollipop mixture and immediately pour into prepared pans, about 2/3 the mixture into one and 1/3 the mixture into the second.

When thicker layer has set enough to support them (about 5 minutes), stand 6 dowel sticks (each 5½ inches long, ¼-inch in diameter) upright in candy equal distances around edge of pan, and alternating one inch and two inches in from edge. If necessary, support sticks with hands a few seconds, or until firm. Sticks must be straight and tops even to support top of carousel. To test arrangement of sticks, try balancing an empty cake pan on top of sticks. Let set until candy layer is cold and hard. Lift off foil, then remove foil. Place on flat plate. Wrap ribbon around dowels. Remove second (thinner) candy layer from pan. Remove foil and balance on sticks.

Why most 'rustproofing' is a waste of money.

Today, when you go out to buy a new car, you're offered every conceivable option, accessory and extra that the dealer can think of suggesting.

One of the most widely accepted of these options is dealer undercoating, sometimes called "rustproofing", by the more imaginative dealers in the business.

Ziebart Auto • Truck Rustproofing was the pioneer in the business of protecting new cars from corrosion and rust. And we know that genuine rustproofing is one of the most important things a new car should have.

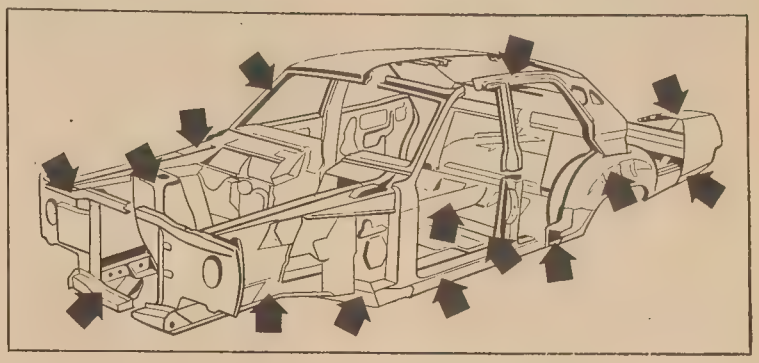
However, before you can make a decision as to who you want your car rustproofed by, we think you should know all the facts.

What is rust?

There are many popular misconceptions regarding rust and Ziebart would like to clear a few of them up.

1. All rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. These are two things impossible to avoid on the roads.

2. The most dangerous rust starts on the inside of your car, in hidden seams, crevices and hollow areas.



3. Most people believe that salt is the major cause of rust. This is not so. Salt will not cause rust by itself, but it accelerates rust and will quicken the damage.

4. Keeping a car in a heated garage during the winter causes the car to rust even faster. This is because the ice that would normally remain frozen outside melts and the water seeps down into critical hollow areas.

Since rust starts from the inside of your car, it follows that in order to prevent rust, you must protect every critical hollow area with a chemical barrier that stops the moisture from getting to the metal. It's this exclusive chemical barrier that makes Ziebart the finest rustproofing anywhere.

How the Ziebart process works.

Rather than to spray just the bottom of your car, as is done in undercoating, or to protect the areas easiest to get at, as is usually done in dealer and service station "rustproofing", Ziebart coats every critical area of your car with our special rustproofing sealant that will not crack or peel.

This is done with long nozzles that force the compound into every crack and seam by hydrostatic pressure.

In order to get at every critical area, Ziebart first drills small holes at strategic but inconspicuous spots around the car. Then the long pressure nozzles are inserted into the holes to spray every crack and seam.

The Ziebart sealant is a special patented formula developed by us. It is chemically adhesive to metal, liquid enough to seep into the seams and crevices, remains pliable for permanent protection, is an insulator, will withstand dirt, water and salt and will never harm plastic, rubber, glass, paint or upholstery.

Ziebart keeps abreast of the new styling changes in every model, every year. We do this so we'll know exactly where to protect on each car and so that we'll be able to effectively service every type and model of car, no matter what the make.

All this care and concern with the quality of the rustproofing job we do makes it possible for Ziebart to guarantee that your car will not rust through for 10 years, no matter how many miles you put on it, if you have it Ziebarted before it is driven 3,000 miles.

What does it mean to you?

In addition to the obvious benefits derived from having a new looking car for a lot longer than you thought you would, the Ziebart process can mean a lot more to the new car buyer.

For instance, the trade in value on a car that has been Ziebarted is substantially higher than on one that has not.

Another thought to consider is safety. Although you can't see it, rust on a three or four year old car has usually begun to eat away at vital mechanical parts. A three year old hydraulic brakeline can fail when weakened by rust.

Many men give the car to their wives when it becomes four or five years old. If the car has not been Ziebarted when new, it could very well be a deathtrap because of the rust that's been eating away since it was bought.

Where to find out more.

You'll find a Ziebart dealer in the White Pages under "Ziebart". He'll be happy to make an appointment for you to bring your car in for a complete Ziebart Rustproofing job.

The Ziebart process takes a full day or more, admittedly longer than other so-called "rustproofers" because we do the job properly.

If you've just bought a new car, or are thinking about buying one, be sure and contact us.

And don't forget to show this ad to your own car dealer. He might be interested to find out what RUSTPROOFING really means, himself.

Generals return present the day after

The Generals Booster Club gave the team a present of a Christmas party Saturday night and the club returned the favor to their fans and coach on Sunday.

After playing one of the worst games of the season Friday in Kitchener, the team came back at home with one of the best third periods they have ever had. The Generals lost 5-2 Friday in a complete lacklustre effort. The boys looked as if they had been given a 4 am curfew and lived up to it. Bill Barber, Chuck Blair, Tom Cassidy, Bruce Herridge and Duffy McCarthy each tallied for the Rangers and two Oshawa defensemen, Gerry Methe and Rob Kirk were the only Generals to solve the goaltending of Glen Seperich.

On Sunday, at the Auditorium, the Generals overcame a 2-0 first period deficit to beat the Kitchener team by the same 5-2 count. The Rangers and Generals spent the first frame just sort of feeling each other out before Kitchener opened the scoring on a screen shot by Ted Scharf at the 32-second mark of the second period. Bill Barber gave the Rangers a 2-0 lead just past the midway mark of the period before Terry O'Reilly put the Gens on the Scoreboard to leave the home team down only one goal going into the final period.

In that period it was all Generals as they put everything together, the Hitting, the shooting and plain hustle. Tom Simpson notched goals 19 and 20. Sullivan and Methe with his 13th got the other goals. Methe's goal made him the league's highest goalscoring defenseman to date.

It was nice to see Coach Reigle smiling for a change after a game. He commented that he was happy the boys played as a team and the fact they finally started to hit. He declined to single out any one player but said they all gave an outstanding effort.

The party given to the team by the Booster Club on Saturday was a complete success. The affair was attended by about 50 fans. Santa Claus was on hand to give each member of the team, including the club president, the coach, and trainers a comical gift in addition to something serious.

At the head table, presided over by president Madeleine Ashmore, were Mayor and Mrs. Bruce Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. Russ Humphreys, Mr. and Mrs. Matt Leyden, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Reigle, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Ashmore and the three captains, Terry O'Reilly, Gerry Methe and Warren Anderson.

During the speech period, one main thought was evident. That the Generals could and will do better as the season progresses

The Booster club, which has to the most loyal group of fans anywhere is to be commended for the excellent party and dance and for its show of spirit to the team.

Santa presents team physician Dr. Charles McIlveen with his new pair of running shoes so he can get to the medical room quicker. It's a scene from the Oshawa Generals Booster Club party.

Crushmen win on weekend

The Oshawa Crushmen came up with a pair of important wins over the weekend as they dumped the Cobourg Cougars, 4-2 and the Belleville MacFarlands, 9-0.

Dennis Higgins had to turn in a superb effort to get the home towners the victory over the scrappy Cobourg team, Friday at the Auditorium. John Grant, Alan Bathe, Chris Bone and Larry Hopkins each tallied for the Crushmen. Dave Peers and Wayne Helps scored for the Cougars.

On Sunday, at Belleville, Higgins was again the key man for the Crushmen as they walloped their opponents 9-0. There was only one shot difference between the teams and the young Oshawa goaler was equal to his task.

Steve West and John Grant each scored the hat-trick for Oshawa with singles going to Jim Robson, Eric Howard and

Dear Santa:

I don't really want too much for myself for Christmas, but the spirit has hit me and I would like to take this opportunity to ask you for a few things for the needy of the sports world.

For the Generals, I would like a big forward who can score goals, a defenseman who is not afraid to bounce people around a bit, and enough wins to get the team in the playoffs.

For their Booster Club, I would like you to find enough people to fill their buses for the road games.

For Bill Kurelo, Auditorium manager, I would like ten consecutive crowds of more than three thousand.

For Durham College, a win at basketball.

For Peter Brouwer, my editor, no elections for a while.

For the Crushmen, a few crowds of more than one thousand.

For the Toronto Maple Leafs, well Santa, I don't know if even you can perform great miracles, but try and make a hockey team out of them.

For the Green Gaels, the return of Jim Bishop. (The other one, stupid).

For Bobby Orr, nothing. (What could he possibly need).

For the Argonauts, anything at all will help.

For the baseball Legionnaires, that their only left-hand pitcher loses fifty pounds and their trainer, twenty.

For Tom Douglas, ex of This Week, to stay out of the way of runaway wallabys and kangaroos.

For the Expos, a spot in the first division.

For my bartender, a larger supply of ice.

For Derek Sanderson, a renewal of his 'Playboy' subscription (Me, too).

For the Income Tax people, a raise for me.

For me, just make sure that all my friends and readers have a happy and joyous Christmas. Ho. Ho. Ho.

Mayor reviews two years of "good government"

What has "city hall" done for the taxpayers of Oshawa during the term of the 1969-70 council?

Best man to ask is Mayor Bruce Mackey who will be handing over the reigns to Mayor-elect Edward McNeely, come the new year.

At city council's last full meeting, Mayor Mackey had planned to present a full review of city hall activities during the past two years. But the busy agenda of that meeting left no time for his worship to deliver his closing address.

Here's the address, in highlight form:

February 1969 — Provided funds in amount of $150,000 in budget for construction of Phase 111 of the Civic Auditorium.

June 1970 — Granted an additional $100,000 to Phase 111 and this sports stadium is now nearing completion.

February 1969 — Senior Citizens Centre officially opened.

September 1969 — Council adopted a new emergency snow clearing plan.

October 1969 — Approved construction of a new $3 million Police Building, now under construction.

October 1969 — Approved construction of 1st phase of twin-pad arena in Harman Park.

March 1970 — Approved construction of 2nd phase of twin-pad arena.

October 1970 — Twin-pad Harman Park Arena officially opened.

September 1969 — Unfortunate illness of Mayor Murdoch.

November 1, 1969 — Mayor Mackey assumed office and Alderman McIlveen became controller, with Russ McNeil moving up to Alderman.

November 1969 — Decision to purchase 145 acres of land in Camp X from Federal Government at a cost of $410,000.

December 1969 — Adopted a 9-point program to stream-line Council procedures.

December 1969 — Approved construction of 143-bed addition to Hillsdale Manor at cost of $1,7 million, with 50% of cost to be paid by City and 50% by Province — and construction was commenced in 1970.

February 1970 — Approved the establishment of a Youth Drop-in Centre in Legion Building.

November 1970 — Approved a 1971 budget of $27,000 for Youth Drop-in Centre.

April 1970 — The Mayor, together with Mayors of other automotive centres, met with Mr. Pepin, Minister of Transport re: Auto Pact.

April 1970 — Passed the current budget which held the line on taxes for Mr. Average taxpayer.

April 1970 — Agreed to participate jointly with Town of Whitby in construction of Corbett Creek Pollution Control Centre and an agreement has been signed with the Town of Whitby. Necessary by-law has had 2 readings. Harmony Creek expansion plant now ready for tenders. These two projects will result in the expansion of the trunk sewer system for the City and the surrounding areas and this means the City can react quickly to development pressures as they occur.

April 1970 — Council rezoned lands for a Nursing Home development on Thornton Road South, which alleviates a pressing social problem in our City.

May 1970 — Established a Family Counselling Service for the City of Oshawa.

June 1970 — Transferred lands in Second Marsh to Federal Department of Transport for harbor development.

June 1970 — Decided to submit a bid for 1973 Canada Summer Games. Although the city was informed in August that bid was unsuccessful, nevertheless it established a sound basis for bid for 1977 Games, when they should be held in Ontario.

July 1970 — Established a new Department of Planning and Development — which started to function on November 2nd, 1970.

July 1970 — Adopted Murray V. Jones Urban Renewal Scheme for downtown core.

July 1970 — Adopted a new Official Plan for City of Oshawa.

The big mesh

Education officials review "two years of struggle" and keep facing the problem of "improvement versus cost to taxpayer"

By Elaine Hallam
Staff reporter

Out of every tax dollar spent in Oshawa in 1970 40 cents went toward education. While this amount may seem high, Stan Lovell, chairman of the Ontario County School Board says in many cities of comparable size in Ontario this amount is much higher.

Part of the credit for keeping expenses down, according to Mr. Lovell, should be given to the 22-member board of elected officials. With the inception of the county board system, two years ago, streamlined boards of education emerged, saving duplication of staffing, school boards and offering equalized educational opportunities across enlarged systems.

Struggle

January 1, 1971 marks the end of the first two-year term of the new board, ending what Mr. Lovell calls two years of struggle to mesh 22 prior boards of education, their staff, accounting systems and teachers into one working unit.

"Now that the ground work has been laid for the new system we (the board) are looking forward to exciting and progressive years ahead in the educational opportunities we can offer the people of Ontario County," says Mr. Lovell.

The main function of the school board as Mr. Lovell sees it, is to co-operate with the educational officials and to try and determine if large sums that are directed toward education are bringing in a justifiable return.

"Of course, it is very diffcilut to determine if we are turning out a better student than before and a very subjective decision has to be made," claims Mr. Lovell.

One of the most difficult tasks facing the school board says Mr. Lovell is dealing with people who are both parents and taxpayers.

"Naturally as parents they want the best and the most for their children but, as taxpayers they don't always want to foot the bill for these advances."

Over the last two years the Board of Education has made advances in many areas of education previously not thought of.

15 specials

Ken Munro, associate director of education, says that one of the biggest advances made by the board was the addition of 15 special education classes, six of which are designed to help perceptually handicapped children.

Five "assessment teachers" have been hired to help diagnose learning problems of the children within the county system and then direct the teacher as to the type of programs they should use for the child. An expanded speech program has also been introduced.

Two psychologists have been added to the County staff over the last year. They are available to all teachers and students within the county as consultants.

All grade seven and eight pupils in the county are now receiving instruction in conversational French and a substantial number of grades four, five and six are continuing to receive instruction.

"It is our intention to expand this program as far as possible in the new year as long as the budget permits," says Mr. Munro.

Upgrading is down

While the board has introduced an increased number of courses available under the adult education program Mr. Munro says less and less interest is being shown in "upgrading courses" such as mathematics, English and science. More and more people are registering for "interest programs" such as dressmaking, cooking and woodwork.

"This may be due to the fact that people can now be paid by Manpower to take retraining courses during the day," claims Mr. Munro.

The introduction of audi-visual equipment to all schools in the county in the next year or two is one of the "early goals" of the board. Plans call for all schools to be equipped with television sets so they may have access to the educational channel 19, by 1972.

"All standard pieces of audio-visual equipment such as 16 m.m. projectors, record players and overhead projectors are now available to all schools and the expanded film library is also available to all schools," says Mr. Munro.

Previous to this year, kindergarten classes had not been available to all areas of the county. An expanded kindergarten program, introduced this year, now makes the classes available to all children within the system.

Looking ahead to the new year, Mr. Munro hopes to develop a "substantial change in student attitude to students in secondary schools not turned on by their courses".

Better teachers

He hopes to achieve this in part by introducing individual timetables whereby a student may select courses of a level and kind they will hold and maintain his interest and will motive him to achieve within the system.

"One of the most significant changes made within the school system within the last year is the availability of more qualified staff to the students. The general level of competency of teachers has increased considerably over the last two years," claims Mr. Munro.

The introduction of outdoor education has proven both popular and practical and the continuation of this program is one which will be given priority by the board in the new year.

"As trite as it sounds it is also our objective to do a better job than ever before of teaching reading to elementary school children." "This," claims Mr. Munro, "is a constant problem."

The next years will continue to be trial periods for the board of education according to the officials. They will be faced with the task of the precedent they have set of keeping the expenses of the taxpayer to a mimimum while at the same time offering an expanded program.

editorial

Of seven months and then some

At the year's end most of us do a little bit of soul searching. The pause of the holidays, the special touch brought on by Christmas and the fact that many of us find we finally have a little time to take a new close look at our families and a chance to make new friends and to renew friendships — all help to bring on the setting for a review of the past year and a stock taking to see what's required to make the new year a whole lot better. (Our first resolution, right now, is to write shorter sentences in the year 1971).

In these columns during the past seven months a lot of items have passed the revue. In all 32,500 households where This Week first appeared on the doorstep on May 27, fathers, mothers, sons and daughters, aunts an uncles, grandpa's and grandma's, spinsters and bachelors asked a "now what?" This Week? What about last week? Or next week?

We've had a lot of fun with our name, and that goes especially for our advertising salesmen. "I don't want an ad this week, This Week, but in next week's This Week, I would like . . . , Oh well, yes . . . draw me up something." (Editorial will no doubt get it in the neck for this comment, because admen insist that's not how it is done).

We've had a lot of fun with our readers too; especially when after a few months of prodding and even getting some of you upset and downright mad at us, or even on occasion in total agreement, you took time to sit down and write us letters. Many This Week readers have written. Some threw darts, others handed out laurels. All made a very significant contribution. (We will repeat our regular let's-have-your-letter-message right here: it's your paper, so use it! Get up on your soapbox!)

When we took a stand on labor-management relations and said the strike is a juvenile weapon, an excellent debate ensued, with a number of knowledgeable readers taking part, fully. It certainly did not help settle the GM strike, or any other strike, but perhaps it did help make a few people think about this thorn in Oshawa's otherwise pretty thick hide.

When we "accompanied" a couple of Oshawa kids on a free-loading trip to the west coast (at your expense, through the department of welfare) the reaction from readers was a mixed one. Gordon Sinclair on CFRB followed up with an "how about that" and the cabinet minister in charge of welfare passed the article on across the country. Even now we cannot believe we've heard the last of that one.

The women's lib girls and the telephone operators too shot back at us with a number of darts — some very sweet indeed.

We really got into it over the War Measures Act. A great debate erupted. But after a few weeks we all got to understand the whole thing a little better.

We incurred the wrath of some Whitby officials with our suggestions that Oshawa rent the town council its city hall council chambers to save Whitby having to build its own and when we came out in support of Oshawa's approach to have a merger study (Oshawa-Whitby) done as part of the current regional government study, there were some who threw bricks at us, saying we didn't know what we were talking about.

We looked at pot and we looked at policemen, and we looked at the kids of the drop-in centre. We saw a lot of very beautiful things in Oshawa.

We cried with you, we laughed together, and smiled, we chuckled, we hollered, some say we screamed and on occasion we got really furious.

When the municipal election approached, we chose not to beat around the bush. That too brought forth considerable reaction.

We even managed to upset some of our readers with a column or two from Sports Editor Bishop. (Although we know Bishop each week has more fans than anyone in Oshawa what with all those youngsters in their NASC games.)

We helped sell your old cars and junk from the attic and rugs, and even a lobster-trap through our classified section. We brought more and new customers for those Oshawa and Whitby merchants who use us regularly to improve business.

We survived a strike with you. That, frankly, was something that scared the living daylights out of us. Could we in our infancy pull through? Or were we going to be the first to go? Well, we're here — the strike's over!

Premier John Robarts asked for a special copy of our paper that contained an editorial on prophylactics. The Oshawa Times kept on ignoring us when we gave them a rap or two.

We started in the editor's livingroom on May 26. We put his entire household into quite an uproar for several weeks. Then Mrs. B. threw us out and Mr. Horwich was kind enough to take us in. We're still at 22 Simcoe St. South. That's right downtown, and really easy to get to with your classified ad. Our invitations to readers to come and visit us still stands — only, don't all come at the same time. (And please, sir, you with the Great Dane, call up the stairs first to our Mr. Hanna — we don't like to see Josephine, our receptionist climbing up the waterpipe that runs up past her desk.)

Some of what we have said here so far in our "reflections" may sound like blowing our own horn. Well, some of it is. And that too is the newspaper business.

Enough said, except for this wish that all of us, readers and writers, have much more to blow our horns about when the 1971 New Year's edition rolls off the press.

readers write

Sir:

Pleased to read your recent editorial, but the damage has been done.

When I go to a polling station, I vote privately in an enclosed area.

In my opinion no newspaper should have the authority to sway the public as "this week" did in the recent municipal elections.

I entered this election for experience and was very pleased with the number of votes I received. They exceeded my expectations.

Season's Greetings to you and your family and the citizens of Oshawa.

Ruth Hopps

Sir,

What in the world are you doing? I thought a Sports Writer was supposed to report Sports, not to stick his nose into politics, which he probably knows nothing about.

It seems to me if I were John De Hart or any other candidate who received rotten treatment from "This Week," I would be hollering to the rooftops. I don't think any of them were bad losers. Why don't you just report the Sports, like a good little boy, Mr. Bishop?

R. Jones

Sir:

Why are Americans allowed to come to Canada and purchase hundreds and often thousands of acres of land, to set up house and to live here while, yet not being compelled by law to change their status from Americans to Canadians?

It seems to me these people want their cake with icing on it, but do not wish to become citizens of the country which supplies the cake! Isn't it time the immigration laws were changed and these people compelled to become Canadians and to conform to the laws of our country.

British Columbia is not the only Province where to the U.S. citizens are flocking — Nova Scotia is also swamped by them especially in the vicinity of their beautiful coastlines. And of course Ontario as well.

Soon it will be impossible to buy land, especially that which is near the water, for the U.S. people are buying all they can obtain.

I wish you and yours all the best for the New Year.

Mabel Saunders

Sir,

We hear much these days about the irresponsibility and self-interest of our young people but, as in most such generalizations, this is only half the story. During the past few days I have seen a good example that there also are many young people who do have interests outside themselves and who do have a sense of

Come out, please

A reader who calls himself "a concerned voter" wrote a letter to the editor just before Christmas and signed off with a "yours, doubting you will publish."

by peter brouwer

A couple of months ago I made what I thought was some valid criticism of a concert by the Oshawa Symphony Orchestra. Some readers reacted with a "well, I know you didn't mean that, and it was all said in good fun," while others concluded Brouwer had "obviously never been to a concert before and he should keep his nose out of things he knows nothing about." One admirer concluded I had gone to Eastdale to listen to the concert with the very idea in mind of finding fault with everything anyone did, as was my habit of doing.

Well, all that has changed now. I've been to my third concert, and by now I should know. Sunday night the orchestra was all laughs. Every piece the musicians played was fun.

Still, for the benefit of those who object, I had better keep my opinions to myself, rather than upset anyone at this time of year. Must end this year on a note of peace and tranquility.

So I'll let some of the other critics in the audience have their say. We brought six of them to this concert, and a whole Eastdale auditorium full of other fathers and mothers did the same. No, they didn't all bring six, but many brought what they had.

And the little critics, for some of whom it was their first symphony orchestra concert, enjoyed the family concert thoroughly. 'Groob's groovy," said one. "I'm going to be a conductor," said another. "But you've got to be able to play the violin," said a third, "and with your clumsy fingers you'll never do it."

Why did one want to be a conductor? "It must be great to make these players do exactly as you want them to, and to turn them off with one motion of your hand . . . and then the applause you get, like man . . . it's better than being on the Ed Sullivan show."

Between themselves, Conductor Jacob Groob and Bruno Gerussi, who narrated Prokofiev's "Peter and the Wolf", had the audience, including the fathers and mothers spellbound.

"You could see the wolf coming out from the back section of the orchestra . . . .

"When the girl with the flute played, you could hear the little bird fly across the auditorium."

Those are a few more of the little concertgoers remarks. Proof enough, the Oshawa Symphony Orchestra's family Christmas concert was a great success.

I've never seen Mr. Groob in any of his visits to the schools, but these must be most successful. Sunday's concert shows he certainly has what it takes in that department.

To see and hear a conductor explain the instruments in his orchestra before and during a concert is a far cry from the way they used to do it. First concert I attended, at age 10, was a performance of the St. Matthew Passion. It was bewildering, and without even so much as a program it was rather useless for my whole class. "Behave yourselves, don't move and be very, very quiet," was our teacher's approach. And for three or four hours that was quite an effort . . . .

Enough about that concert, too.

With my tribe we went on our own special concert Christmas Eve. It's the first time we've tried it, and though the singing will require plenty of polishing up for next year's performance we've decided to do it again. Some of our friends were amazed, others concluded the Brouwers had a screw loose somewhere, but most of them did appreciate it, I think, when we showed up on their front porch. But Christmas cake here and liquid refreshments there did cut down on the schedule. So if we missed your house — sorry. Next year we'll start a week in advance. We might even take on a few commercials to defray the expense . . . .

This is my confused contribution for this last week of the year. Have a Happy New Year!

Chronicles of Osh

1. And as the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy was drawing to a close in the land of Osh and the men, women and children of Osh had made much merry in the inns of the land of Osh and as they were gathered with their families under their trees which were brought into the tents of the Oshites as it was the custom to do towards the end of the year, there was upon the land of Osh a spirit of love and understanding such as had not been known for much of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy.

2. For the multitudes of the men of Osh who labored in the carriage shops of the land had put down their arms and had returned to their places in the carriage shops, there to resume the making of chariots that went varrooom. And there was much happiness in the land when Abraham of Osh led his flock back to what was called "the line" in those days of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy.

3. Now from a land that was far away from the land of Osh, yea, a land that upheld, so to speak, the whole of the land of Can, had come some wise men who had sat down with the men of Osh and Wind and with the men who spoke for the bossmen of the carriage shops and they had gathered together until a new peace offering,called contract, was made which brought smiles of happiness to the countenances of the men of both parties.

4. And thus it was that the eyes of all the lands of Can were no longer upon the land of Osh from where had come tidings of great gloom and doom which to some it seemed were unto all the people of the land of Osh and not just those who labored in the carriage shops of the land.

5. And in the Temple of Osh which stood four square and then some in the heart of the land of Osh there was rejoicing too. For an end of the war with the Pharaoh of Whit and his hencehmen was nigh at hand.

6. The Pharaoh and his henchmen, upon the hèels of the day on which the people of the Land of Osh chose unto themselves a new Chief Ruler, had made peace offerings, and he had spoken ,saying, behold, let us gather together and bury the hatchet — which was called a study to see whether the lands of Osh and Whit should be gathered together as one flock and under one name.

7. And there was among the elders of Osh some who spoke saying, behold, let us bury it indeed. But a slight cloud was seen on the horizon and some said all would not be well between the Pharaoh of Whit and the new Chief Ruler of the land of Osh, who had been known as the elder Neely, and that they would duel in the pastures of Whit, and upon the seat of the county of Ont, so to speak, during the next gathering of the elders of the land of Osh and the Whitites and all those that were afar off, but not too far.

8. And the elders of Osh were to gather secretly in the Temple of Osh on the fourth day of the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy one, in the first month, there to consider wherewithall they should lead the Oshites. And there were some who said one of the big dilemmas facing the elders was a new name and a new image for the Elder Neely, now the chief ruler of Osh.

9. For there were some who said, behold, we need something that is mightier than Pharaoh.

10. And the Chronicler of Osh consulted his ball of crystal and behold he saw a new name for the elder Neely and it sounded like Moses of Osh.

11. And the new Moses of Osh was to first rule over the council of the elders of Osh on the eleventh day of the first month of the new year.

Chronicles of Ont

1. And as the scribes of the land had predicted would come to pass in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy, there was a change in the wind upon the throne on the Holy Mountain of Qupee which stood in the heart of the land of Tor.

2. For the High and Mighty John, having ruled all the lands and peoples of Ont since the demise of the great white father Les had finally called unto himself his wise men and his henchmen and he had girded his loins and he had lifted up his countenance and he had spoken, saying, behold I, the H and M John have had enough, and I shall pass on the scepter to a new H and M and it shall be up to the peecees of the lands of Ont to appoint him.

3. And many of the people of Ont and the chief rulers of the people and elders of many lands spoke, saying, behold, who shall fill the shoes of the H and M, for they are size extra large.

4. And on the Holy Mountain arose one of the H and M's henchmen, called Billy. And he was the henchman who had caused the halls of learning of the lands of Ont to be thrown into an uproar which was just now dying down to a dull roar, in one way, while in another it wasn't.

5. And there were some who said the year one thousand nine hundred and seventy one would bring unto Billy the throne of the H and M John, and that he would be known to all the lands of Ont as the H and M William, for Billy just wouldn't do.

6. Now also seeking the throne upon the Mountain of Qupee was a man called Bert. And there were others as well, such as Darcy the servant of the H and M John who had caused much uproar among the elders of the lands of Ont with his scheme of things that called for the lumping together of peoples such as the Oshites and the Whitites and the Pickets and the Bowmans and all those that were afar off.

City ready to bloom, says Chamber man

In 1970 the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce adopted a change in policy and became more involved in community affairs presenting briefs on such topics as regional government, downtown development and civic affairs.

Jack Mann, Chamber manager, said this year the chamber attempted to speak on behalf of the businessman and took a more active role in the affairs of the city and its citizens.

The Chamber took a direct part in the province's Design for Development study through representation at meetings in Toronto and by issuing an invitation to the Minister of Municipal Affairs Darcy McKeough to speak at one of its dinner meetings.

The summer saw a substantial increase in the number of tourists visiting the city. The Chamber of Commerce information booth recorded 3,940 cars stopping for information. This represents well over 10,000 tourists to the area.

Well over 100 conventions and meetings were held in the city in 1970 thanks to the Chamber. Their aim was to spark organizations in Oshawa to invite their associations to hold regional or national conventions in the city.

All delegates to the conventions were given information kits about Oshawa containing maps, letters of welcome and information on places to visit while in the city.

LETTERS

This is a letter to This Week's Sports editor:

Dear JIM:

I am some what amazed that a sports writer classifies himself as being dumb, however, you said it not I.

In relation to your column, regarding the recent election when I spoke on television I was still very much in the race for Board of Control, if I recall I was only about 150 votes out of 4th spot with still some 50 polls to be heard from.

That night when I spoke my mind, I was not only referring to myself but I was speaking on behalf of the new candidates who had spent money, energy, and time on the municipal election.

Each year we hear the same old cry from the news media, that we need new blood, new ideas, new faces, to serve on Council.

These same people who are willing to offer their services and time are put down because Mr. Brouwer doesn't like the way he wears his hat or the way he knots his tie.

Let us not kid ourselves because many people do respect a paper for the proper information.

I personally visited approximately 16 to 20 polls during the election that day, and while visiting these polls I saw many people use this "This Week" as a guide to their voting.

I believe that "This Week" is wrong not only ethically, but morally in telling people how he or she should vote.

In your latter part of your column you mentioned and I quote "good winners and bad winners, good loosers and bad loosers" as for myself I have been involved in many activities including sports and politics and I never considered myself to be a bad looser, but if I feel that our democracy is being challenged and if this classifies me as a bad looser then I am glad to be known as a bad looser.

On behalf of the Oshawa Christmas Cheer Committee I would like to say "Thank you" to all those whose contribution has made it possible for us to carry out our programme this past Christmas, many of whom are students at our schools and colleges. An oustanding example was the contribution received from the R. S. McLaughlin Collegiate and Vocational Institute whose representatives arrived at Christmas Cheer Headquarters with between 40 and 50 large cartons of gifts, both food and toys, and with a sizeable cash contribution as well.

I would also like to express my own appreciation to all our helpers for their outstanding work; to the lady (who shall remain anonymous) who manned our telephone and who received over 600 calls; to our secretary, Mrs. Sadie Thomas, and her husband, Ron, who practically lived at Christmas Cheer H.Q. from Sunday, December 20th., to very late on Christmas Eve to make sure that everything possible was done to make sure that no one was missed; to those who checked lists, wrote cheques, packed and delivered boxes and did the thousand-and-one jobs involved in such a programme.

Stanley Mason.
Chairman,
Oshawa Christmas Cheer Committee.

DEVELOPMENT

August 1970 — Minimum Housing Standards By-law passed.

October 1970 — O.M.B. dismissed Councils' application to abolish Board of Control.

November 1970 — Decided to purchase Oshawa Airport from Federal Govt. at book value of $56,000.

November 1970 — Approved plans for development of Creek Valley and Upper Airport Reservoir.

In the area of Regional Government, these are the highlights:

May 5, 1970 — Announcement by Province of Design for Development - The Toronto-Centred Region — great significance for Oshawa and municipalities of this area.

July 1970 — Discussion Paper 3 of the Oshawa Area Planning And Development Study.

October 1970 — City Council presented brief to Don Paterson as a reaction to proposals in Discussion Paper No. 3.

October 1970 — City forwarded brief to Province as a reaction to Design for Development — Toronto-Centred Region.

December 1970 — City forwarded brief to Federal Transport Minister re: location of new Toronto International Airport in Oshawa Region.

In the area of public works, these were the highlights:

- The road program has kept pace with the city's growth.
- A new system of maintenance based on a uniform level of service has been instituted and should provide an economical and efficient service.

Also, during the last two years, Mayor Mackay says, "we have continued to refine, and overhaul and reconstruct the Personnel Department, so that this Council can leave office knowing that this Department is now in the best shape it has been during the life of this Council to tackle the many problems that are bound to come up in the future."

The Community Schools Program has been extended so that there are now more than 100 hours programmed per month.

Another highlight of 1969 and 1970 has been the close and effective working relationship between the elected and the appointed officials in City Hall, says Mayor Mackey.

"It is my opinion, which is shared by this Council, that we have some of the finest Department Heads and staff working for this City that one can find in local government anywhere in Ontario. For a City Hall administration to operate at maximum efficiency and effectiveness, there must be a close partnership relationship and a mutual and willing co-operation between those elected and those appointed to do the City's business in City Hall. We have had that relationship in City Hall over the past two years, which has directly contributed to the highlights which I have listed plus all of the other day-to-day accomplishments of the present administration which have helped to achieve good government.

Says Whitby Industrial Commissioner

New industrial mall shows faith in future of town

Whitby people are demonstrating their faith in the future of the Town by investing in the new Industrial Park. Development Commissioner W. G. Winters has announced a 70,000 sq. ft. multiple tenant industrial mall will get underway in the Whitby Industrial Park early in the new year.

Hopkins Centre, a two-phase project with a total value in excess of $600,000, will be financed, built and marketed by Whitby businessmen. W. D. Smith, former owner of the gravel pit on Thickson Rd. N., is the developer; Ron Deeth, owner and president of Mel-Ron Construction Ltd., is the contractor; and Whitby resident Bill Baldwin, vice-president of W. Frank Real Estate, is responsible for leasing the space to tenants.

Mr. Smith has signed an agreement with the Town of Whitby to proceed with the project. Engineering and design work on the building is already underway. Mr. Baldwin and Mr. Winters are now proceeding with negotiations for prospective tenants for the first phase of the industrial mall, a 28,000 sq. ft. building on Hopkins Street just north of the Totten, Sims and Hubicki offices. The second stage, a 42,000 sq. ft. structure, will be built adjacent to and facing the first when it is required.

Whitby Mayor Desmond Newman signs the agreement between the town and developer W. D. Smith to proceed with a $600,000 industrial mall in the Whitby Industrial Park. Seated: Mr. Smith; Mayor Newman; Ron Deeth, Mel-Ron Construction. Standing: Phil Rubinoff, Toronto; Wes Winters, Development Commissioner; William Baldwin, W. Frank Real Estate.

This is the first speculative project to be undertaken in the Industrial Park, Mr. Winters points out. The Development Commissioner sees the Hopkins Centre, with its flexible interior lay-out designed to accommodate a variety of needs, as a boon to small businesses and industries which now often have difficulty finding suitable office space to rent.

Mr. Winters believes this project will function as a catalyst to stimulate more development in the Industrial Park. "Action breeds action," he says.

Mayor Desmond Newman heralds Hopkins Centre as a cooperative venture between Whitby businessmen and the Town. Town council has approved a by-law to sell the four acres of industrial land to the developer at the regular price of $9,000 per acre. Payment, however, will be deferred until the building is 60 per cent leased.

"This is something we've been trying to get for a long time," says Mayor Newman. "There has been a substantial need for closed-in space." The industrial mall, he says, will provide the opportunity to lease the amount of space required as well as room to expand as a business grows.

Mr. Winters reports that in the past the Town has had to turn away prospective businesses because there was no space for them. As a result of their confidence in the Town and the success of this kind of mall, he says, Mr. Deeth is constructing the building at cost and Mr. Smith is financing the development. "Because he was prepared to get involved in this project, he will get full support from my office," promises the Development Commissioner.

Hopkins Centre will have truck loading docks at the rear of each unit and can have access to a rail spur line if required. Mr. Winters reports that the design and landscaping of the mall will adhere to the same high standards established by the Consumers Gas and Totten, Sims and Hubicki buildings which are already located in the Whitby Industrial Park.

The Consumers Gas building, the regional head office for the area east of Toronto, was the first in the Industrial Park. It was occupied towards the end of September. Regional Manager Geoff Milburn reports that the 25,000 sq. ft. building cost around $500,000 and provides working space for 50 employees. The building also contains an auditorium for public use. "We wanted to do something as a public service," says Mr. Milburn, "and what is often needed most is a room."

The engineering firm of Totten, Sims and Hubicii will be moving into their new premises from their old offices on Dundas St. E. in mid-January. While 45 to 50 people will be working in the $125,000 building, Totten, Sims and Hubicki employ a total of 70 people out of the Whitby office. The engineering consultants do road and sanitary engineering work for all over southern and central Ontario. The office building has been especially designed for the type of work done by the firm, with special lighting and storage facilities.

SPEAKER

Guest speaker at the January 11 annual meeting of the Oshawa Chamber of Commerce will be Mark Kellow, Ontario Chamber of Commerce president.

Fashions on a winter street

By Francine Fortier

Ah, the wintry streets.

Once again this delightful season is upon us, decorating our streets and sidewalks and driveways with its white wonder.

But it's cold. And wet. And everywhere. So ingenious fashion designers, determined not to be left out in the cold this winter, have out-witted winter's wicked wiles.

"Aha!" they said. "Jack Frost has gorged enough on our pretty ladies knees. We'll spoil his spirits so he can no longer have a nip, so to speak."

And so they did. Now, stumbling down (or up) our streets are the same ladies with the same legs well shrouded by maxi coats. Of course, for the most fashion conscious, the midi coat is the thing. However, the less fashion conscious gentlemen of our streets, still turn their anxious eyes upon the red thighs of the few lingering minied ladies.

Men too are becoming much more practical minded when it comes to dressing for winter. They are wearing their ties wider than ever to keep out the chills.

And you would be surprised that beneath the cool exterior of many a fashionably dressed man this winter, there radiates a long white wooly.

A most charming sight appearing in abundance this year, are the ladies looking so cute cuddley, dressed in the warm fun furs of some cold animal. You'll see fur everywhere... falling softly from coat hems and brushing daintily against the darkening snow... and piled up high on the ladies' heads to protect their wigs from the elements.

A big treat for Oshawanians this winter is the newly enclosed shopping centre. It is so well heated that a person can escape from the cold, take off his (or her) gloves, boots, scarf, hat, heavy coat, sweaters and earmuffs, sling them over his arm and shop in utter warmth.

And of course, to accent our season's beautiful clothes, ladies have stuck by the traditional colors and textures of facial makeup — a startling reddish tinge to the cheek and nose, a watering of the eyes and a slight scaling of the lips.

The New Year brings with it a feeling of a clean, fresh page; 365 new days in which to achieve some of the goals we set and failed to attain in 1970.

New Year is a traditional celebration throughout the world. It is a time for wishing friends and family well; for building new dreams and hopes for the future.

I am surrounded with Christmas cards bearing warm and friendly greetings and wishing me health and happiness in the New Year. One carries an unusual message which I would like to share with you.

I hope you will enjoy reading and pondering on the advice it contains and perhaps it will enable you to begin the year with a new outlook.

"Go placidly amid the noise and haste and remember what peace there may be in silence. As far as possible without surrender, be on good terms with all persons. Speak your truth quietly and clearly; and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story.

"Avoid loud and aggressive persons; they are vexations to the spirit. If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than youself. Enjoy your achievements as well as your plans.

"Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs; for the world is full of trickery. But let this not blind you to what virtue there is; many persons strive for high ideals and everywhere life is full of heroism.

"Be yourself. Especially, do not feign affection. Neither be cynical about love; for in the face of all aridity and disenchantment it is perennial as the grass.

"Take kindly the counsel of the years, gracefully surrendering the things of youth. Nurture strength of spirit to shield you in sudden misfortune, but do not distress yourself with imaginings. Many fears are born of fatigue and loneliness. Beyond a wholesome discipline, be gentle with yourself.

"You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here and whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should.

"Therefore be at peace with God, whatever you conceive Him to be and, whatever your labors or aspirations, in the noisy confusion of life, keep peace with your soul.

"With all its sham, drudgery and broken dreams, it is still a beautiful world. Be careful. Strive to be Happy."

Cut this out and stick it on your new car.

It would be worth more because that sticker means your new car is rustproofed by Ziebart. The people that have been protecting new cars from corrosion and rust since 1953.

Understanding rust.

In order to understand why and how Ziebart's rustproofing is the best, you must first understand rust.

Rust is caused by the reaction of air and moisture on metal. And the most dangerous rust begins on the inside of your car, in the hidden, hollow areas.

It is a popular misconception that salt causes rust. Although salt will accelerate the rusting process, it cannot cause rust by itself.

Many people believe that keeping a car in a heated garage or washing it regularly will help to combat rust. The opposite is true. Melted ice from the outside of your car and the water used in a car wash both seep down into critical hollow areas and cause the car to rust even faster.

Now that you understand the basics, you can see that in order to prevent rust, you must coat every critical area with a chemical barrier that stops the moisture from getting to the metal. It is on an exclusive chemical barrier like this, that the Ziebart process is based.

RUSTPROOF ZIEBART PROTECTED

There. Now your new car is worth more.

How Ziebart does it.

In order to get at every critical area, Ziebart first drills small holes at strategic but inconspicuous spots around the car. Then long nozzles are inserted into the holes to spray the entire area with our special sealant, by hydrostatic pressure.

The Ziebart sealant is a special patented formula developed by us. It will not crack or peel, is chemically adhesive to metal, is liquid enough to seep into every seam and crevice, remains pliable for permanent protection, is an insulator, will withstand dirt, water and salt, and will never harm plastic, rubber, glass, paint or upholstery.

Our process is so thorough that we guarantee your car will not rust through for ten years, no matter how many miles you put on it, if you have it Ziebarted before it's driven 3,000 miles.

Few resolutions, most were 'out'

There are only two days left for you to make your annual New Year's resolution but if you are like many city politicians you refuse to make personal resolutions because they will never be kept.

Mayor Bruce Mackey who will be leaving the mayoralty in two days made his resolutions when he announced he would not seek re-election. His resolution was to spend more time with his family and his busy law practice. When This Week attempted to contact Mayor Mackey three days after Christmas he was skiing with his family.

Mayor-elect Ed McNeely who also made his resolutions early was busy working in his office when he was contacted and said he would work hard at being a "good mayor".

McNeely has said he will devote as much time as necessary to be the new mayor of Oshawa and over the holidays he was busy catching up with his law practice before assuming the new role.

Ald. Ross Gibson who will soon be assuming the position of Controller says he has firmly resolved to keep the resolutions he broke last year.

Controller-elect Graham Coulter said he was in the process of establishing himself in a second business career which he said would be "complimentary" to his municipal politics career. He said he would try his best to see that the expectations of the citizens of Oshawa were fulfilled in the new council.

Controllers Margaret Shaw, Christine Thomas, Charles McIlveen and Finley Dafoe were unavailable for comment.

Defeated mayoralty candidate Ald. Gordon Attersley said he did not believe in making New Year's resolutions because they were never kept. "I prefer to try and assist people all year round," he said, adding that he was happy that labor peace was now established in the city.

Ald. Norman Down who is retiring from civic politics said: "Now that I'm out of council I don't think I'd better try and tell the rest of the world how to live."

Ald. Alan Pilkey who admitted he had a great deal of trouble keeping resolutions said he would like to see the unemployment situation in Oshawa take a brighter tone and hoped that the 1971 year would be economically better for Oshawa than 1970.

Ald. Jim Potticary the only politician who would admit to making a personal resolution said he would like to give up smoking. Mr. Potticary, who smokes between 12 and 15 cigarettes a day said he would like to cut down to none. In 1971 he would like to see the establishment of several day care centres throughout the city and the beginning of a "trouble child" centre. "And, perhaps with a little luck we may get a swimming pool for the people in the south end of the city and with even more luck we may even get a pool for the eastern section of the city," he said.

Ald. Ruth Bestwick said she didn't make resolutions but offered a wish for a happy and more prosperous year throughout the world. "If we all pitch in and work just a little harder we could attain the real values in life for 1971," she said.

Ald. Alice Rearden said if she were appointed to the traffic committee next term she would make it her resolution to keep pushing for a parking garage downtown.

Alderman-elect Mike Lisko said his wife would like him to quit smoking but he wasn't so sure he could keep the promise. In regards to his new political career Mr. Lisko said he intended to do the "best job possible".

Family concert by OSO and Gerussi

By Jo Aldwinckle

Oshawa Symphony Orchestra's Family Concert on Sunday was a happy adventure into the world of music for hundreds of children who attended the afternoon and evening performances at Eastdale Collegiate.

It was also a happy adventure for the grown-ups who beamed with pride at the rapt attention of the small fry.

Conductor Jacob Groob geared his program to his youthful listeners without underestimating them. He gave them a taste of Mozart and Schubert, first introducing the "families" of the orchestra. A soloist in each section of strings, woodwinds, brasses and tympani played a passage to demonstrate the voice and range of his instrument.

It was a great occasion for the three boys and three girls who were invited on stage in pairs to join the orchestra in Leroy Anderson's "Sleigh Ride". The little boys bounced the tambourine and the girls shook the sleigh bells, serious in purpose but regardless of the conductor who accepted their off beat as an individual contribution to the overall effect.

The highlight of the program for audience and orchestra alike was Prokofiev's orchestral fairy-tale "Peter and the Wolf", narrated by Bruno Gerussi.

The script, easily interpreted by Gerussi whose radio voice is recognized across Canada, was illustrated by the voices of the orchestra in a complicated score in which timing is most important for a clean performance.

Everything came off beautifully. It was easy to identify "Grandfather Bassoon", "Cat Clarinet", "Bird Flute" and, of course, "Peter Fiddle".

Bizet's Farandole which followed, although brisk and lively and full of dance rhythms, came as an anticlimax. The youngsters had heard what they came for. They knew that the Wolf was in the zoo, so, it was time to go home.

Indefatigable Gerussi

Although surrounded by autograph-seeking children after his participation in the Oshawa Symphony Orchestra's Family Concert on Sunday, Bruno Gerussi managed to exchange a few thoughts about the past, present and future.

Those who remember his vigorous performances in the Shakespearean Festival at Stratford will be happy to learn that he has not forsaken the theatre completely.

"If the right part came along, I'd jump at it," he said. "I was offered a role in one of the Avon Theatre plays last summer but turned it down because I felt it was not just right for me.

"And, anyway, I really need a break in the summer because my radio commitment is quite demanding. I do a two-hour radio program five days a week and a TV show on Sunday. The radio show cannot be taped because it must be topical and events happen and change so rapidly.

"The only programs on tape are the ones on Christmas Day and New Year's Day — so, you see, I'm a busy fellow.

"I'm sure more people know me through the radio program than would ever have heard of me through Stratford. So, in this way, one is complementing the other.

"Both CBC and Stratford have international reputations and are important to Canada."

As the last of the autograph-seekers were bundled off he called after them "Happy New Year, kids," and waved as he turned into the dressing room.

Indefatigable — that's Gerussi!

New Year's telethon

A special New Year's Eve telethon from 6 p.m. until 1 p.m. New Year's Day will be broadcast over Channel 9, CFTO.

During the 19-hour period all broadcasting on the Toronto channel will be designed to draw attention to the problem of mental retardation and to ask donations to help the retarded.

The numbers are 922-5152 and 922-5153, and Andy VanLith of the Oshawa Association for Retarded children urges full participation in this area. Gifts designed for a particular local organization will go to that local, says Mr. VanLith.

Other funds raised will be shared by the Ontario Association for Retarded children and the Toronto association.

Three hotel parties

If you are looking for a place to celebrate New Year's Eve at least three Oshawa hotels are planning celebrations guaranteed to help you bring in the new year with music and entertainment galore.

The Genosha Hotel is offering a "top flight" band as it's main drawing card and can accommodate 100 couples at $20 per couple. The party gets underway at 9 p.m. and guests can partake of the Rib Room buffet featuring hot roast beef, turkey and salads. For those who do not want to risk the ride home they are offering a combination for $10 extra that will include a room overnight and breakfast in the morning.

The Georgian Motor Inn is hosting a New Year's party to accommodate 125 couples with the Par Four offering the entertainment. The cost is $15 per couple and this includes hat and horns and the rest of the New Year paraphernalia. For $5 a person guests can enjoy a "delicious" hot and cold buffet. The party begins at 9 p.m. and if you want to stay overnight you had better make reservations. The Georgian has 22 rooms to rent.

The Carousel Inn is featuring two bands for their New Year's Party. On hand to entertain ths party goers will be "The Cats" and "Matdecosmo". Cost will be $20 a couple and this will include a hot and cold buffet. The Carousel will hold their party in two separate rooms and can accommodate up to 200 couples. For $10 extra you can reserve a room for overnight.

Try a wassail bowl for New Year's Eve

Traditional for New Year's Eve and Twelfth Night, the Wassail Bowl was generally made with cider. In Elizabethan times a red hot poker sizzled in the cider to keep it hot.

Twelve roasted crab apples were floated in the bowl to represent the twelve apostles; each apple stuck with three cloves to symbolize the Holy Trinity.

Wassail making was once considered a very fine art with days of preparation. Luckily now with canned juices available it is a simple matter to create this spicey holiday punch.

WASSAIL BOWL

(Makes 10 to 12 servings)

2 (48-ounce) cans apple juice
½ cup lemon juice
1 and one-third cups lightly packed brown sugar
½ cup butter
8 2-inch pieces stick cinnamon
12 whole cloves
2 whole nutmegs
1 teaspoon ginger
small oranges cut into wedges or spiced red crab apples

Combine apple juice, lemon juice, sugar and butter in a large saucepan; heat to boiling point. Tie cinnamon sticks, cloves and nutmegs in a small piece of cheesecloth and drop into juice mixture. Stir in ginger. Simmer gently, uncovered, 30 minutes or until spicy enough to suit taste. Remove bag of spices Pour punch into bowl Stick extra whole cloves into surface of orange wedges or crab apples and add to punch. Serve hot.

downtown business area. In 1971 the Chamber will be expressing views on a parking garage as a part of the overall development of the downtown core.

"The downtown area is far from being dead. Part of the blame of course, must weigh on the shoulders of the businessmen themselves," says Mr. Mann.

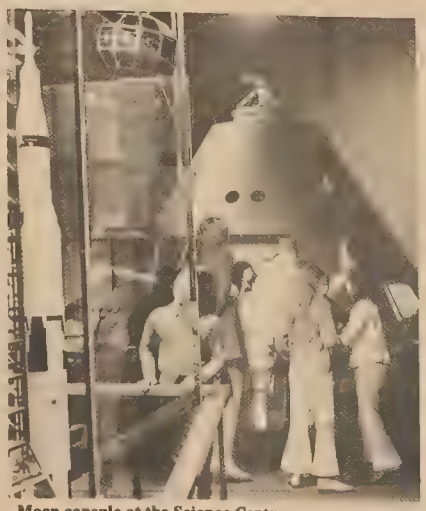
On behalf of the businessmen of Oshawa, the Chamber presented a brief on the Benson White Paper condemning some of its recommendations calling them "detrimental to business" and claiming they could possibly kill business initiative.

The Chamber feels it played an important part in the last civic election by presenting a radio forum to providing voters with the opportunity to hear the views of all the candidates, Mann says.

A student summer employment centre was operated and Mann says it played an important part in the success of the national endeavor.

"In Oshawa, with the job situation in such bad shape we naturally placed the emphasis on making sure adults had priorities."

The Junior Achievement organization begun by the Chamber of Commerce two years ago had a successful year too. Over 200 high school students operate 13 companies in Oshawa to manufacture products or provide services. The profits are turned back into the business and the students learn the principles of operating a business.



Birthday bash

The Chamber of Commerce is promising great things to come in 1971. Perhaps the most active program will be the centennial birthday celebrations for Col. "Sam" Robert S. McLaughlin.

It will be co-ordinating the activities of all organizations in Oshawa wishing to recognize Mr. McLaughlin. The activities will be spread out through the whole year with an event every two weeks, Mann hopes.

Mann says he is also involved in bringing the Highland Games to Oshawa in July. "There are at least 50 activities we are working on now. Oshawa has a fantastic future potential and it is getting ready to bloom and burst forth," he says.

Fun for the family during the holidays

Moon capsule at the Science Centre.

By Jo Aldwinckle

Christmas holidays have their own special character. In the summer vacation families scatter; somebody goes to camp, another to far-away places,or a temporary job or a cottage by the lake. Summertime means being outdoors.

Winter is different. There are some who take to the ski trails, but for others there is the pleasure of family gatherings, social functions, concerts, plays and all kinds of indoor entertainment.

There is much from which to choose but for a family outing the Ontario Science Centre in Toronto offers a day of absorbing interest and family fun.

From 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. except for New Year's Eve when the Centre will close at 6 p.m., there is something exciting going on in a special program of events entitled "A Music Box for the Holidays".

Participation

Much of the fun is found in audience participation. In other words, you work the exhibits yourself or, as in the Toothpick Structure, add your own bit of "self-expression".

The Toothpick Structure which promises to be a monumental piece of work before the holidays are over, is one of the special exhibits. Others are the music boxes, timeless toys, player piano and the reflective curtain.

Walt Disney's "White Wilderness" is being screened in the auditorium every two hours, beginning at 10.30 a.m. Last show: 8.30 p.m. Special tickets are not required.

In the Centre you will find models and displays of the scientific wonders of our age. An exhibit of the progress of dentistry, arranged by the Ontario Dental Association, was made possible by a handsome contribution from Colonel R.S. McLaughlin.

Specials

Special events this week include: Wednesday, Dec. 30, Moog Synthesizer (Electronic Music) 4.30, 6.30, 8 p.m.; Devonshire Singers, 8 p.m.; Orff method music teaching demonstration, 3 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 31, Magic Show, 1, 3 p.m.; Friday, Jan. 1. Generals tie and get clobbered

The Oshawa Generals took only one point for their efforts this past weekend as they battled London to a 6-6 tie and were bombed by the St. Catherines Black Hawks 8-3.

On Saturday, at the Auditorium, both clubs took advantage of defensive mistakes and went about the ice scoring at will. Reg Thomas Jay Babcock and Lou Nistico for London and Tom Simpson and Don Seiling for Oshawa all tallied to finish the period at 3-2, Knights leading. In the second, Oshawa rallied with a goal on a great effort by Dennis Howard and a second by Jack Lynch. Dennis Vervegaert replied for London to tie the game at 4-4.

The third period saw the Gens open a two goal lead on tallies by Butch Williams and Tom Simpson before the Knights had a late-game surge and gave the visitors a tie. Reg Thomas scored at 17:50 and Colin Wood picked up the equalizer with just 63 seconds remaining.

On Sunday, at St. Catherines, the Generals just deserted their goalie, Gilles Gratton and were walloped 8-3 by a weakened Black Hawk crew. Captain Terry O'Reilly scored twice for Oshawa and Don Seiling added a single. Clyde Simon scored four goals for the Black Hawks and singles were scored by Pierre Guite, Bob Peppler, Brian McKenzie and Bob McMahon.

The Generals, surprisingly enough, played a very spirited game on Saturday against London. They came from behind twice in the game, hit well, and it was just a number of rookie mistakes that finally forced them into a tie. On Sunday, they reverted to form and played another of those real stinkers that they are prone to coming up with from time to time.

Next home stand for the Gens is New Year's day when the Toronto Marlies visit at 2 p.m. at the Civic Auditorium.

It is customary at this time of year for a columnist to look back at the triumphs in the city's sports endeavors of the past year. Well, we'll do just that for a bit.

Sandy Hawley, the amazing young jockey was chosen the city's outstanding male athlete in a poll conducted by a "local daily newspaper". Bev Boys kept rolling along, winning gold medals by the bushel and was just named the nation's outstanding female athlete for 1970.

The Generals were not too successful but did manage to make the playoffs before bowing out to the Marlies.

The Crushmen went to the finals of their league and were beaten by Kingston.

The Green Gaels broke tradition and did not win the Minto Cup but played exciting lacrosse.

The big happening was those four Ontario Softball titles in one weekend.

The Senior Legionnaires almost brought home the OBA title in their first year of operation, being nosed out by Welland in the finals.

There were a number of other outstanding highlights over a year but let's not dwell too long on past glories.

This year could well mark one of the finest sporting years a city of our size ever had.

The Oshawa Recreation Department has developed a number of new endeavors for the sporting fraternity and will continue to expand its programs again this year.

The Generals show signs of getting off their backsides and making a run for the playoffs. Once the boys decide that they do owe their fans and coach a consistent effort, I think they will come along.

The Crushmen could win it all.

The Green Gaels should have enough strength to get back into form and make a serious bid for the championship.

Look for Oshawa's swimmers to continue making their mark in inter-provincial and inter-national competition.

With a couple of new fields in Phase III of the Auditorium Complex, soccer could well blossom this new year too.

Now that we have Harman Park Twin-pad, minor hockey will continue to grow stronger and stronger.

Oshawa could again become a football power.

All in all 1971 shapes to be the biggest year in the sports history of the city with new facilities, new faces and new fans moving into an area. We would like to take this opportunity to wish all our friends and members of the area sporting fraternity a successful, prosperous and peaceful New Year.
